White House Aides Blamed

Halleck Overtakes His Destiny, Page 7A

Martin pointed a finger of blame at some White House aides, but not at President Eisenhower directly. He also said Vice President Richard Nixon's associates opposed him.

The changeover provided a dramatic, spectacular prelude for a similar showdown within Senate Republican ranks and for the opening of the heavily Democratic 86th Congress at noon today.

For their part, Democrats were free of leadership feuds. They picked another veteran, Sam Rayburn of Texas, for a ninth term as speaker of the House. Rayburn, 77 years old Tuesday, already has held the post longer than any other man.

A thin, four-vote margin was the difference between volt against the House GOP success and failure in the releadership — the first successful one in 28 years.

In spite of the usual professions of unity and amity after the balloting, the outcome may leave damaging scars on the depleted ranks of Republican congressmen.

This picture taken from a rocket which soared to an altitude of more than 86 miles was released by the Navy Tuesday. Actually a composite of five pictures, it shows a stretch of cloud formation which, the Navy said, covers approximately 1,000 miles, stretching from Maine to mid-Florida. The Navy described the picture as a forerunner of a series of high altitude photographs that will be used to study hurricanes and associated weather conditions.

Suicidal Motorist Kills Man

A 50-year-old bridge tender and his frisky collie dog were the innocent victims Tuesday of a suicide-bent Miami attorney who deliberately swerved his speeding car into their car's path.

According to highway patrolmen, Attorney Paul Andre Foisy, 33, wanted to kill himself.

Instead, he killed Henry Newton Moore, 50, and Moore's collie, Prince, as they rode peacefully along the Tamiami Trail at 122nd Ave. shortly before noon.

For Moore, who had every reason to live, the sudden, meaningless death was unavoidable.

Seconds before the thundering crash, he probably spotted Foisy's car careening toward him at a speed of "better than 80 miles an hour," patrolmen said.

Moore, his hands white against the steering wheel, swerved his eastbound car completely off the road.

But, to Moore's horror, Foisy's car continued to bear down upon him, literally pursuing him off the road.

A second later, the roar of metal slamming against metal — then the helpless whine of the twisted dog as it lay on the front seat of Moore's car close to its dead master.

Foisy, of 2981 SW 12th St., slumped over the wheel of his own mangled car, critically injured and gagging on blood that welled up from internal wounds.

"The worst thing about it," said State Trooper H. R. Blair, "is that Foisy could have picked out any one of a long line of pine trees on his own side of the road — they would have done the job."

Instead, he chose at random to smash the life out of a man with a good job, a happy family, and a small world of friends.

Moore who lived at 7401 NW Seventh St. had been a bridge tender for the city of Miami for 15 years.

Moore's friends and co-workers at his SW First St. bridge called him "likable and efficient."

"He loved to fish and work in his garden. He boasted about his green thumb," said one friend.

Foisy didn't know that. And he didn't know Moore's wife, Ruth, 46, or his son, Gene, 20, or his daughter Anita, 12.

In the past year, friends and relatives said, Foisy had drunk his way out of a happy mar-

'Confession' Attacked

Bulganin Branded Traitor and Liar

MOSCOW — (UPI) — A speech to Communist Party leaders made public Tuesday denounced fromer Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin as a "traitor and double dealer" who did not tell the truth even in his confession of error.

The latest public attack on the goateed army marshal who preceded Nikita S. Khrushchev as premier was contained in a stenographic report of the Communist Party Central Committee meeting last month at which Bulganin admitted he was a member of the disgraced "anti-party group."

According to the report, L. P. Kornitz, president of the state committee on cereals and a high Soviet official, blasted Bulganin's admissions as being given "insincerely and untruthfully."

"Actually, this is nothing surprising," Kornitz said.

"He is a double-dealer and a traitor and does not want to tell the truth even up to the end."

The Communist Party newspaper Pravda joined in the denunciation of Bulganin and the other anti-party clique members — former Premier Georgi Malenkov, former Deputy Premier Lazar Kaganovich and ex-Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov and Dmitri T. Shepilov.

Istanbul Blast Rips Newspapers

ISTANBUL —(AP)— An explosion ripped apart two buildings, including two newspaper plants, in the old central port of Istanbul Tuesday.

Police said 14 bodies were recovered and several more were believed still buried in the debris. They said 87 were injured.

It was feared as many as 30 may have lost their lives.

Three of the dead were passengers in a crowded bus which lumbered past the four story buildings at the moment of the blast. The bus was crushed beneath the debris.

Cause of the explosion was not determined, but the injured owner of the building which housed the newspapers Istanbul Ekspres and Yeni Gazete said it appeared to come from a warehouse in the rear where chemicals, including oxygen flasks, were stored.

A Modern-Day Parable
. . . Janitress Nicolosa Donlucas

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— "This is a talent," the Methodist minister said, pressing a 50-cent piece into the gnarled hand of the tiny $90 a month janitress. "Use it wisely and it will increase."

And Nicolosa Donlucas listened to the Rev. Nicolas Davila relate Jesus' Parable of the Talents. As she stood, broom in hand, he explained how some persons can make one coin become many, while others — as told in Matthew — fail to make use of what they have.

That was last summer.

Some days later, a timid knock came on his door. It was Nicolosa. She held out $17.50 to him.

Haltingly, she explained. His half-dollar had paid for some cheese and tortillas. She had made enchiladas and sold them, then bought more cheese and tortillas and sold more enchiladas. Now she had $35! Half she was giving to the Methodist-operated community center where she works. Half would finance more enchiladas in her spare time.

"Is this not the meaning of the tale you told me?" she asked.

East Still Chilled by Icy Winds

NEW YORK — (AP) — A vicious Arctic gale hammered the Eastern seaboard for a second day Tuesday with wind gusts up to 70 m.p.h. Damage was widespread, as bitter cold intensified the misery of the storm.

The biting cold even penetrated the depths of New York's subway system, disrupting mechanical equipment and delaying rush hour travelers by the thousands. New York's low was 13.7 above zero.

At Stratford, Conn., the father of four children died in a duplex fire, and his wife and four children were hospitalized.

Sixteen students fled the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity house on the Williams College campus at Williamstown, Mass., during a pre-dawn fire. And at Long Branch, N. J., 11 persons escaped from a burning apartment house.

In New England, thousands of autos were stalled by the cold. Wild winds felled trees and utility poles and delayed scores of trains out of Boston.

Congress Dissolved, Courts Suspended

New Cuban Regime to Rule By Decree for 18 Months

Cuba at a glance, 3A

By GEORGE SOUTHWORTH
Herald Latin America Editor

HAVANA — Government by decree for at least 18 months was proclaimed Tuesday by the new Cuban revolutionary government of President Manuel Urrutia as it dissolved Congress and erased the last judicial vestiges created by fallen dictator Fulgencio Batista.

The government suspended all criminal courts and was reported preparing a decree abolishing all political parties.

The provisional regime dismissed all provincial governors, mayors and councilmen. Apparently their functions will be taken over by new civilian appointees prepared in advance for the task.

Other decrees, informed sources said, would ban all candidates in the 1954 and 1958 elections from Cuba's political life, freeze the private bank accounts of all Batista officials, and stop the cashing of all outstanding checks against the Batista regime.

Revolutionary courts were reported being prepared to try Batista, now in exile in the Dominican Republic, and other officials who may be accused of crimes during his rule.

These and other laws were announced, or reported in preparation, as Provisional President Manuel Urrutia sat almost continuously in the Presidential Palace with his new cabinet.

The initial policies of the new government were being shaped as hoarse-voiced Fidel Castro, the rebel leader who shoved Urrutia to power, was still plodding through adoring throngs toward the capital from the east. It was doubtful he would reach Havana today as planned.

The losing of political rights by all candidates in the 1954 and 1958 elections would apply not only to Batista but also to Rivero Aguero, his successful candidate in last November's presidential elections and the second runner, former President Ramon Grau San Martin.

The dissolution of political parties would affect former President Carlos Prio Socarras, head of the Autentico Party, who returned to Cuba after the New Year's Day resignation of Batista. Although Prio made common cause with the rebels against Batista, he apparently is not trusted by Castro's 26th of July movement.

Prio has been living in exile in Miami since 1952 when he was overthrown by a Batista coup.

Additional appointments were made to the cabinet headed by Premier Jose Miro Cardona, president of the Havana Bar Association. These included Luis Orlando Rodrigues as interior minister, and Raul Cepero Bonilla as minister of the treasury. Earlier Bonilla had been slated for commerce minister and Raul Chibas for the treasury.

Felipe Pazos was named director of the National Bank in place of Joaquin Martinez Paez, who was linked to the Batista government.

In Washington, it was reported that U.S. recognition of the Urrutia regime was imminent.

Castro 'Finds' Son; Reunion in Offing

By JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writer

Fidel Castro said Tuesday his nine-year-old son had been spirited away—then learned hours later the boy was en route to meet him in Havana.

Fidel, Jr., left New York by plane "to kiss my daddy, and congratulate him."

The news came after a heart-breaking period in which Castro believed his boy had been taken away by Batista supporters and was being held in Miami.

"They have taken my money and my blood," Castro said, "and now they have taken my son."

However, friends of Castro's family said the boy has been living in New York since November, 1958.

Fidel Jr. is the only son of a marriage that failed when Castro was sentenced to 15 years for an attack on Batista in 1956.

His college sweetheart wife divorced him and married the son of Cuba's U.N. ambassador in New York. She retained custody of Castro's child.

Castro had expected to find the boy in Havana.

"If they (Batista supporters) have removed him for security reasons, it's all right," he said early in the day. "But if it's for retribution, that's another matter."

Castro, in an interview last year, said his wife's family broke up their marriage "because they were very close to the Batista government."

Mary Astor Discloses—

'Quit Fight for Child,' Studio Brass Told Me

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Movie Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Mary Astor disclosed Tuesday that moviedom's top brass tried to persuade her to call off the 1936 child custody suit in which her sensational "purple ink" diary figured.

She refused, and the resulting scandal rocked Hollywood.

The disclosure was made in her autobiography, "My Story," a regretful look back to the wilder days of filmtown history. She is now 52 and a grandmother. Her account doesn't spare the lovely, wilful film star of the '30s. Her reflective view of herself after the trial:

"I do not think I could have borne it to face myself as I really was—sick, spoiled and selfish, prowling like some jungle animal seeking momentary satisfaction. Sexually I was out of control. I was drinking too much, and I was brought up short when I found myself late in the evening thinking someone was 'terribly attractive' and wondering the next morning, 'Why, why'!"

13 Injured In 'River Of Fire'

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — (AP) — Seven Air Force students perished in their sleep Tuesday and 13 others were injured in a wild scramble to flee wind-whipped flames that made an inferno of a barracks dormitory at Syracuse University.

Twenty-five airmen escaped without injuries of consequence, mostly by jumping through windows of the one-story building.

Firemen, battling in near-zero weather at 6 a.m., kept the flames from spreading to the 14 other barracks of a university housing development atop a hill overlooking the city.

The dead included:

Airman Billy D. Marlow, 29, of Converse, Tex., who left a wife and two children; Airman Michael E. Gasparri, 19, of Yonkers; Airman Edward E. Duggan, 28, of Manning, S.C.; Airman Joseph E. Stoll Jr., 18, of Norwalk, Ohio; and Airman Remus A. Ridwell, 18, of Oneonta, Ala.

The names of the other dead were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

The 45 men, many of them in their teens, had just been assigned to the university for a nine-month course in Russian. Their headquarters is Wright-Patterson Air Force base, Dayton, Ohio, where they are attached to the Air Institute of Technology.

Fire officials said the fire apparently started from an oil-fed steam boiler in the center of the 22-room building, which was prefabricated of metal and composition board.

The escape was "like animals trying to get out of a cage," said Sgt. Peter Dowling, 25, of Kalamazoo, Mich.

Appeal Made To Kidnaper

NEW YORK — (AP) — The mother of a kidnaped infant girl pleaded for the safe return of the baby Tuesday and offered to share the child with the abductor.

The kidnaper is believed to be a frustrated mother.

"If she loves the baby that much and would return her to us I would even be willing to let her visit the baby periodically," said Mrs. Frances Chionchio, 26, from her hospital bed.

"I would be willing to appeal to the kidnaper on a woman-to-woman basis. If she would call the hospital, I would speak to her on the telephone."

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said Eisenhower took no part in the fight. The President praised both Halleck and Martin.

Asked if Nixon was instrumental in his defeat, Martin replied: "All I know is that all his people were against me—actively against me."

No Clues in Crash

Pilot 'Abduction' Remains Mystery

By ARTHUR JOHNSEY
Herald Staff Writer

Border patrolmen sifted the strange kidnap story of a Miami student pilot Tuesday without finding a trace of two passengers the pilot claimed coerced him into taking off for Havana.

The ill-fated trip ended when the pilot and co-pilot crashed in a Beechcraft plane in shallow water Monday near Key Largo.

Jose Bosch, of 5025 SW 114th Ave., a Puerto Rican who has a student pilot's license, and T. J. Kennedy of 648 Mokena Drive, Miami Springs, were rescued by a Coast Guard helicopter Monday.

The passengers were reported to have hidden in a mangrove and escaped.

Lt. Cmdr. John Doherty of the Coast Guard said Bosch claimed he was held by the two men for a day or two, kept blindfolded, then ordered to find a co-pilot and fly the plane from Tamiami Airport to Havana.

Patrol investigators said Bosch and Kennedy, interviewed separately, related they took off from Tamiami Airport for Key West with the two mysterious men aboard.

When rescued, Bosch and Kennedy did not mention their passengers until the Coast Guard rescue helicopter had left the crash scene, according to the Coast Guard.

Kennedy said he got into the act when Bosch, whom he knew only slightly, invited him to go along as co-pilot and he agreed. He didn't suspect anything was wrong, investigators were told, until Bosch told him after the takeoff that "we can't go to Key West."

Border patrolmen, examining a possibility the passengers were revolutionaries who sought this means to return to Cuba, pointed out clearance can easily be obtained in most cases for legal departure.

Nephew Says He'll Go to Daytona

Is Batista Planning A Regime in Exile?

By ROSE ALLEGATO
WPB Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — Juan Batista, 20-year-old nephew of Cuba's deposed dictator, said Tuesday his uncle will set up a government-in-exile in Daytona Beach.

Juan, who fled Cuba New Year's morning with his father, Francisco, to seek political asylum in West Palm Beach, said Fulgencio Batista will come to his Daytona Beach home from the Dominican Republic in "two months."

"It is indefinite. Not even his son or daughter know yet," said Juan, who speaks English with a degree of fluency. However, he estimated it would be "two months or three."

Juan said he and his father will join Cuba's ousted dictator in Daytona Beach. Meanwhile, they will live in a private residence in West Palm Beach. At present they are at a downtown hotel.

They said the luxurious Biltmore Hotel in Palm Beach, where they first sought refuge, was too costly.

Francisco Batista, who was governor of the Province of Havana; his son, Juan; a woman he described as the "mother of my son" and 41 others, including the wife of President-elect Rivero Aguero, left revolt-torn Havana in a C46 military plane for West Palm Beach early New Year's day.

'Outlaw Airline Strikes'

Holland Drafts Bill for Ban

By DAVID J. KRASLOW
By Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. Spessard Holland of Florida said Tuesday he will ask Congress to outlaw airline strikes.

Holland said a bill he is drafting would require that operations continue while mediators work on disputes. Labor and management would be bound by findings of the arbitration board.

Holland said he plans to introduce the bill Friday.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, Eastern Air Lines' board chairman, urged such a law as EAL's 38-day strike ended last week.

"There is an immense public interest and investment in the commercial airline industry," Holland said.

"Public funds pay for airports, flight control equipment and mail subsidies. The government hands out airline routes and certifies crew members."

Unions and the airlines have been opposed to compulsory arbitration. Both realize that it could be a two-way street and that under compulsory arbitration they might be forced to swallow settlements they don't want.

Holland apparently had this in mind when he said:

He is chairman of the powerful Senate subcommittee which will handle appropriations for the new Federal Aviation Agency.

The FAA has replaced the Civil Aeronautics Authority and has taken over some of the duties of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Sens. Mike Monroney (D., Okla.) and George Smathers of Florida have indicated they may push for similar legislation. Monroney is chairman and Smathers a member of the Senate aviation subcommittee.

riage and promising career and into Veterans Hospital, where he was recently treated for acute alcoholism.

He spent most of his time drinking — and talking of suicide.

Perhaps the only person who knew was a short brunette carhop named "Caroline."

Found in Foisy's pocket after the crash was a note which read:

"Caroline, this is the best way out for you and me. Nothing is too good for you. I can't live without you. It is not fair for you to be tied down to an alcoholic like me. I hope this (the suicide attempt) will be legal enough for you to become the beneficiary of my insurance."

Tuesday night, while highway patrol investigators tried to find "Caroline," she slipped into Dade County Hospital at Kendall and tearfully told a nurse she wanted to see Foisy, "because I'm his girl friend."

But Foisy was still in surgery.

Thorpe, for full custody of their daughter Marilyn, four. He had won custody with an uncontested divorce. His weapon: Miss Astor's diary with allegedly purple passages concerning several noted men.

The actress writes of being called to Samuel Goldwyn's office and being confronted by top studio bosses. Spokesman Irving Thalberg told her they felt she was making a grave mistake, that "if the information they had received was true, the trial and the diary would create a vicious scandal, give the industry a bad name, and I would probably lose the case and the child, too."

She refused to drop the suit and commented: "I looked upon it as all too boring and a little pompous; besides, Walter Huston and some champagne were waiting for me in my bungalow."

She later discovered why the bigwigs were so upset: A person who figured in the diary had forged a version and shown it to the producers, hoping they would forestall the scandal.

She writes: "The forgery was lurid; it contained a 'box score' of practically every male big name in the business and it was loaded with pornographic details."

Miss Astor said the forgery was leaked to the press. She cried futilely to her attorney: "There wasn't any 'box score' and I never called the damned thing 'Dear Diary.'" The Los Angeles Examiner printed a few pages of the authentic diary, she said, concerning her friendship for Playwright George Kaufman, which was "romantic and sentimental, certainly not pornographic."

The diary was never read in court because it had been mutilated and was inadmissible as evidence. Superior Judge (later governor) Goodwin Knight ordered it impounded, and in 1952 it was destroyed by court order.

Why did Miss Astor keep a diary?

She explains: "I wanted to talk about my own activities and my opinions of other people and the things they did. I wanted the assurance of individuality and reality and substance that the dairy gave me. The diary was a consolation and a reassurance."

The actress came out of the scandal with her career unscatched. Goldwyn, for whom she was making "Dodsworth," refused to fire her under a morality clause. His comment: "A woman fighting for her child? This is good!" She had won custody of Marilyn for nine months of the year.

Driver, 35, Killed As Car Rams Truck

By AL FINKELSTEIN
Herald Staff Writer

A 35-year-old Miami laundry truck driver was crushed to death Tuesday noon when his vehicle pinned him to the pavement after it was rammed and overturned by a car at NE Third Ct. and 78th St.

Killed was Cornelius B. Willard, 6048 SW 19th St. He worked for Riverside Laundry and Cleaners, 464 W. Flagler St.

The laundryman was Dade's third traffic death this year.

In another near-fatal collision, Lindsey Rowe Jr., 32, of 3450 NW Fourth St., suffered a ripped jugular vein. He was in critical condition Tuesday night at Jackson Memorial Hospital.

Police said he was cut when his car ran into the rear of a truck loaded with one-inch wide iron pipes.

Miami Detective E. E. Bergquist, investigating the laundry truck collision, said George S. Pietzcker, 73-year-old retired real estate man, of 7737 Atlantic Way, Miami Beach, was charged with reckless driving, failing to yield the right of way and ignoring a stop sign.

Bergquist said Pietzcker admitted having failed to check left-hand traffic on 78th St., before making a right turn from NE Third Ct. He was traveling south and the laundry truck was headed west.

The panel truck was flipped instantly on its side. Willard's head was crushed.

National Summary

The fair, cold weather in the south that give 29 lows from Jacksonville to Apalachicola, Fla. and a 25 at Mobile, Ala. maintained sunny weather west to the Mississippi. From Texas moisture laden winds over the top of the cold air that sent a 31 reading to Laredo on the Rio Grande is streaming clouds to Lake Michigan and rain across southern Texas to Houston and Austin. The threat of this pattern is reflected in aircraft reports of ice in the clouds of southern Oklahoma.

Another very cold night was in store for the East but by Wednesday the Atlantic States will begin to feel the rising temperature trend which has already taken hold over the Plains and Midwest.

Some snow is likely across colder northern border areas from the Plains to northern Maine but winds will diminish in the northeast.

Rain should spread from Texas eastward through the Gulf states and moisture feeding northward may form fog and drizzle through Missouri to Iowa. Foggy, rainy weather will move into Oklahoma and icy conditions may result from freezing temperatures in northern parts of the state.

Attorney General: U.S. Won't Grant Asylum to Batista

WASHINGTON — Attorney General William Rogers said Tuesday ousted Cuban Dictator Fulgencio Batista will not be granted political asylum in the U.S.—but that he could probably enter as an ordinary foreign entrant.

The former Cuban "strong man," presently in exile in the Dominican Republic, is reportedly planning to return to his U.S. home at Daytona Beach. Several members of his family are already there.

Havana Gamblers Playing It Cool

HAVANA — Operators of the big gambling casinos are playing a waiting game to see if the new provisional president means what he said.

Several casino owners, however, indicated that the covers will come off the crap tables and roulette wheels after the tourists start pouring into Cuba again.

U.S. Has a Problem: Gun-Running Charges

The federal government is wondering what to do about those Cubans facing gun-running charges in this country. Indications are the U.S. will be lenient.

Cuban Communists Claim Some Credit for Victory

Red spokesmen, who took partial credit for Castro's victory, declared, "The U.S. is an enemy of Cuba's independence and conspired to set up a military junta to take over when Batista fled the country."

U.S. Envoy Called to Capital

U.S. AMBASSDAOR to Cuba Earl E. T. Smith passed through Miami Tuesday en route to Washington while spokesmen for the new Castro-Urrutia government demanded his recall.

The ambassador's only comment was, "I am going to Washington for consultation."

In Havana, leaders of the new regime were preparing a petition asking that Smith be removed from office for "openly showing his hostility to Castro."

3 Havana Flights Resumed

THREE of the four U.S. airlines serving Havana—PAA, National and Delta—announced Tuesday they had resumed operations interrupted by the Cuban revolution.

The fourth line, Braniff, which serves Havana from Houston, Tex., said it has been unable to resume flights to Cuba because of destruction of its ticket counter and other facilities in Havana.

Hands Off Cuba, Says Fascell

He urged diplomatic recognition of the new government by the U.S. as soon as possible.

Seminoles Fire Counsel

O. B. White, Miami attorney for part of the Seminole tribe, has been fired because of charges he made against Indian Affairs officials in Washington.

The Seminole Tribal Council, meeting in Dania, took the action because of charges made by White last week against the Indian Affairs Bureau in Washington and the Indian Agency in Dania.

White had said the two groups were plotting "a dirty deal" in connection with a lease for valuable property along State Road 7.

First Polar Satellite Effort Near

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— The world's first polar-orbit satellite is expected to be launched from the West Coast within the next few days.

It may carry some form of life—perhaps a mouse—to test the hazards man will encounter when he first soars into space.

This launching, from a pad at Vanderberg Air Force Base 170 miles north of Los Angeles, will open a program of space research at the vast new Pacific missile range, stretching 500 miles along the California coast.

The satellite will be the first of a dozen or more to be fired this year as part of Project Discoverer. Its 1,300-pound weight will be blasted aloft by the 150,000-pound thrust of a Douglas Aircraft Co. Thor missile.

An additional thrust from a Bell-Hustler rocket made by Lockheed Aircraft Corp. will accelerate it to the 18,000 miles an hour necessary for orbital flight.

Little Rock's Integration Struggle Can't Go On and On, Judge Declares

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — (UPI) — Federal Judge John E. Miller said Tuesday that the long legal struggle over integration at Little Rock "cannot go on and on and on" and promised to issue an order by week's end on a mandate of the U.S. Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals.

The mandate of the St. Louis court directed him to prevent leasing of the city's four closed high schools and to order immediate "affirmative steps" by the school board to integrate the four high schools, closed by Gov. Orval Faubus to block integration.

"There comes a time when we must settle on some course of action," said Judge Miller. "This kind of litigation cannot go on, and on and on."

But in the hearing, an attorney for a new school board indicated he expects further court action and after the court session an attorney for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People predicted more legal maneuvering.

Herschel Friday, the lawyer for the school board, asked Judge Miller not to define exactly what affirmative steps it should take to comply with the mandate, and asked for more time so the new board can become acquainted with the integration controversy.

"You mean you're suggesting the order should direct the board to report back to the court in a certain number of days what affirmative steps it has taken?" Miller asked.

"In substance, yes," Friday replied, ". . . We don't think the court should attempt to spell out affirmative steps and certainly not that the schools should be opened immediately."

"I think the order means this," Branton said, "the District Court should say to the school board and its superintendent, "you go out there and carry out the plan of integration . . . You can do this only by having your schools open."

Astrologer Picks Date, But Rules Out Townsend, Plunkett

Stars Say Meg Will Marry—But Whom?

PRINCESS MARGARET will be married in 1959, Britain's top astrologer predicts—but the bridegroom won't be Peter Townsend or Lord Plunkett, the most-often mentioned possibilities.

And the likeliest date, according to the star reading by William Tucker—is Sept. 17.

Tucker, who is president of the Federation of British Astrologers, did not name the man he thought the 28-year-old princess would marry. But he says he probably will be a Scorpio type — born between Oct. 23 and Nov. 21.

Townsend, whom Margaret turned down in 1955, was born Nov. 12, 1914. Lord Plunkett, currently linked by gossip writers with the princess, was born Sept. 8, 1923.

Tucker said in London that the Queen's horoscope shows "she will have an emotional disturbance in May connected with a personal and family matter.

"I deduce from this she will take a decision concerning the marriage of her sister, Princess Margaret.

"The princesses' horoscope gives a very exciting year for her. A decision concerning her future will be taken in May.

"Her stars indicate contemplation of marriage and suggest her desire will be rendered effective this year. The date of Thursday, Sept. 17, is highly suggestive for the actual wedding."

Eddie Fisher's TV Show Dropped

EDDIE FISHER'S television show will be dropped March 17, a spokesman for the crooner said in Hollywood, Calif.

Did the Eddie-Debbie Reynolds-Elizabeth Taylor triangle have anything to do with it?

But unofficially, a network source confided: "It's strictly a matter of low ratings." Although there is no doubt that Eddie's marital troubles caused some headshaking among the brass.

'Ready and Willing' Says Newcombe

Trial of the Cincinnati Redlegs' pitcher, scheduled Monday in New Jersey, was postponed to Jan. 26 because Newcombe was reported to be barnstorming in Venezuela.

But a puzzled Newcombe said Tuesday in Colonia, N.J., which is quite a ways from Venezuela, "I haven't left the city." He explained he had asked for the postponement because he has a new lawyer, who wants more time to familiarize himself with the case.

Inger Stevens' Condition Better

ACTRESS Inger Stevens was reported Tuesday to be improving although still in a coma as a result of swallowing what police described as a caustic solution.

At Columbus Hospital in New York City, a spokesman said the 24-year-old blonde movie star was "responding satisfactorily to treatment." She was rushed to the hospital in critical condition Sunday after her apartment superintendent found her sprawled unconscious across her bed.

Police said Miss Stevens may have drunk cleaning fluid, but they found no bottles, vials or notes in the apartment.

Sophia Poohs Bigamy Talk

SEXY SOPHIA LOREN says she's going back to Italy next spring despite reports that she might be jailed for bigamy if she returns.

"This is old stuff," the Italian actress said. "Someone in Italy started the story a year ago. I'm going home in four or five months to work on a picture, and I'm not a bit afraid."

The government there recognizes only a church-approved annulment for a couple married in a Catholic ceremony. Sophia, 24, and Carlo Ponti, 46, a film producer, were married by proxy in Mexico in 1957 after he obtained a Mexican divorce from Guiliana Fiasti.

Adoption Limit Change Asked

PEARL S. BUCK, novelist, has proposed a three year limit on the time an adoption case can be reopened by the child's natural parents.

"I suggest that after three years no adoption case can be reopened," she told a hearing before a New York state joint legislative committee.

During the proposed period, Miss Buck said, a natural parent should have to get the support of an official trained in adoption procedure before trying to recover the child.

Cuba's Main Chance — If It Works

Firm Hands On The Reins

CUBA'S provisional president, Manuel Urrutia, seems to have grasped the power thrust at him with firm and knowing hands.

One of his first acts was to abolish martial law and reassert the civil authority.

Another was to subjoin Fidel Castro in renouncing censorship, which Castro properly defined as a weapon for those with "something to hide."

Still another was to proclaim a new constitution guaranteeing civil rights under an "honest and democratic" regime.

And then he chose a cabinet whose makeup — at first glance, anyway — suggests the conciliation of all responsible factions which opposed the Batista regime.

THUS for the time, Senior Urrutia is the principal actor on the Havana stage. Some considerable order has been brought out of civic chaos, and in a remarkably short time. That order will be solidified when it is clear—as it is now promised—that Cuba can return to the pursuits of wealth and happiness with its business structure unimpaired and the rights of foreigners protected.

In all of this, the role of Castro himself is as yet a question mark.

He is moving slowly to consolidate the military aspects of his revolution. Though he has welcomed contacts with the press, he remains behind the scenes. He has not yet appeared in Havana. He has taken no office save that of chief of staff of the army.

Yet this post alone is one of tremendous power. Indeed, Batista occupied it for seven years before he first sought the presidency. Since Castro literally made the revolution and at present sustains it, his future role is circumscribed with the giant question mark that must surround every military leader who comes to power violently — is he to be "strong man" or moderate leader and participant in a civil government dedicated to democratic ideals?

IT IS common in revolutions to invoke the names and aims of patriots, and so we hear again the great name of Jose Marti, Cuba's liberator, poet and martyr whose monument, incidentally, stands in Bayfront Park.

At one juncture in history Marti moaned: "There lies Cuba, wounded in the forehead, wounded in the heart, and tied to the chair of torture."

Political chaos and bloodshed over the years (and the corruption that sometimes passes for order) have made Marti's words applicable for much of this century. Now there is a time of testing whether this burden can be lifted forever from the backs of Cubans by sincere and dedicated patriots.

Cuba's friends will hope so. That enchanted island is young and immature as nations go. All hemispheric states save Cuba and Panama were free by 1825, and it was only at the dawn of this century that Cuba tasted independence — at first a heady elixir.

His Boots Helped Set Our Strides

"UNCLE JIM" Bright developed an early love for horses and people. He never lost it in the 93 eventful years that closed with his death Monday.

He was a little man in build. But he was big in the stature by which men are gauged.

He associated himself with men of vision—aviation pioneer Glenn H. Curtiss in building the thriving City of Hialeah, flamboyant Joe Smoot in promoting Hialeah Race Course and Joseph E. Widener in turning it into the great winter racing center that it is.

He outlived them all to see even their fondest dreams surpassed.

Florida is the better because James H. Bright chose it for his home in 1909. He built cities, profitable institutions and improved the breed of cattle and thoroughbreds.

He was not a man to trample anyone or anything under the boots he affected, not to increase his height but because of his love of horses. Few men could match his stride as a friend of people and animals.

We Can Use Big Thinking

IN HIS TALK to directors of the Miami-Dade County Chamber of Commerce, Port Authority Director George M. McSherry showed a capacity for big thinking. Greater Miami needs more of that.

He was explaining what must be done to meet the needs of aviation here in the near future. But Mr. McSherry didn't speak from the narrow viewpoint of one who knows his specialty and nothing more. On the contrary, he described the relation between airport planning and other facets of the community's growth.

For instance, he outlined the facts which will determine whether this city's second major air terminal should be built north or south of Miami International Airport.

Mr. McSherry noted that the present trend of population in Southeast Florida is northward, into Broward County. However, if a causeway is built from South Dade to the Upper Keys, the development of 45,000 island acres there could balance the increasing weight of population to the north.

In that event, the logical place for Dade County's second airport would be in South Dade rather than in Broward County.

Mr. McSherry pursued this line of thought by analyzing the outlook for the Strategic Air Command's base near Homestead. Such installations, he said, may be replaced by small launching pads within 10 years.

The prospect may startle many who view the jet bombers at the SAC base as a permanent part of the scene here. But Mr. McSherry is looking ahead, in the light of work being done now on new kinds of air weapons.

It will take broad-gauged thinking of this order to build soundly for the Greater Miami of tomorrow, in the air as on the ground.

Mr. McSherry should be freed to go ahead. His ability should be concentrated on important matters instead of wasted in fending off critics, whether sincere or discredited, and there are some of both.

What It Is, Is 'Water Control'

"FLOOD CONTROL" seems to be one of those terms that everyone interprets to suit himself.

Those who want swampy lowlands dried up think it means nothing but drainage. Contrariwise, officials worried about salt from the sea creeping into wells which yield drinking water, look to flood control to keep a protective head of fresh water at a high level inland.

In South Florida, at least, "flood control" should be called "water control" because its purpose is not only to get rid of excess water in wet seasons but store it for use in dry periods.

The end product of that kind of control is to dewater some land which otherwise would be under water much of the time, and to raise the water table in areas set aside as reservoirs.

People who don't like what's being done sneer at the work as "land reclamation," which is silly. All the money being spent on canals, dikes and pumps would be wasted if it didn't make more land more usable for more people.

EVEN SOME of the flood-controllers themselves seem to be a little mixed up in their thinking. We have in mind a remark attributed the other day to a Flood Control District man who was talking about the 265 square miles of lowlands west of Miami but inside the long dike running north and south in the Everglades about 15 miles west of the coastline.

He said the federal Corps of Engineers regards that as "strictly urban land improvement," not eligible for flood control work.

Let's pause right there. Up around Lake Okeechobee and elsewhere, the flood-controllers are busy pumping water off farmland and pasture which nature made about as unusable as some of the shoals in Biscayne Bay.

If "land improvement" is all right for ranchers and farmers, why not for city folks?

That is the root of dissatisfaction with the program in Dade County, which foots the lion's share of the bill for the Flood Control District. The flood-controllers, like a good many other people, need to redefine their terms and apply the result without discriminating in favor of rural as against urban areas.

Up In The Air For The Season

FOUR BALLOONISTS from England have proved their point. They were hauled ashore in Barbados, near the coast of South America, after drifting 3,000 miles across the Atlantic on the trade winds which propelled the ships of explorers nearly 500 years ago.

Their voyage was made only partly by air. They floated the rest of the way in the balloon's plastic basket. Other details of the trip are reserved for the London newspaper which footed the bill for the stunt.

Still, on a tiny, crowded island like Barbados, the landing of four travelers in a balloon's gondola can't be kept secret. People lined the shore to get a look at the travelers, much as the aborigines must have turned out to see the first men from Europe.

Indeed, the lone woman from the balloon's crew stepped ashore with head held high, as triumphantly as a Viking, or perhaps we should say Vikingess.

We're glad they landed safely. Looking back, though, the period spent on the journey — Dec. 12 to Jan. 5—makes it seem a crazy way to spend the Christmas-New Year's holiday season.

Game Forgotten For Regatta

Editor The Herald: After the stimulating and exciting telecast of the regatta it appears to be appropriate to send congratulations to the Orange Bowl regatta committee for splendid coverage of a superb performance. This show represents one of the finest telecasts of the year, a statement which reflects the views of thousands among our unseen audience.

Some 18 football enthusiasts gathered in my living room in eager anticipation of the game of the year — the New York Giants vs. the Baltimore Colts. Prior to the game I switched on my set and brought in the regatta. Here, I thought, is a stroke of luck — an interesting and colorful "fill in" event which will entertain the holiday gathering during the football warm-up activities.

To my delight and complete astonishment — (there were three former football captains in the group) — all insisted upon watching the regatta telecast to the end. That, in a football minded community, is an unparalleled action and in itself offers some evidence of the appeal of your production.

The sight of Biscayne Bay once again rekindled an inner urge to return to old Miami. I lived there for 18 months during World War II. And, judging from statements advanced by many viewers there will be others, too, who will trek down if for no other purpose than to point out to a skeptic wife the area over which a complacent elephant once skied lightly.

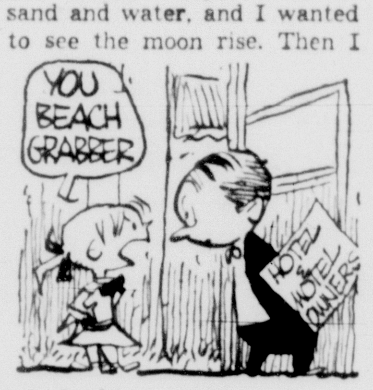
She Couldn't See The Beautiful Sea

Editor The Herald: As I was riding along looking at the hotels and motels on Miami Beach, I expected to see sand and water, and I wanted to see the moon rise. Then I asked when we were going to get out of the car and go to Miami Beach. I found out that we were already on it!



I am 12 years old. I live in Illinois close to Chicago where almost all of the beaches are public beaches.

I thought hotels wouldn't grab almost all of the swimming area. I have heard that other people are also complaining and now I know how they feel and what they mean.

What Is Local These Jet Days?

Editor: The Herald: Should hate bombing be a federal crime?

I do hope that those in Washington realize that when a jet plane takes only 90 minutes to get from New York to Miami then no place in the United States can be considered local any more.

We are local to Washington, but next door neighbors to each other.

Bowl Edition Wins A Skeptic

Editor The Herald: Ever since you gave the information that the Orange Bowl special edition would be available for out-of-town mailing, I have had my list for mailing to friends, in my home town.

But numerous times I have been disappointed in the finished product being different from that which has been advertised. (Not your paper, but other so-called come-on ads.)

This time I decided to wait and see the finished edition myself. More than the small investment, I wanted to see if it would be something that I could be proud of in sending back to the folks at home and saying:

"Here is the city that has finally captured my heart and where I will be located permanently. If you ever want to change, come to Miami."

Your paper has done a wonderful job.

Economic System Breeds Inflation

Editor The Herald: Only an economic bird-brain would be satisfied with G. H. Doorly's complacency concerning inflation. The complete story should include the fact that inflation and depression, or boom and bust, are inherent in the free enterprise economic system. Inflation can be controlled by laws that will impose ceilings on wages and prices at the same time.

Contrary to Wall St. big business propaganda, increases in wages in many cases could be paid from bloated company profits.

In addition there is an increase in productivity when more bolts and other products are made by automation. But there is a decrease in mass purchasing power when workers are laid off and are unable to buy the products they helped to produce.

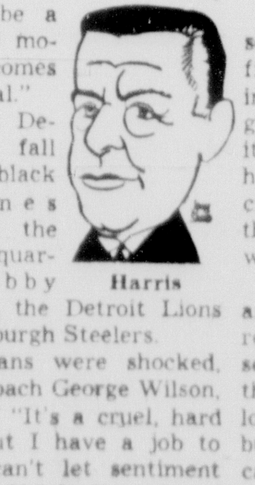
Strictly Personal

Pro Sports No Hit With Syd

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"PROFESSIONAL sports" don't interest me, because I think the phrase is a contradiction in terms. An activity ceases to be a "sport" the moment it becomes "professional."



Harris

I was in Detroit this fall when big black headlines announced the trading of quarterback Bobby Layne from the Detroit Lions to the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Detroit fans were shocked, but Lions' coach George Wilson, said simply: "It's a cruel, hard business. But I have a job to do and I can't let sentiment enter into it. If I do, I'm licked."

It's a cruel, hard business. So is every professional sport — baseball and basketball and hockey and golf and tennis. It's mean and mercenary and basically inhuman — when the whole idea of "sport" should be its humanity.

RECREATION was devised so that men could find release from the grim business of making a living; so that they could glory in winning a contest for its own sake. The Olympic heroes of ancient Greece were crowned with laurel because they showed what men could do with no incentive but victory.

Take sentiment out of sports and you take away its original reason for existence. Remove sentiment and you have cut the loyalty that clings to a losing team; and little is left but to raise the money that can buy a winning team.

It is good and necessary that men should work for a living. It is a monstrous perversion that men should play for a living. The whole purpose of play is to escape to a realm beyond necessity, to a glorious never-never land, where the skillful and the fleet and the courageous can find a happy ending that is too often denied them in the cold market place.

IN TRUE sports, the contestants are ranged against each other. In professional sports, they are ranged against the public. Their ultimate object is to attract as many customers as possible. They are merchandisers and promoters and box-office accountants.

There is nothing at all wrong in being any of these things — but let us not pretend that what we have is "sport." What we have is business, transferred from the counter to the stadium. A cruel, hard business, where the Bobby Laynes are as disposable as so many boxes of stale merchandise.

Pork Chop Gang Plays Good Poker

By JOHN PENNEKAMP

RECENTLY I wrote about the suggestion of a Miami lawyer that all lawyers contribute to a common fund, the money to be used to compensate persons who may be defrauded by lawyers.

With some 7,000 lawyers in the state, he pointed out, it is normal that a few go bad, casting suspicion on all. He recommended his fund as an instrument, among other things, for preserving the dignity of the bar and the respect of lawyers.

Pennekamp

Calls from other attorneys and judges indicated that approving interest in the subject is pretty wide and authority for such a fund may be asked of the Legislature meeting in April. Oregon, which like Florida has an integrated bar, has such a fund. Each lawyer contributes $150 a year to it.

Vermont, where the bar isn't integrated, also has taken action along those lines, using an insurance plan.

MEMBERS of the so-called small county block in the Florida Senate like to refer to themselves, and to be referred to, as the Pork Chop Gang.

By a closely-knit log rolling confederation they have successfully prevented reapportionment, despite the Constitution, for nearly 20 years, making the disproportion in Florida about the worst in the nation.

Recently The St. Petersburg Independent, irritated by the politics-slanted state prison administration probe by a committee dominated by Pork Choppers, applied a new appellation to them.

"We admire the gentlemen of this committee, pretty much the core of the medieval bloc," it wrote, "less for their political philosophy than for their ability to fill an inside straight.

"That they should be in sharp opposition to Gov. LeRoy Collins, who thus far has staunchly backed Culver (state prison director) is not surprising.

"Collins defeated Johns (Sen. Charley Johns of Starke in whose district the state prison is located) for the post of governor by popular choice.

"The other two (Sen. Harvey Belser of Bonifay and Sen. Harry Stratton of Callahan) have done some of his legislative proposals no good at all."

A significant item is that the St. Petersburg newspaper's comment in full was prominently reprinted in The Pensacola Journal, which circulates in the heart of one strong Pork Chop section.

HOWEVER, the next day, Don Meiklejohn, writing from Tallahassee in The Journal, attempted to justify some Pork Chop conduct — race track money, for instance.

"The argument comes up," he says, "when someone down in Miami discovers Dade County gets the same amount as every other county in the state from the race track money."

Fact is that while this is sometimes deplored in these parts, I have never heard it seriously pressed here. John McLeod's effort to cut the state in two attracted far more attention.

Meiklejohn also defends road department spending pointing out that the Legislature "passed a new road code (1954) that put primary road construction on a need basis."

Let's see how it has worked:

Last year four of the five road department districts overspent from $2,410 to $4,618,995 while this district wound up with a $3,260,393 surplus.

Why? Under a road department ruling the county must provide the right-of-way, using no part of the primary money. Right-of-way here is so expensive the county can't afford it.

By borrowing on its future, Dade County now is breaking through that senseless blockade which heretofore has seen millions of dollars of our surplus going to areas that needed roads primarily to build politicians' prestige.

As Others See It

U.S. Press Eyes Cuba And Castro Revolution

Cuba Libre?

The Hartford Courant

It takes an optimist to believe Cuba is now on the road to stability. It is encouraging that in several Latin American countries there has finally appeared, at least fleetingly, a genuine desire to achieve genuine self-government. The trouble is that in the past Cuba, in the words of The London Times, has always "oscillated uneasily between the rule of a liberal faction, denounced by its adversaries as hopelessly corrupt, and that of a military junta, no less categorically condemned as tyrannical."

●

A Cuban Dictator Falls

The New York Times

In this hour of triumph and trial the United States has an opportunity that must not now be missed. Americans should not delude themselves. The policy followed by the State Department, the Pentagon, the American Embassy in Havana and a large part of the American business community has built up an antagonism that will make the situation diplomatically difficult. Cuban sentiment is overwhelmingly anti-American in the same sense it was in Argentina and Venezuela, which is to say there is resentment against American policies. However, no people in the hemisphere have a more friendly feeling toward the American people or more respect for the United States as a nation. Cuba will need our help desperately in these coming months and it must be given with generosity and understanding.

●

What Next In Cuba?

The Atlanta Journal

Cuba's problem now is to keep today's rescuers from tyranny from turning into tyrants themselves, for that is the course the island's history has been taking lately . . .

The forces behind Castro are diverse and united mainly by their hatred for Batista. There are bound to be Communists among them. Now that Batista is gone the problem will be to keep the Communists from taking advantage of this made to order situation, and making a grab for power themselves.

Top Concern For U.S.

The Detroit Free Press

ONE THING IS CERTAIN: the United States has a right to expect a friendly and cooperative Cuba.

If that idea is offensive to those who insist upon a hands-off policy as far as Latin America is concerned, let them be offended.

But a Cuba that cozys up to Communism, which could provide a convenient base for subversive activities against the United States, must not be tolerated.

Climax In Cuba

The Washington Post

The New Year began with a bang in Cuba, but whether it will end in a whimper depends to a good extent on the wisdom and self-restraint of Fidel Castro. The young rebel has so far shown a genius for military strategy but is untested as a political leader . . .

For Castro, history has brought the same opportunity that once was presented to Batista. In 1933, Batista led the famous "sergeants' revolt" against the Machado dictatorship and was hailed as a great liberator. Castro too now wears the mantle of a liberator. Time will tell whether his performance will keep that mantle undiscolored by excessive personal ambition or reckless folly.

The Upheaval In Cuba

New York Herald Tribune

This much is certain — the Batista quarter-century era is through. Fidel Castro, who has been fighting a guerrilla war for the last twenty-five months, is plainly coming up fast. He is still pretty much of an enigma in this country; whether the insurgent leader can force peace and bring economic stability are big questions right now.

Meanwhile the United States is pursuing exactly the right policy—keep hands off and see what happens. This country has always been a particular friend of Cuba and the Cubans. We intend to remain so.

●

Good News For Cuba

The Chicago American

That young Fidel Castro could bring this to pass is a heartening miracle at a time when many persons, including Cubans, feared that his force was helpless before the terror of Batista's army and police . . .

But only one man — this young lawyer with intense political consciousness and a history of sympathy with liberal, if not leftist, movements—had the persistence and courage to fight this tough but tiring little Caesar.

All credit to Castro and his little band. So far they have served their native land well.

Will Johnson Brand Senate As a One-Man Operation?

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Most interesting question discussed in Senate cloakrooms as the 86th Congress convenes is:

"Will this be a Lyndon Johnson Senate or a Democratic Senate?"

PEARSON

This general question was first raised two years ago when Adlai Stevenson, Harry Truman, Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, Gov. "Soapy" Williams of Michigan, Democratic Chairman Paul Butler, and others started the Democratic Advisory Committee for the specific purpose of keeping Democratic senators from coming under the exclusive influence of the likable, efficient Senate leader from Texas.

Whether or not this committee can claim credit, Lyndon last year proved an able, on the whole, farsighted leader. His views didn't deviate much from those of the advisory committee.

This year the committee is again riding herd benignly on the gentleman from Taxas.

Lyndon in turn has been getting out the political branding irons to see which of the new Democratic senators he can brand with "LBJ," the brand of his ranch in Texas.

Of course those who get branded won't even know it. For Lyndon is a political salesman without peer. He can talk the average freshman senator into teaming up with him without twisting his wrist at all.

He doesn't indulge in blackmail. He's discreet, helpful, solicitous for the new senator's future.

HERE IS HOW the 15 new Democratic senators are being sorted out into two groups —the mavericks who will vote their own conscience and those who will submit to the LBJ branding iron:

SEN. CLAIR ENGLE of California — a tough, battle-seasoned graduate of the House of Representatives who will take no one's branding iron.

EUGENE McCARTHY of Minnesota — another tough, battle-seasoned House veteran. He will take orders from no one.

GALE McGEE of Wyoming — Will probably wear the LBJ brand. Sen. Joe O'Mahoney has said he expects to turn over Wyoming chores to the young senator.

HOWARD CANNON of Nevada — Will probably take the LBJ brand. He's a little overawed at being elected to the U.S. Senate.

ERNEST GRUENING of Alaska — A maverick. He has already declared himself publicly against the 27½ per cent depletion allowance which is sacred to Johnson.

BOB BARTLETT of Alaska — An independent. Knows the ropes from long experience and is not likely to get branded.

ED MUSKIE of Maine—Will be inclined to take the LBJ brand. He will be a popular addition to the Senate.

STEVE YOUNG of Ohio — A maverick. Young was considered a political nobody when he first announced against John Bricker, long considered unbeatable. Young will turn out to be one of the surprises of the new Senate. He is determined to serve one term only and serve well.

FRANK MOSS of Utah — Untried, untested, and didn't really expect to win. Therefore he may lean on Lyndon.

JENNINGS RANDOLPH of West Virginia —Conscientious, experienced in the House of Representatives, will bear the LBJ brand most of the time.

TOM DODD of Connecticut — Will submit to the LBJ brand with a reasonable amount of docileness.

This is the probable lineup of the biggest assortment of new Democratic senators in recent history.

NOTE—Few mavericks could argue too much with Lyndon Johnson's policies last year. They were good. What they and the Truman-Stevenson committee do argue with is that his is a one-man, not a Democratic rule.

In Cuba, they remind, Fulgencio Batista was once a great hero.

Soviet Halts A-Test Plans, Despite Gromyko's Threats

By MILT FREUDENHEIM
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The Russians have halted nuclear weapons test preparations, despite Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko's threats to set off new explosions.

This information, available from Western intelligence reports, means the world may expect at least six months more without any nuclear blasts.

Freudenheim

Meanwhile, The Miami Herald-Chicago Daily News Service obtained the inside story behind Monday's White House announcement on test ban inspection problems.

The White House said new information shows it is more difficult than had been thought to tell underground bomb tests apart from small earthquakes.

Earlier, East-West technical experts had thought they had a 90 per cent sure detection system for underground explosions as small as five kilotons.

But these calculations were based on only a single American underground test.

Now, with four more such tests, the West's figures have changed radically. However, the new margin of error estimates are not expected to upset agreement on a controlled test ban, Western sources say.

The hazards of being caught exploding a small bomb underground would be far worse for the culprit nation, it is felt, than any advantages to be gained by cheating at these odds.

Worldwide dismay at those last two Russian tests has made resumption extremely unlikely as long as East-West test-ban talks continue at Geneva.

However, the U.S. State Department is under heavy pressure from the Pentagon and Atomic Energy Commission either to come up with a global no-test control system or else let American testing resume.

Every test takes about six months and often millions of dollars to prepare.

If the Geneva talks do not produce pay dirt by March, there will be major demands by the military and their congressional allies to start preparing tests for next fall, after a 12-month moratorium.

A Cracker Viewpoint by Nixon Smiley

Farm Boy Has No Mule Now

AMATEUR HUMORISTS are always ready to declare that they have worked for many a jackass, but how many persons can truthfully say that they have worked for a mule?

I have. And so has anyone else who lived on a farm in the days before farms became mechanized.

We used mule-power, man-power and boy-power.

I supplied the latter, and in such generous quantities that it might well be classed as man-power.

SMILEY

A mule is, in a way, like a tractor, in that both use fuel. But the mule, unlike a tractor, can't be parked and forgotten. A mule eats every day in the year, whether working or not.

And you can feed several men on the corn needed to feed one jar-head.

How much land we set aside to grow feed for the mules I have no way of measuring, but the picture of our corn field which still hangs in my memory looms rather large.

We must have planted about as many acres in corn as we did in all other crops combined, including cotton, tobacco and peanuts.

TODAY, THE AGRICULTURE Department tells us, a farmer produces food and fiber for himself and 23 others.

Well, I can't say how much fiber we produced, but the food we produced was hardly more than enough for ourselves and for our mules. I don't recall that we had corn to sell.

What we didn't shuck and sell and take to the grist mill for making grits and meal for the table went mostly to the mules.

And since my folks believed in feeding their mules well, of keeping them round, sleek and sassy, a large percentage of the corn crop was consumed by them.

Being of a rather sensitive nature, I used to consider the daily work done by our mules — how they pulled a plow in the sweltering sun all day, and with nothing to look forward to but a cool drink and a bin full of corn in the evening.

Mules receive no pay, I thought, and had no future. It was certainly a boring life, and one without purpose.

Thus was the way I kept my mind occupied while walking behind a mule, my hands firmly clasped to a plow or cultivator.

I don't recall whether I considered how much work I was doing for the mule.

Nor do I recall whether I considered my own narrow existence.

No doubt I did, because I used to plan my future while plodding down the corn rows in the hot sunshine. And while my future turned out to be quite different from what I perhaps planned, I can assure you that in the life I planned for myself there were no mules.

In the meantime I have watched with interest the tremendous progress that has been made in farming in the South; and I have often thought about the rather primitive farming we practiced when compared with farming today.

What a difference it was in the days when so much of our efforts went into subsistence farming — of producing food for ourselves and for our mules.

Like other farmers, we also had a garden, a sugarcane patch, sweet potato patch, chickens, a milk cow and hogs. There was work to be done from early until late. There was work before school and after school, and chores to be done on Sundays and holidays.

How different is farming today from the mule-ridden farming I knew as a boy.

The mule is gone, and the land that was planted in corn for the mule is now growing some other crop.

The farmer may live in town, perhaps at the insistence of his wife. For living on a farm today must be a lonesome kind of life.

The barn is gone, and the animals it housed have gone with it. And so are the little flocks of chickens, the milk cow, the squealing shoats.

A few sentimentalists do keep a cow and a few chickens, and they may plant a little garden. But milk and eggs and vegetables, now mass-produced, are cheaper to buy at the grocery store.

All he has to look forward to is growing up in town, with no mules to work for and no farm chores to do, but only to play ball with his friends in the day time and spend the evenings roaming the juke joints with his fellow delinquents.

It sure must be a tough life.

Prophetic Picture?

Halleck at Last Has Overtaken Elusive Destiny

By Herald Wire Services

WASHINGTON — Charles Abraham Halleck of Indiana Tuesday overtook an elusive political destiny that his friends long have felt has been unfairly denied him.

His selection as the leader of the Republican minority in the House of Representatives raised 58-year-old Charlie Halleck from relative congressional obscurity. It put him in the fore of Republican leaders likely to figure large in determining the party's 1960 presidential ticket.

Without question, Halleck put himself in the van of those considered to be Eisenhower Republicans by unseating 74-year-old Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts, leader of House Republicans since 1939.

The stocky, peppery lawyer-soldier from Rensselaer, Ind., had seen political glory slip from his grasp with frustrating frequency in recent years.

It didn't go at all according to the script written by congressional old timers who believed up to the last that Martin would win. And it was a startling switch in Halleck's political fortunes.

THE 58-YEAR-OLD congressman can look back on a series of "almosts" dating from 1948 when he believed he had received the nod as the GOP vice presidential candidate.

There was unconfirmed talk in Capitol corridors that Thomas E. Dewey, the unsuccessful GOP presidential nominee in 1944 and 1948, had a hand in Tuesday's upset of Martin's 20-year reign.

When Dewey won the nomination, Halleck was immediately tabbed as Dewey's possible vice presidential choice.

But it was California's Gov. Earl Warren who got the nod later that night. Four years later Halleck was punished by the Taft forces—they left him off Indiana's convention delegation.

It is no secret among Republicans that these events engendered a bitterness in Halleck that was not softened by his role as second man to Martin.

It made itself known in various ways, but chiefly in personality and political clashes with Martin. As one House member summed it up, "there was bad blood between Joe and Charlie."

★ ★ ★

TWO OR THREE TIMES in in the past Halleck has made preliminary moves to challenge Martin for the House leadership. But it was not until Tuesday that he carried through.

Halleck was born in Jasper County, Ind., on Aug. 22, 1900. He was a Phi Beta Kappa scholar at Indiana University, graduating in 1924 with a law degree.

He was elected to five terms as prosecuting attorney in Jasper County, served in World War I as an infantryman, and was first elected to Congress in 1935. He has served continuously since.

DURING THE 80TH and 83rd Congress of 1947-48 and 1953;54 — when Republicans were in control—Halleck served as House GOP leader, with Martin as speaker. At other times, he has held no official party title but has been regarded as a sort of assistant leader.

Halleck's political philosophy appears to differ little from that of Martin. Both could be classed as conservatives. But there the comparison ends.

Halleck is a facile speaker, quick on repartee. Despite his long years in public life, Martin is not a nimble speaker.

Last Word

By DR. BERGEN EVANS

QUESTION: I have never understood why people who don't care what they do in their cars are called wreckless drivers. Why aren't they called wreckfull drivers?—B.M.

ANSWER: They aren't wreckless drivers — far from it. They are reckless drivers.

You have confused the common word wreck, meaning ruin or destruction, with the uncommon word reck, meaning heed or care. Reck was once a much commoner word than it now is. "Reck my rede," an old saying, meant "Heed my advice."

But reck now lingers in our vocabularies only as a part of the word reckless (— careless, heedless) and in its distant cousin reckon. A reckless driver is not one who is free from wrecks but one who is devoid of care — especially for others.

The confusion of the two words — apart from their sounding exactly alike — is made worse by the fact that reckless was formerly often spelled wreckless and by the additional fact that there is a rare word wreckless (Byron used it) meaning "that which can't be wrecked."

What Would U.S. Do Inside Soviet Ring?

By JOHN B. McDERMOTT

MOSCOW — "If Russia had bases in Mexico, Canada and Newfoundland and had its fleet maneuvering off your coast, wouldn't you be concerned?"

That question was put to me by one of the Soviet Union's most influential men, Daniel Fedorovich Kraminov, "American" editor of Pravda.

McDERMOTT

"Would you sleep well under such conditions?" he asked.

"Well, that is the way we Russians feel with American air bases ringing us from Western Europe, across North Africa to Turkey and Pakistan. And with your fleet coming within bombing range of our country."

RUSSIA, HE SAID, must be strong for defensive reasons.

This was his explanation for the Soviet military build up, a factor which has the United States on a virtual war production schedule to keep abreast of the danger from the East.

Kraminov's job is to direct news and editorials on matters involving both North and South America. His newspaper, Pravda, has the biggest circulation of any daily in the world — just under six million.

WHAT ABOUT intercontinental ballistic missiles which have changed the theory of war drastically?

"Of course you can worry about these now," the English-speaking editor declared "But that has been only in the last two or three years. Before that, the Soviet Union was not in such a strong position."

As for war between the U.S.S.R. and U.S.A. Kraminov thinks this is unlikely.

"I believe your people look too hard for something to be upset about," he said.

"If you Americans are afraid and concerned about Russia, then we have more to fear from you."

Odd Winners in Landslide

'Wonder Boys' in Congress

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON — The 86th Congress will have more than its share of political "wonder boys." Records dropped like flies in the Nov. 4 Democratic landslide.

Consider, for example, the election of James G. O'Hara, 33, of Shelby Township, Mich., to the 7th Michigan District.

O'Hara won the Democratic primary by just five votes, on a recount. He went on to win the November election by 2,862 votes. He is the first Democrat to represent the Thumb area of Eastern Michigan since 1895, and he was the only challenger to unseat an incumbent in the 18-member Michigan House delegation.

Quentin N. Burdick is the first Democrat to be elected to the House from North Dakota since it became a state in 1889.

★ ★ ★

SUCCESS in the election awaited several who had often tasted defeat. Robert W. Levering (D) succeeded on his fifth try for the House, after the incumbent died.

Randall S. Harmon (D., Ind.) ran three times as a Republican against Rep. Ralph Harvey (R., Ind.) without success. Harmon's wife suggested that he switch parties this time. He did, and won.

Rep.-elect James C. Oliver (D., Maine) is an old-new congressman. He is the first Democrat elected to the House on the 86th Congress. He served in the House from 1937-43 as a Republican. He has run for Congress seven times, four as a Republican, three as a Democrat.

ADOLPH ZUKOR, motion picture executive; born: Jan. 7, 1873, in Ricse, Hungary.

Paramount's chairman arrived in America with $25 sewed in his clothing, the story goes, and became a Hollywood fable. His first job was sweeper in a furrier shop. Zukor soon owned his own fur business. In 1903, he joined Marcus Loew in founding a chain of penny arcades, and later opened a chain of nickelodeons. Among stars he introduced to American picture audiences were Sarah Bernhardt, Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks.

Convicts Hear From the Pope

VATICAN CITY—(AP)—Pope John XXIII says the "hidden pains" of conscience felt by convicts would be a blessing to their "stricken families."

The pontiff, who visited a Rome jail at Christmas time, sent a message to convicts at the prison of Melun, France.

Pope John said the Lord will console and comfort the families of the convicts. The pontiff sent them his "fatherly apostolic blessing," adding that he would pray for the prisoners and their families.

Presumably the pope's message was in reply to a note received from Melun after his Rome jail visit.

Mikoyan Sticks to Berlin Line

Russian Candy for an American Baby
. . . Mikoyan met youngster in supermarket

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan indicated Tuesday Russia is standing firm on its demand for an end to four-power rule of Berlin.

He told this to newsmen after a more than two-hour review of foreign policy problems with Vice President Richard Nixon.

The 63-year-old Kremlin troubleshooter said Berlin was among the topics discussed during what he called a comprehensive exchange of views with Nixon.

Asked if Russia has changed its position in any way on Berlin, he replied:

"Why change it? One does not change a good position."

Mikoyan's comments, made outside Nixon's office in the Capitol, contrasted with hints he dropped earlier on a softening in Russia's position.

The meeting between Mikoyan and Nixon was arranged at the former's request. The Soviet embassy termed it a courtesy call by Mikoyan.

"We were very pleased that you suggested that we try to combat poverty together," Mikoyan said.

Mikoyan posed smilingly with Nixon for pictures before sitting down with his interpreter, Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov, for a private talk with the vice president. Nixon was flanked by Llewlyn Thompson, ambassador to Moscow, and Edward Freers, head of the State Department Soviet desk.

He smilingly wheeled a shopping cart through the aisles, directing Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov to pick out $9.29 in groceries. Menshikov paid while Mikoyan, seemingly fascinated, watched the checkout girl ring up his items on the electric cash register.

Mikoyan pulled a piece of Russian candy from an overcoat pocket and handed it to a six-month-old baby sitting in a shopping cart.

The baby is the son of a Washington metropolitan policeman who often helps his wife with the shopping.

Mikoyan made the surprise visit, Menshikov explained, because "he has read all about supermarkets and he wanted to see for himself."

Mikoyan's visit, frequently punctuated by placard-waving Hungarian pickets, struck another unfriendly note at luncheon time.

James B. Carey, head of the Electrical Workers Union, sponsored a buffet for the Soviet visitor in the Philip Murray building, directly across from the Soviet embassy.

However, AFL-CIO President George Meany avoided the affair, along with George Schnitzler, federation secretary-treasurer, and Vice Presidents L. H. Hayes and William Suffridge.

Mikoyan had broadly hinted earlier Monday at possible Soviet concessions to make any new deal over Berlin more acceptable to the Westren Big Three countries. One of these was reported to be formal guarantees of free access to the city via mail, water and air houtes.

Forced to Confess, She Says

FORT LAUDERDALE — Mary Welborn insisted on the witness stand Tuesday that she was driven to confess the slaying of Engineer Robert Lee by insistent questioning.

She denied killing Lee and charged that her signed and recorded confession was dictated by Sheriff's Deputy Montie Smith and Carl Christy, county investigator. The defendant is being tried on a second degree murder charge.

Lee was slain Christmas Day, 1957, while returning to Miami from a visit to the family of his fiancee in Belle Glade.

Money Pinch

TALLAHASSEE — Increased public school enrollment has made 55 Florida counties eligible for additional state aid money but the financial pinch won't permit full amounts to be paid.

School Superintendent Thomas D. Bailey said the counties were entitled to $6,431,580 in state recalculation funds to meet costs of the bigger enrollment. However, because of earlier cutbacks in state spending, there is actually only $3,629,747 available for them, he said.

Law Attacked

TALLAHASSEE—The State Supreme Court was asked Tuesday to invalidate Florida's 1957 law putting a $1,000 per acre limitation on the amount the state can pay growers for destruction of healthy trees in the controversial "pull and treat" method of eliminating spreading decline.

The court took the case under advisement after hearing oral arguments from attorneys on both sides. The case came up on appeal from Polk Circuit Judge Gunter Stephenson's ruling that the $1,000 per acre limitation is invalid.

School Moves

HOLLYWOOD — The general alarm fire that did between $200,000 and $300,000 damage to the main barracks at Riverside Military Academy Monday will force the school to return to its summer campus at Gainesville, Ga.

Transportation for the academy's 750 cadets was arranged Tuesday afternoon after an investigation of the damaged north wing indicated it could not be restored for even temporary use this winter.

Retrieves Cross

TARPON SPRINGS — Sam (Pinky) Mack, a strong swimmer and University of Florida freshman football player, retrieved the cross from Springs Bayou Tuesday afternoon.

By so doing he won the blessings of the Greek Orthodox Church in this Greek-American colony's 56th annual Epiphany ceremony.

Mack, 19, was one of more than 30 young Greek-Americans who dived into the chilly waters to retrieve the golden cross as hundreds of visitors watched.

State in Black

Ray Higgins, general auditor for the State Comptroller's Office, reported Tuesday the state treasury had a net balance of $3,809 on Dec. 31.

Meanwhile, collections of alcoholic beverage and cigaret taxes for the first half of the current fiscal year were up almost six per cent over the total for the corresponding period of last year.

Pool to Reopen

ST. PETERSBURG — The City Council voted Tuesday to reopen the Spa Beach and Pool but gave the city manager authority to close them again "if any emergency arises."

The council closed the municipal area last September when Negroes armed with a favorable U. S. Supreme Court ruling, tried to integrate it.

Presumably, the "emergency" clause in Tuesday's motion refers to further attempts by Negroes to use the Spa facilities.

Heart Fund Got $22 Million

NEW YORK—(AP)—The 1958 Heart Fund received a record total of $22,345,718 in contributions, it was announced.

Charles Perry McCormick, of Baltimore, national campaign chairman, said the 1958 figure was more than two million dollars above the $20,563,929 contributed to the fund in 1957.

U.S. Employe Rolls Decline

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) reported the number of federal employes dropped 765 in November from the October total of 2,355,482.

Federal employment dropped 18,693 in the first five months of the fiscal year which began July 1.

To Act as Booster

Salk Urges Fourth Shot of Vaccine

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—(UPI)—Dr. Jonas E. Salk, discoverer of polio vaccine, Tuesday advocated a fourth, or "booster," shot of the serum for full protection against polio.

Speaking at a symposium at the University of Michigan, Salk said some persons failed to get full protection from the first three shots of vaccine because commercially-produced serum was not up to the potency of that produced in his laboratory.

Salk said a more potent vaccine was desirable and attainable but a fourth shot of the vaccine now being manufactured by commercial producers would complete immunization of persons who were not completely protected by three doses.

Bare Facts, Ma'm: Police Need Pants

* * *

Shirt Not Enough

By EDDIE GONG
Herald Staff Writer

There are four rookies on the NORTH MIAMI police force who can't go to work for lack of pants.

The bare facts go like this.

* * *

THEN A SQUABBLE brewed between the City Council and the police department.

The police budget was slashed, but a legal counter-attack by the force kept the men on the job pending a final court decision on the city's action.

The four rookies graduated Dec. 19 and headed for their beats last week, only to discover the police wardrobe department could only provide hats, guns, belts, handcuffs and shirts.

No pants.

* * *

CHIEF KARL ENGEL put in a requisition for eight pairs of trousers costing $140. But City Manager Bob Youkey turned down the request.

STAFFORD

ENGEL

The plight of the rookies was brought to the attention of North Miami Chamber of Commerce President Roland Stafford.

He immediately sounded the alarm for a collection of funds among citizens and merchants for eight pairs of pants.

* * *

WE'VE ALMOST collected enough," Stafford said Tuesday night.

"We'll get the pants real soon," Stafford said hopefully.

Meanwhile the four rookies are wearing civilian clothes and working inside headquarters.

"It seems senseless to spend $6,000 training these men, only to lose their services for lack of trousers," snapped Chief Engel.

City Seeks Area For a 'Square-Up'

By PHIL FORTMAN
Herald Staff Writer

SOUTH MIAMI'S plans to annex patches of unincorporated area to square-up city limits drew strong protest Tuesday—and councilmen said it's up to Metro.

One councilman even suggested giving the county the ragged part of South Miami if the city can't get the land it wants.

Two delegates who said they represent 100 home owners protested the proposed annexation.

"I bought my property because I want to live in the county," said Mrs. Louella Moon, of 8512 SW Red Rd.

"We want to pay county taxes only," said John Sharp, 8530 SW Red Rd.

The two said they'd been sent as delegates.

South Miami wants to annex the land under a Metro law empowering municipalities to annex areas of 250 home owners or less.

"The entire question is up to the County Commission," council member Jean Willis said. A hearing is set for 10 a.m. Thursday before the Metro commission.

Acting Mayor Wallace Riniz warned the delegates:

"Dade county will eventually come along and raise your taxes to provide services."

"You'll save $10 per $1,000 assessed value just on fire insurance alone by coming in," Councilman Jack Block said.

Councilman Ed Conly added:

"If we can't squre up our boundaries, I think we should cut off on the north side of Miller Rd. from Red Rd. to Ludlum."

Plan Pushed For 60-Bed Hospital

A request to build a 60-bed hospital in SOUTH MIAMI was put before the city council Tuesday night.

It would be located on the fifth and sixth floors of the new half-million-dollar medical and professional building being built at SW 62nd Ave. and 74th St.

Dr. James F. Lyons, Coral Gables physician and surgeon who holds an interest in the building under construction, said there is a shortage of 30,000 hospital beds in Dade County.

The council referred the request to its zoning board for recommendations.

Homestead's Acting Chief Replaced; Probe Goes On

By JOY WINANS
Herald Writer

HOMESTEAD'S acting police chief was replaced Tuesday. As the Dade Grand Jury confirmed a probe of police affairs.

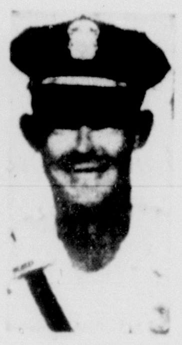
CANNON



DeWITT

In what appeared to be a preconceived agreement, the Homestead City Council approved Cannon's appointment without discussion.

Later, however, Councilman George Crimm declared:

"I told the mayor at a recent meeting that I've heard too much and where there is too much smoke there must be a little fire."

Crimm declined to elaborate.

Mayor Thomas Harris and Council president Henry Brooker Jr. both said that the public was not behind DeWitt.

Police Commissioner Stanley Wittkop commented that in his opinion, "DeWitt was doing a good job but the other six councilmen did not."

A drive to drop DeWitt crystalized in November when a Negro prisoner fought a gun duel with police officers after barricading himself in the Homestead jail.

The prisoner, Robert Shaffer, was killed by police shotgun blasts.

Councilmen denied the incident was directly responsible for DeWitt's removal — but admitted it didn't help him.

But it sparked an investigation by State Attorney Richard Gerstein's office and the grand jury.

A report critical of Homestead police activities is expected to be released soon by the jurors.

Cannon, 60, an attorney, resigned from the Miami Police Department early in 1958 after 30 years of service.

The lights went out.

The workmen, who didn't want to get electrocuted anyway, didn't know the city fathers were still meeting at 5 p.m.

City Clerk Loretta Sheehe ab-libbed a report about the April 14th elections, while Commissioner Robert Searle held a cigaret lighter aloft.

"This is the first time the Coral Gables commission has been in the dark," said Mayor Keith Phillips wryly.

"Haw!" came a reply out of the darkness.

Ole Swivel Chair's Got Him -- $10,000?

City Attorney William L. Pallot applied Tuesday for a full $10,000-a-year pension because of a fall last June from a swivel chair in his office.

The 46-year-old attorney, Miami's chief legal officer since November, 1957, said the fall brought on a series of heart attacks which have made it impossible for him to work as an attorney.

He is scheduled to be examined by Miami Medical Board three times between Jan. 20 and 26. The board's findings will be submitted to the city retirement board.

"I leaned back in my chair at the office and it toppled backward—one of the little wheels had fallen out," Pallot said.

Pallot has held the $15,000 post for more than one year and served as an unsalaried member of the Offstreet Parking Board 1950-57.

The Justice Department said Tuesday in Washington that the operator of Miami TV channel 10 and two unsuccessful bidders for the license should be barred from proceedings if the license is voided and put up for new bids.

The department said only one of the original contenders, L. B. Wilson, Inc., of Cincinnati, should be allowed to compete for the television channel.

It recommended that new applicants be allowed to compete for the station. Channel 10's present operator is Public Service Television, a subsidiary of National Airlines.

The two contenders recommended for exclusion are WKAT, of Miami Beach, and North Dade Video.

Judge Horace Stern, a special Federal Communications Commission examiner, has recommended that Public Service's license be voided, but did not go as far as the Justice Department's recommendation to exclude any of the original applicants.

Ex-Racer Will Speak

Retired Racing Driver Lee Wallard began a series of safety lectures in Dade County high schools Tuesday.

WALLARD

Sponsored by The Miami Herald and Champion Sparkplug Co., Wallard will appear in 10 high schools during his two-week Miami visit.

"Many youngsters look upon race drivers as daredevils," said Wallard, who won the Indianapolis 500-mile race in 1951 and retired shortly afterward.

Miami's probe of charges that city employes were on Cuban Dictator Fulgencio Batista's payroll ended Tuesday barely 24 hours after it began.

"There's absolutely no basis for believing that any city employe worked for the Batista government," said City Manager E. A. Evans who conducted the probe.

"It's amazing," said Mayor Robert King High, who ordered the investigation, "that Gen. Evans was able to complete it as quickly as he did."

The city manager quoted Ramirez as saying that he had been "misunderstood" in statements about ties of the Batista dictatorship with Miamians.

Dr. Edward Morot-Sir, of the French embassy, will present an award to the University of Miami's Department of Modern Languages today.

Dr. Morot-Sir will present the Chevalier Cross of the Order of Academic Palms to Dr. William P. Dismukes, department chairman, for distinguished service in interpreting the culture of France.

UAW Asks Wage Law Hike

REUTHER

DETROIT —(UPI)— United Auto Workers President Walter P. Reuther Tuesday laid down his union's six planks for the 86th Congress including a call for an increase in the federal minimum wage law to $1.25 an hour.

"As a part of the American labor movement, the UAW has given careful consideration to the matter of unemployment and has sought to devise means by which unemployment can be drastically reduced if not eliminated," Reuther said.

He said the UAW would call for early passage of a "depressed areas bill" which would help cities such as Detroit that are faced with "plant obsolescence and chronic unemployment" by giving aid which would bring in new industries.

Reuther said the union would ask for increased unemployment compensation benefits and require every state to meet a federal minimum as to duration.

Opening lead: Three of hearts.

Rose colored glasses are an essential part of a bridge player's equipment. Viewed through these lenses, a part score occasionally becomes distorted into a phantom game but, by and large, the optimist has a distinct edge over his sour faced antagonist. With all his natural advantages, however, the optimist could learn a thing or two from Calamity Jane of yesteryear. Jane could always see trouble brewing whether it existed or not and consequently would have landed on her feet had she been declarer in today's hand.

West led the three of hearts, the six was played from dummy, East won with the king. The jack of hearts was returned and declarer took the ace in dummy. With eight top card tricks in sight, declarer need but establish one additional trick in diamonds to fulfill contract. This appeared so simple a matter that declarer, without ceremony, laid down the ace and another diamond and in that instant tossed the game out the window.

When all appears to be going well, a fleeting thought might be given to the possibility of some major accident. The only one possible was four or five diamonds in one hand. If they all happen to be banked in the West hand, the play of the ace will be disastrous. With any other against such a disaster, declarer should have played a low diamond from dummy, intending to play the seven if an honor does not appear. Let us presume that the seven loses to the ten. Declarer then leads a diamond from his own hand and if an honor is not played, he inserts the eight from dummy. If the eight loses, the rest of the suit must fall. If it wins, there you are. If at the second trick West shows out, the ace is played from dummy and the return toward the queen establishes the second trick in the suit.

JACK ANDERSON—About TV

Balderdash of Pills Really Calls for Duel

ONE OF THESE DAYS there's going to be a duel in the early morning in New York's mist-enshrouded Central Park. Three, rather than the customary two, caped adversaries are going to be banging away at each other to the death.

The duelists will be the pitchmen on television for aspirin, Anacin and Bufferin.

ANDERSON

Their competition on TV for the use of our stomachs has reached the point now that there's nothing left but to try to kill each other.

I hope they settle matters before they kill the customers by scaring them into the grave.

It used to be the pill people settled for commercials extolling the virtues of their products without referring to the competition.

Then they went a step further. They began talking about the secret ingredient one had that the other didn't. Now they've started talking about what each other's secret ingredients will do to you if you don't watch out.

* * *

THE OTHER NIGHT I took one of the advertised tablets for a slight migraine. I settled down before my TV set to wait for the headache to pass away.

On the screen came the shouting commercial of the competitor to the firm whose pellet I had just slipped into my kisser.

I was told the tablet, now presumably disintegrating inside me, contained an intricately named acid. And what this would do to my stomach shouldn't happen to a dog.

It happens I'm pretty skeptical about advertising claims. But TV viewers more susceptible to this mularkey, to say nothing of being more squeamish about medicines than I am, must have felt they should reach for a stomach pump.

In the course of an evening's exposure to television the viewers are subjected to so many dire contradictions among the pill peddlers that it's hard to know whether any specific remedy is a cure or a cheap way of committing suicide.

Things have gone far enough, men. Take off those coats, put up those dukes and let's settle the pill problem once and for all.

A big show chopping operation is due at NBC soon . . . Jane Withers, the onetime movie moppet, is prepping a series that may replace one of the goners . . . Desilu has just about given up on Marie Wilson's "Ernestine" pilot . . . Jim ("Gunsmoke") Arness tried his shooting irons on boar during his Christmas vacation in Hawaii.

Jan Clayton nixed a Playhouse 90 bid to concentrate on her "Miss Bishop" series . . . George Gobel now has interests in 17 motor hotels around the landscape — his personal old-age insurance . . . Louis Armstrong and his first music teacher, 70-year-old Peter Davis, get together for another session on next Sunday's "You Asked For It." . . . Janis Paige's bow in "Chez Rouge" for Desilu-Westinghouse will be her last guesting before she starts her "Maisie" series . . . Jane Russell busts into "Ballad For A Badman" for the same series Jan. 26 . . . Fred Clark says he's missing out in the western trend because "Who ever heard of a bald-headed cowboy?"

CAUGHT CBS' blabbermouth game, Keep Talking, for the first time Sunday night. It's a diverting, sometimes hilarious, half hour. Two teams of comedians or comediennes match each other in trying to continue extemporaneously a story started for them by host Carl Reiner.

The teams are scored on their quickness in inserting a gag handed to them for working into their respective versions and on their ability to spot the gag in each other's narrative.

It's strictly a fun game. No prizes. And it's a real test of a comic. Keep Talking is no place for a script comedian. If he hasn't a do-it-yourself wit, he's sunk.

"Baritone" Tallulah Bankhead

. . . cuts up with Milton Berle at 9

7 p.m.

2 — SPEAKING SPANISH — Review and "What's the Date?"

4 — MOVIE — "Yankee Doodle Dandy," (1942), James Cagney. The story of the life of the famous songwriter, George M. Cohan.

2 — HEALTH FRONTIERS — "Tuberculosis."

7 — WAGON TRAIN — One of the gals on the train, noticing a frilly type among the new faces, comments "No honest woman would have all them fancy dresses in the wagon." Since the frilly type is Anne Baxter, you get a great demonstration of inner strength as Anne stands off all the whispering gals. She adopts an orphaned Indian lad who gets smallpox and only old Henry Hull takes her side.

10 — LAWRENCE WELK — Irving Berlin's "Annie Get Your Gun" will be sung by the trio of Janet Lennon, Cubby O'Brian and Brian Siebman.

2 — LIVING HEBREW — "Shopping With Mother."

8:30

4 — U. S. MARSHAL — Marshal Morgan is called to investigate the death of a federal agent who was about to expose a narcotics ring.

7 — THE PRICE IS RIGHT — live.

10 — OZZIE AND HARRIET — After completing his shopping, Ozzie drives his car home and discovers he has two stowaways in the back seat.

9:00

2 — TULANE CLOSEUP — "Philosophy Then And Now."

7 — MILTON BERLE — Milton has one of America's finest baritones, Tallulah Bankhead, along for some arias like "You Call Everybody Dahling." Berle and Bankhead is an act that has worked together hitherto with great success, so it will probably be a lively session.

10 — DONNA REED — Jeff, the young boarder, sprains his arm and that's about as dramatic as things can get on a situation comedy. Little else remains to be told, save that Jeff, instead of bringing his wounded member to his dad, takes his case to a new competitor. A very wispy plot.

4 — I'VE GOT A SECRET — Tonight's show is so busy playing musical chairs that it's hard to tell who the players will be with or without a scorecard. Garry Moore, Bill Cullen and Henry Morgan will definitely be present. Betsy Palmer might be and Mary Astor and Bess Myerson are possible secret-sharers.

7 — BAT MASTERSON — Bat is drawn to the town of Trinidad, where he himself is unknown, to meet the town's recently elected sheriff who calls himself Bat Masterson.

2 — ATOMIC PRIMER — "The Sun Explodes on Earth."

4 — CIRCLE THEATER — A half-humorous, beautifully contemporary tale is the program's "actual" for tonight. It tells of Newsweek editor Philip Clarke's frantic efforts to adopt a Greek child, which eventually, after a blizzard of red tape, takes the form of trying to smuggle the baby into the country. Phillip Abbott and Joan Copeland co-star.

7 — THIS IS YOUR LIFE — Tonight's trapped guest is a citizen of the world, whose life is rich in incidents.

10 — WEDNESDAY NIGHT FIGHTS — Hard-hitting Bobby Boyd of Chicago and Holly Mims of Washington, D. C., swap leather at Chicago Stadium in a 10-round middleweight return bout.

10 — MOVIE — "The Champion," (1949), Kirk Douglas, Marilyn Maxwell, Arthur Kennedy. A young fighter gets to the top only to lose to the "syndicate."

7 — JACK PAAR — Peggy Cass and Zsa Zsa Gabor, a couple of witty girls with decidedly different points of view, will be on the panel with Guido Panzini, the Italian golf pro, whose face you may recognize from another show. Diahann Carroll, a lovely and talented singer and Miss Australia contribute the pulchritude.

Kommuter Klub Kampus Kick

The 40 members indicated it would have a Greek organization significance to match fraternity and sorority activities on campus.

Soviet Scientists Say Lunik May Enter Solar Orbit Today

MOSCOW —(AP)— The Soviet cosmic rocket Mechta (Dream) has practically entered orbit as the solar system's first artificial planet, a Russian scientist announced Tuesday.

The 1½-ton projectile is about a half million miles from the earth and streaking on to start its circling of the sun, Vice President Alexander Topchiev of the Soviet Academy of Sciences told news men.

Topchiev said the rocket at the time of his (8 a.m. Miami Time) news conference was 497,097 miles from the earth and 310,686 beyond the moon, which it passed Sunday at a speed of more than 5,000 miles an hour.

It missed the moon, 2,160 miles in diameter, by the equivalent of two diameters of the moon or 4,320 miles, he said.

Soviet scientists lost track of their 1½-ton brainchild when its radio signals died at the 370,960-mile mark Monday. But they said its predetermined course would put it into a solar orbit today or Thursday.

Topchiev called the creation and launching of the rocket "a triumph of human genius which for the first time has succeeded in overcoming the force of terrestrial gravitation."

"When the first earth satellite (Sputnik I) was launched," he remarked, "some of our detractors abroad alleged that it was an isolated breakthrough by the Soviet Union, an accidental record by what is in general a technically backward country. Now these fabrications have been exploded."

Topchiev spoke of the wide range of human skills brought to play in creation of Mechta and said "it is the boldest undertaking ever conceived and executed by man."

Academician Anatoly Blagonravov, a Soviet space authority, told the newsmen "there isn't a spot in the universe today which could not be reached by rocket."

"This would of course require time," he said, "but the wait will not be long now."

Blagonravov described the rocket as a guided missile.

Evald Mustel, chairman of the Solar Exploration Committee, said the rocket offers the first chance of studying solar energy and interplanetary gas unaffected by the influence of the earth.

He said it would help to bring the world nearer to an understanding of such problems as the origin of stars and planets.

Sophie's Waistlines Follow Your Figure

By BEVERLEY WILSON
Herald Fashion Editor

Designer Sophie, known for clothes of great elegance and great restraint, is not one to jump on just any fashion bandwagon. She virtually ignored the chemise and the trapeze in her collections last season.

But she looks with favor on this year's high-rising waistline.

Sometimes this corseleted effect is shaped into the dress itself as with a high tuck just under the bosom. Other times ultra-wide belts are used.

Naturally, Sophie is still true to her natural waistlines as well, along with lady-like full skirts, and vaporous panels that drift over evening dresses.

Her necks are often demurely high at front and daringly low in back. Apron fronts which — instead of swinging free — puff into the hem to soften many skirts.

Harem hems, some double in front and single in back, panier draperies and even full blown bustles also vary Sophie's evening silhouettes.

The designer's resort collection will be introduced here at the fashion show luncheon which Saks Fifth Avenue will stage for members and guests of the Surf Club Jan. 14.

Ike's Parties Hit High Level

WASHINGTON —(UPI)— The White House has put at least two strings on invitations to the four military academies to send a cadet or midshipman to each formal state party of this winter's social season.

In announcing that President and Mrs. Eisenhower felt it would be a nice gesture to have the academies represented at full-dress affairs, Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said it would be up to the superintendent at the Army, Navy, Air Force and Coast Guard Academies to pick the lucky boys.

But one of the starched and proper cadets selected for one of the large formal dinner gave away at least two requirements demanded by the White House.

Asked how he was selected, he said: "You had to be a Cadet Captain and at least five feet, eight inches tall."

IN WASHINGTON SOCIETY

10 Rules For Success

WASHINGTON, D.C.

DEAR HERALD READERS:

The greatest show on earth opens here today and all Capital society is geared for it.

The big top in Washington is not a canvas tent. It's the dome on the U.S. Capitol which is swinging wide its doors this week for the greatest influx of new legislators welcomed in years.

The 18 new senators and 82 new congressmen and their spouses started arriving last weekend to embark on a life beset with the pitfalls of parties, prominence and protocol.

To help them avoid both the pit and the falls, your correspondent took a poll among their experienced colleagues and the watchful press, and herewith are set forth "ten commandments" for the new politician in Washington and or his little woman.

* * *

1. Don't shake hands with the first man you meet in an embassy.

It will be the butler, not the ambassador.

2. Don't be too cool to anybody anywhere.

In Washington the fellow at the bottom today may be on do and I think congressional wives have the responsibility to know what's going on," says pretty Mrs. Homer Thornberry, wife of the Texas congressman.

6. "Don't be afraid of the press — they can be your friends," is the advice of Mrs. Estes Kefauver.

"Tell the truth without saying more than you have to," is Nancy's motto and her continued popularity with all writers is proof that it works.

* * *

7. Don't ignore Washington protocol.

This is the most punctual town in the world and the more important the man, the more punctual he is. Eight o'clock dinner here doesn't mean 8:15, or 8:30.
top tomorrow, and oddly enough you always meet the same people going down the ladder as you passed going up.

3. "Don't become unduly involved socially with persons outside of government whom the Senator or Congressman can benefit through his congressional influence."

This is the advice of Mrs. Paul Douglas, wife of the Senator from Illinois who once headed a committee on ethics in government.

What she means is, when you're "snowed" by invitations and thoughtfulness from strangers or brand new acquaintances, you can be sure it's a lobbyist or influence peddler who plans to use you . . .

* * *

4. Don't be homespun. Socially it's corny.

That includes dress, customs, or too much raving about home . . . Everybody here knows you are here because you broke your necks to get here, so things couldn't really be so much better at home.

5. Read the newspapers and take in hearings on Capitol Hill.

"It's really the most fascinating thing you can possibly
8. Don't ever talk politics with a chip on your shoulder.

Politics is this town's favorite topic for discussion, but in the realm of argument it's taboo. If the conversation of a nearby Democrat or Republican makes you mad, don't pick up a plate to throw, just stay home next time.

9. Don't be annoyed by your lack of rank in this rank-filled town.

Like youth, it is overcome by time. You can be the top dog at home, but the category of "Senator" is in 25th place in the list of Washington precedence and Congressmen are in 29th place, important as they are. And being new, you're at the bottom of either category.

10. Don't take all the partying you're in for, for granted.

If you follow these ten rules you may well become the toast of the town. But don't be overtoasted or you may get burned for sure!

Yours,

Betty Beale

Wonderful Plans for a Ball

In Ruth (Mrs. Radford R.) Crane's lovely red and white living room overlooking the waters surrounding La Gorce Island, the members of the Orchid Ball committee chatted over coffee Tuesday.

Hostesses with Ruth, who wore a white silk linen sheath and blue cashmere sweater, were her fellow-co-chairman Laura (Mrs. Fred W.) Hooper, and Helen (Mrs. Lloyd L.) Dilworth who is chairman of the Jan. 23 dance.

Orchids for every lady was sweet music to the non-committee guests at coffee. Among these were Mary (Mrs. Robert W.) Rust in red coat and red-trimmed wide brimmed white hat, Mrs. Leonard Roy in ice cream silk coat and dress.

In a mischievous wispy feathered hat was Sonja (Mrs. Harrison) Eiteljorg. In a deep black ripple brim cloche and rusty brown suit was Mrs. Maurice Connell.

Committee members looked good, too. Platinum blond Mrs. Ben Cohen was in tangerine flower print silk suit, and Dorsey (Mrs. Thomas E.) Raffington wore beige embroidered linen.

Is He Too Short To Be a Friend?

DEAR MRS. RICKER:

We are three girls. There is a boy who goes to our church. He is our age, likes us as friends and sometimes goes places with us. Some of the girls in our church talk about this because he is shorter than we are.

He may grow up to be much taller than we are, who knows? Do you think we should stop being friends with him?

CAROLYN, LAUREN AND JULIE

If the boy has a good reputation, I think you would be silly to stop being friendly to him just because of his height—or lack of it.

If the other girls can find nothing else to criticize about this situation my advice is to ignore them and just remember, "Sometimes good things come in small packages."

New Stereo Sound Systems Await FCC Approval

By MARGUERITE DAVIS

CHICAGO — (UPI) — Stereophonic sound systems for television and radio were displayed today at the annual January International Home Furnishings show.

None will be manufactured for sale until the Federal Communications Commission adopts standards, but sets incorporating the two-way sound for radio and TV are well past the drawing board state.

One manufacturer, Motorola, demonstrated a dual channel stereo sound from two separate speaker cabinets while a taped TV program was shown on the screen. Another, Philco, has developed a system to bring stereo sound into every home with an AM radio, by means of an adapter and "relatively inexpensive" stereo broadcasting equipment at the station.

But there is an abundance of new products available now, or within a few months:

—A stereo-high fidelity record player in a single cabinet, to replace the usual pair of speakers needed. "Stereodors" which are part of the cabinet sides open to reflect the sound off the hard surface of the door, with the listener determining the degree of sound separation wanted by the angle to which each door is opened. Portable record players also are equipped with the side doors. (Philco).

—A magazine - loading stereo tape recorder with a tape cartridge which drops in place, eliminating the need for threading or rewinding. The user can buy pre-recorded tapes, or record and play back, in stereo or regular sound. (RCA).

—A two-piece set designed for teen-age demand, with a 17-inch TV set and a record player equipped for both stereo and regular sound. (Westinghouse).

A tiny portable transistor TV set which operates on batteries for up to three hours and then can be plugged in to an AC outlet for recharging, may be available soon.

Its 10-pound weight is no heavier than the average woman's pocket book, the manufacturer, General Electric, said.

Appliance Makers Say: Fewer Model Changes

CHICAGO — (AP) — Annual model changes as a sales gimmick are a thing of the past in the home appliance industry, two manufacturers declared Tuesday at the International Home Furnishings Market.

Instead, Fred Maytag of the Maytag Co. and Robert E. Brooker of Whirlpool Corp. said, more emphasis will be placed on engineering features now available and upgrading service on the equipment.

"The consumer has not accepted the concept of artificial obsolescence in the appliance industry," Maytag declared.

He and Brooker agreed, however, that significant advances in appliances would be brought to the market quickly, but perhaps only at the top of the line at first.

They and Robert W. Galvin, president of the Motorola Corp., said that the return of consumer confidence in the general economy indicates a solid year for the appliance industry.

The last six months of 1958 shook off the lethargy of the recession doldrums into which the appliance industry had fallen, they said.

Brooker said some price increases can be expected in the 1959 appliance market, but they will be modest and will not affect the trend for larger volume.

Spring sales, he said, may not represent a rapid expansion of buying over a normal spring, but will represent a considerable spread over 1958.

The home washer field looked especially bright to Maytag. More than half the washers in use are wringer models, he said. "The replacement market looks particularly attractive."

Galvin said depressed sales in 1958 in the consumer electronic lines brought no panic and no major price cutting. In the field of TV, radio and record players, "the upgrading of the public's taste will bring more quality styling and emphasis on good sound," Galvin said.

Think of Dad-To-Be At a Stork Shower

Every one likes to share the happiness of mother-to-be.

A personal shower of gifts that she can use while in the hospital, including gowns, good books, bedroom slippers, a bottle of good perfume, talcum powder and even a perky lipstick could be presented her in a large pasteboard box, designed as an overnight case.

To add humor to this type of shower, why not give her some things for her husband while she is away from home?

Say a dish cloth and dish towel to make dishwashing easier; a bottle of window cleaner so that he can have her windows sparkling clean when she returns home. Even include a pair of comfortable slippers to walk the floor in while he is awaiting baby's delivery.

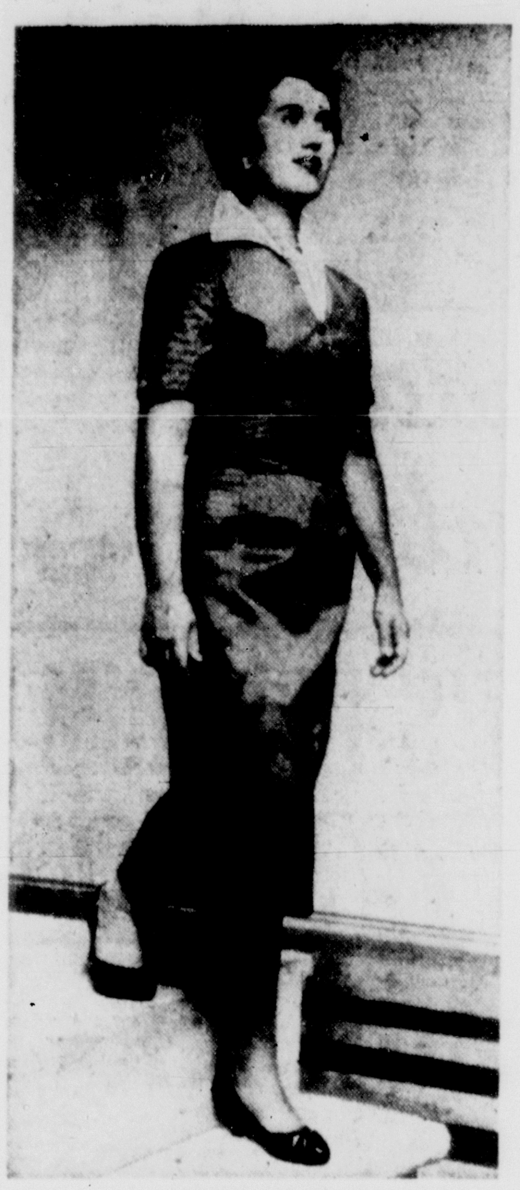
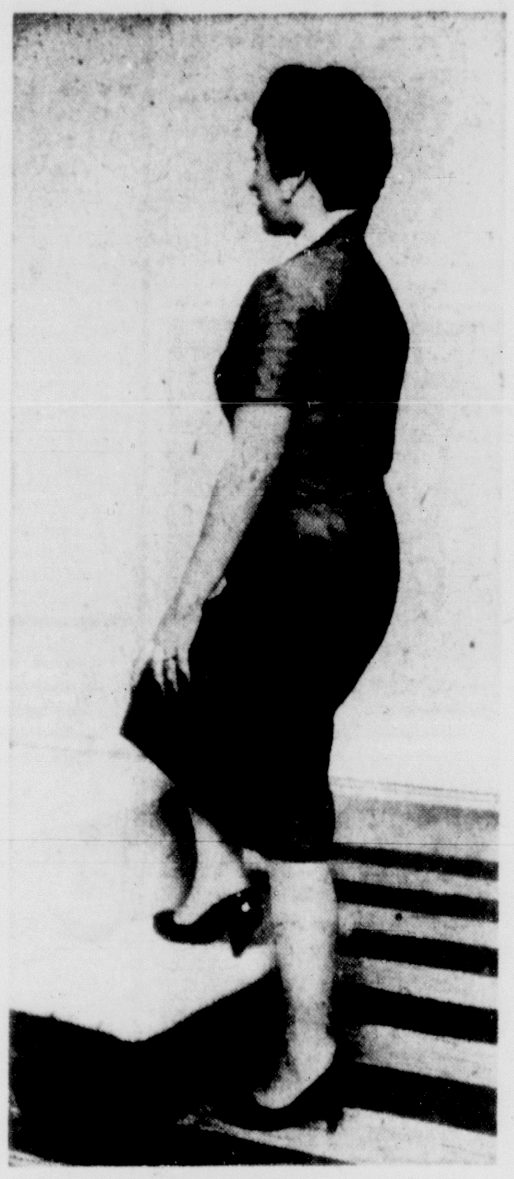
The Safe and Glamorous Way To Travel Stairs



DO SLIDE HEEL, down step, toe out. Glance quickly for placement, then hold head high.
—Herald Staff Photo by Ray Fisher



DO ASCEND STAIRS gracefully, keeping torso straight, head high. Make the thigh muscles work for you.

This is the fourth in a series of articles on Mrs. Wishful, 28-year-old mother of three, who lost 10 pounds with the help of Glamor Clinic supervision.

By ELEANOR HART
Herald Glamor Clinic Editor

Glamor Clinic

Walking up and down stairs correctly is important for safety as well as glamor. Mrs. Wishful learned during her Glamor Clinic training at a local modeling school.

For the sake of safety, never extend the heel over the edge of the step as you go up — this is a good way to lose your balance and go down!

For the sake of glamor, don't lift your skirt, or haul yourself up by the rail. And never bounce!

Instead, glide up the stairway, smoothly, using the thigh muscles to maintain balance. Touch tip of toe to step, glance down for an instant, then look up and keep going.

Coming down, slide heel of shoe down the step, toe out, glance and go, with head up and torso straight.

"Learning to stand and walk correctly is harder than you think," Mrs. Wishful sighed. "Imagine, having two good feet and not really walking!"

And girls, you can walk more gracefully in heels than flats. Mrs. Wishful had never worn heels before, but she bought a pair of pumps with two-inch heels, at the Glamor Clinic instructor's suggestion. One look in the modeling school's full length mirror convinced her of the added charm a graceful shoe can give to a woman's appearance.

The mirror also revealed the importance of holding her head high (imagine a cord is gently pulling it toward the ceiling) and keeping her chin parallel to the floor, keeping chest raised, abdominal muscles pulled and keeping the hips tucked under.

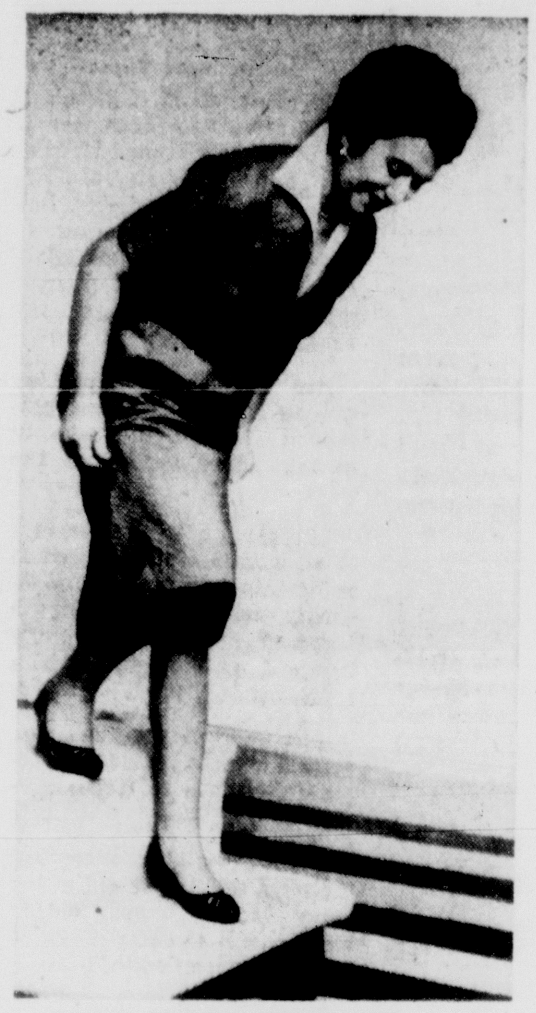
"Every woman between 25 and 30 should have a full length mirror, 28-year-old Mrs. Wishful believes. "Perhaps if they could see the thighs growing flabbier, the stomach saggier, the bust bulbous, they would stop eating their way into middle age, as I was doing."

NEXT: The Grand Entrance.

For your copy of the diet (Mayo Clinic) and exercises Mrs. Wishful followed, send a stamped, addressed envelope with your request to Glamor Clinic Miami Herald. Exercises are new. Allow a week to 10 days for delivery.



DON'T LURCH FORWARD, head down, grabbing skirt as you go.

You Find Good and Bad in All Walks of Life

Column with a Heart

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

May I say to Alarmed Mother, if you have instilled a good moral standard in your children, and they have had religious training, you should have little to fear.

They will find the good and bad in all walks of life.

Promiscuity is NOT the accepted thing in college life. Girls who have "reputations" are generally shunned. In fact, several girls were expelled from a college when the dean of women's office became aware of immoral conduct.

We often had religious discussions in the sorority room at the college I attended. With several religions represented, we were more understanding of one another's faith and church.

Your children will learn to accept or reject fellow students who live up to or fall short of ideals and qualities usually found in nice young men and women.

Stop Knocking Teenagers

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

I've gone with the same crowd three years. We've had fun, shared each other's troubles, tried to help. Some of the kids went for "making out," but I stood my ground.

One girl got married last year, another is being married in June. One had a baby out of wedlock, and although she wasn't one of the best liked, we still offered help.

I wish people would stop knocking teenagers. A few go wrong, but the majority are keeping good morals, and they never get any credit.

We teenagers should try to understand our parents as well as the parents should try to help us. I hope and pray that 1959 brings a better understanding between parents and children, because that's the backbone of America.

A Woman's Prayer

By JOSEPHINE ROBERTSON

I come to thee, O Lord, with an old and simple prayer, "God bless our home." I thank thee for the opportunity to make this place one of love and harmony.

I pray that it may hold a welcome for people of many backgrounds and that we may find happiness in working together here.

Help me, as keeper of this house, to remember always that a home is not furniture and food, important as these are, but a spirit. I ask thy blessing, O Lord, on the spirit of our home. Amen.

It's Wiser To Get a B.A.

DEAR ALARMED MOTHER:

When most college boys are asked what they are majoring in, the standing joke and-or reply is "sex." However, this subject is not offered in the standard curriculum of most colleges, and thus most students find it wiser to major in the fields which will give them a BA or BS degree.

As for moral principles, my parents and my church have given me strength of character and taught me the difference between right and wrong. I am certainly not ashamed to let anyone know that I uphold high standards, and intend to live by them.

Most college students live by high standards. The "fast" girl or boy is not looked up to — only taken advantage of, pitied or frowned upon.

Sex in our daily living is over-emphasized, and this has had its serious consequences in many phases of our life . . . Children who do not have their parents' and church's counter-balancing influence to guide them are bound to suffer when they are away from their usual environment, with more freedom than they have known before.

But you have no right to act as judge and jury in making decisions about all young people and their morals just by a few examples you have seen or heard about from "various sources."

Pushing Women into Medicine Is Mistake, Woman Doctor Feels

By ELEANOR DIXON
Herald Staff Writer

Dr. Harriet E. Gillette, a trim, attractive brunette, is one of the few women instructors of the University of Florida's School of Medicine. She also is the only woman to present a paper at the International College of Surgeons' regional assembly in the Americana Hotel.

But she's against pushing women into the medical profession just for the sake of having more women in the field.

"Probably only one per cent of all women are interested in going into this type of life — coping with maintaining a home, retaining your femininity, and keeping up with a profession."

"It's somewhat like deciding to be a minister," said the doctor. "You have to feel a calling."

"And I wouldn't encourage my boys (a 19 year old in the Navy and a 15 year old in high school) to enter medicine unless they wanted to."

Dr. Gillette's sons once attended Miami Country Day and Resident School. She has twice conducted clinics here at the request of the Dade County Society for Crippled Children.

Dr. Gillette, who doesn't look like she's been in practice for 20 years, is an instructor in surgery at the UF medical school, and she will be consultant to the schools of physical and occupational therapy when they open in September.

This will be the only recognized school for therapists in the South.

Therapy for rehabilitation is Dr. Gillette's specialty and the subject of her talk to the surgeons Tuesday was the "Physiatric Management of Hand Disabilities."

She stressed that the physical therapist and the occupational therapist must work closely to help the patient regain the maximum use of a disabled hand.

It is important that the therapist or physician "know the dynamic anatomy of the hand, what structures are involved, what structures to stretch, which muscles to strengthen."

Many times, said Dr. Gillette, the only recommendation made to a patient with a disabled hand is to squeeze a rubber ball. "The shape of a ball is not conducive to mobilizing or strengthening the hand. An oblong sponge or a rolled up wash cloth is far better."

Cooperation between physical medicine and surgery also is important to rehabilitation.

"Many times a surgeon sends a patient into therapy for a brief period of rehabilitation before further surgery. Sometimes, through therapy, future surgery can be minimized, but it takes close cooperation between physical medicine and surgery."

Ballentine Dislikes Stand on China

By ELEANOR DIXON
Herald Club Editor

An expert in Far Eastern affairs Tuesday denounced the National Council of Churches' resolution that the U.S. should recognize Communist China as "an unconscionable thing for a church organization to do."

The expert, Dr. Joseph Ballentine, expressed this opinion at a forum luncheon of the Miami Woman's Club, attended by 175 women.

Dr. Ballentine, currently a visiting professor of government at the University of Miami, has served over 30 years as a top official in the far eastern posts of the U. S. Foreign Service.

It is "astounding that a Christian group wants to repudiate a Christian leader (Chiang Kai-shek) in favor of a Communist group," he declared.

Our country's chance of combatting the Communist movement to take over Asia is not "hopeless," said Dr. Ballentine. But he stressed that the United States will have to overcome the "inaction, follies and mistakes" made in foreign policy between 1945 and 1954.

Our success in the future in the Far East "depends on the character of our leadership in winning the confidence of our allies," Dr. Ballentine said. "We must convince them that we want to be on the winning side, and that we will stick by them when the fighting gets tough."

Foreign aid is not enough, he declared. "The average Asian looks on our policy of playing 'lady bountiful' this way. For 150 years they were indifferent to us. Now with the threat of Communism, they want to build us up to be cannon fodder for the Communists."

Only foreign aid, coupled with "wisdom, understanding and sympathy," will get us anywhere, he said.

Dr. Ballentine's wife, who is the daughter of poet Robert Frost, was a guest at the luncheon, conducted by Mrs. John D. Simmons, club president.

Big Square Dance on Saturday

It's at 8 p.m. in the North Miami Armory, 13250 NE 8th Ave. Tickets, at a nominal admission fee, are available at the door.

Ed Gilmore, a nationally known caller from Yucaipa, Calif., will call the dances. Mr. Gilmore also writes for Sets in Order, the official national publication of square dancing, and records dancing albums.

Mrs. Joe Mason is chairman of the YWCA's committee for the square dance. Working with her are five Miami square dance enthusiasts, Mrs. Harry Pardis, Mrs. Herb Berner, C. S. Orr, H. C. Johnson and J. D. Miller.

On Feb. 21 the YWCA is sponsoring a second square dance — same time, same place — with Johnny LeClair of Wyoming as caller.

Mocha Squares with Dates and Nuts
. . . rich and chewy for tonight's dessert

A Sweet Treat For Your Family

By JEANNE VOLTZ
Herald Homemaking Editor

Daily Food Guide

Cookies baked and then cut into bars or squares are cherished by busy women because there's no tedious shaping to the cookies.

Coffee flavored cooky dough is studded with semi-sweet chocolate pieces to give it a mocha flavor. Dates and walnuts are mixed in for a luxurious touch.

And this cooky recipe will be a favorite with both eaters and cook every time it is made, like for tonight's dessert.

FAMILY DINNER
Meat Loaf
Baked Potatoes
Buttered Carrots
Cole Slaw
Heated Rolls, Butter
Mocha Date Squares

This recipe makes 48 squares, so you can fill the cooky jar, temporarily at least, as well as have dinner dessert.

MOCHA DATE SQUARES

1½ sticks (¾ cup) margarine or butter
2¼ cups brown sugar, firmly packed
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 eggs, unbeaten
2¼ cups sifted flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons instant coffee (as it comes from jar)
1 cup dates, cut in small pieces
6 ounces (1 package) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
1 cup walnuts, chopped

Let margarine soften in mixing bowl, then cream thoroughly. Add brown sugar, vanilla and eggs and beat very thoroughly, 200 strokes. Sift flour with baking powder, salt and instant coffee. Add to creamed mixture in fourths, beating thoroughly after each addition. Add dates, chocolate and nuts and mix well.

Bake in a greased pan 10½x15½x1 inches in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 25 to 35 minutes. Cool. Cut into 2-inch squares. Makes 48 squares.

Punch Operation Is Described

By DR. T. K. VAN DELLEN

D. F. writes: What is a transurethral resection for prostate trouble?

In this procedure the obstructing part of the prostate is removed through the tube that leads from the bladder to the outside (urethra). No external incision is made. The result is an opening through the prostate that resembles an apple without its core. It is dubbed the punch operation.

Always write to Dr. Van Dellen in care of The Miami Herald. Questions will be answered in his column as space permits. For a personal reply, enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual cases.

A Dessert For the Kiddies

Sinatra's Amours Leave a Sizzling Trail

What Makes Frankie Fight ---IV

The ability to put magic in a ballad is one of Frank Sinatra's great gifts. He can give a love song wings and send it soaring high in the imaginations of lovers.

Enigma of Sinatra

Curiously, the man who sings of moonlight and roses, blue skies and stars has found romance full of thunder and lightning. In Sinatra's case, the bittersweet quality of the oldest emotion has emphasized the bitterness. In the Battle of the Sexes, he has long been a Page One warrior.

The Sinatra romances have generally had a rocket-like quality. Bright, brief and fiery. And, typically, they are usually full of conflict.

Any male worth his salt would be impressed by a mere listing of Sinatra's romantic companions. They include Lana Turner, Kim Novak, Judy Garland, Marilyn Maxwell, Anita Ekberg, Gloria Vanderbilt. And, most recently, Lauren Bacall and Lady Beatty.

Some love affairs end with a slap in the face or a broken heart. For Sinatra, they conclude with explosive headlines. Such is the fire-cracker power of Sinatra's romantic entanglements that he ignited hot headlines with a temptress he has never met.

Brigitte Bardot expressed an intense desire to meet him, added that "we would make beautiful chemistry" — and the headlines blazed.

Sinatra is no stereotyped Romeo. He is a charmer, but he is also unpredictable. One of his former flames says:

"You have to take Frankie as he is. When you invite him to a party, he may be an hour late or he may not show up at all. He gets involved and forgets even to telephone."

An actress who co-starred with him in a film later sighed: "I think Frank treats a woman the way she deserves. He makes you feel like a woman."

Sinatra is also extremely generous with those who excite his pit-a-pats. He is said to have showered one actress with $100,000 worth of gifts in six months. Another actress has declared: "When Frank looks at you, a well of affection suddenly springs up and suddenly it's a Cadillac."

Sinatra's most lasting romance was with Nancy Sinatra, the girl he wed during his early days and the mother of his three children. In the final years of their marriage, Mrs. Sinatra was subject to a war of nerves — via reports in columns linking Sinatra with other women. Nevertheless, she remained steadfast and hopeful.

Even today, Mrs. Sinatra's friends say "she is still waiting for Frank to come home."

The marriage with Nancy Sinatra was doomed after he met Ava Gardner. From the first, the romance was full of fire and fury. Even in the early stages, there were signs of storms to come.

Ava, who had two broken marriages before the merger with Frank, was well aware of her mercurial personality. She confessed: "If I were a man, I wouldn't like me."

As for Sinatra, the enormity of his passion for Ava had the qualities of a volcano. It was deep and fiery — and erupted periodically.

Deborah Kerr has offered this significant sidelight:

"The columnists reported that I had a romantic fling with Frank Sinatra in Honolulu while making 'From Here to Eternity.' The humor of the rumor lay in the fact that I never had even a meal alone with Frankie.

"When we got together as a group, we listened to him rave about his wife, Ava, or watched him try to get through to her from Honolulu to Spain. I've never seen a man in such a state over a woman."

Sinatra and Wife Nancy in 1945

. . . she's still waiting for him to come home

The marriage of Sinatra and Gardner began with a battle with news photographers. And it continued with firecracker headlines. Every quarrel was detailed in the papers. And it ended with an atomic blast which was headlined around the world — when Frankie literally threw Ava out of their Palm Springs home.

Months after the romantic war ended, Miss Gardner issued the final communique. It stated in part:

"Frank and I spent the first months we were married learning to know each other. Oh, there were warnings! I'm possessive and jealous, and so is he. He has a fine old Italian temper that explodes as often as mine, and he has the irritating habit of walking out of the room in the middle of an argument, leaving me burning inside.

"When he was down and out, he was so sweet, but when he got back on top again, it was hell . . . Maybe if I had been willing to share Frank with other women, we could have been happier."

In Sinatra's lexicon, "a gasser applies to a person who's a big-leaguer — the best; he can hit the ball right out of the park." The opposite of a gasser is "a nowhere, a bunter; he can never get to first base."

Considering his conquests in the field of romance, Sinatra might be described as a modified gasser. He gets to first base, all right. As for an enduring love affair, Sinatra has failed to hit a home run.

Nevertheless, it must be admitted that in the Cupid League, Sinatra has a high batting average.

NEXT: Sinatra as a tireless fighter against bigotry.

Playhouse Triple Play Is Cronyn-to-O'Casey-to-Chekhov

IT ISN'T LIKELY that anyone would seriously believe that "Triple Play," the name of the production in which Jessica Tandy and Hume Cronyn will open at Coconut Grove Playhouse on March 9 is about baseball but, just in case, actually it consists of three one-act plays: "Bedtime Story" and "Pound on Demand," by Sean O'Casey, and "On the Harmfulness of Tobacco," by Anton Chekov. Oops! There goes all those back-page Marlboro ads out of the playbills when "Triple Play" is booked. Production plays Royal Poinciana Playhouse in Palm Beach March 2 to 7.

Walter Winchell and Joe DiMaggio "caught" the Donovan-DeWolfe bill at the Diplomat, with W.W. a bit down in the heart over the passing of Seymour Berkson, a fellow Hearst newsman . . . The Paul "Thunderbird" Pollaks have an addition — a schnauzer pup named "Tequila." Name stems from some Mexican champ blood on his sire's side . . . Sudden Thot: The Cronyns are brushing up on "Triple Play" on their Bahama Cay home. They own the entire island . . . Lucerne Hotel press agent Hal Pearl — the hotel has a Mardi Gras revue going — quips that it would appear that Batista and company got themselves a bad case of Castro-oil.

'A-Train' Author Aids Copa Show

BILLY STRAYHORN, who wrote "The A-Train," a jazz classic, is assisting in the score and arranging of "Jump for Joy," opening at Copa City Jan. 20 . . . Dizzy Gillespie launches Jazz Festival of the South, the New South, that is, at Rocking MB Lounge next Tuesday . . . Alan Gale and Ciro's closed simultaneously. Club may reopen before the weekend — Gale will be back Jan. 27 . . . Fair enuff! Tropical will have a Red Barn Club Purse race Jan. 12. For Fillies?

Ralph Proctor's band into Key Biscayne for the season . . . Eddie Barnes, the unique piano stylist, opens at Deauville Hotel Cyrano Lounge Thursday night . . . Comedian Don Adams, who has had frequent TV exposures, into Lou Walters' Ziegfeld Follies at the Carillon Club Siam tonight.

National Airlines had reservations for Zsa Zsa Gabor to jet down to Miami with Mama and Eva last Wednesday but Zsa Zsa cancelled out at the last minute. And now it is wondered whether her action could have been an undetected tip-off to Batista's departure some hours later for Dominican exile! Porforio Rubirosa, a friend of Zsa Zsa, was Dominican ambassador to Cuba — until New Year's Day.

It was happy birthday for Abby Greschler, discoverer of Martin and Lewis, on Jan. 2 . . . Rose, his sister, vacationing here and spilling some good words about Chateau Martin wine, is at the Thunderbird . . . Frank Sinatra gifted secretary, Gloria Swan, with a Thunderbird . . . If the waiter sings happy birthday to you as he brings on your candled cake, or if the captain makes a production of serving your flaming dish that is not a "show" in the tax sense. Internal Revenue Bureau has ruled cabaret tax need not be charged under such circumstances.

Jam Session Gives Terry Attack

AVON PARK DOPESTER magazine, "house" organ of the Avon Park (Florida) Brison, has a "Night Life" column too! With reviews of shows and capsule tip-offs on coming film attractions by Jim "Pal Joey" Benito . . . Terry Sands, songwriter-singer, is recovering at Jackson Memorial from a heart attack suffered during a Sundown Shoutin' session with Preacher Rollo's Dixieland Band.

Paul Weston, who is taking up residence here, is not the recording figure — though this Paul has set a few-records — of his own at pistol shooting. He's a retired New York Police Department inspector — traffic is his forte . . . Marie "Butch" Austin, singing host of the Sovereign Hotel Cub Room, is probably in a lot of those old westerns now on the TV circuit. She appeared in many with Fuzzy Knight and Big Boy Williams.

Wedding bells will ring on Jan. 18 at the Eden Roc for Dolly Reiner, president of the Miami Chapter of the National Children's Cardiac Hospital, and Eddie Feinstein, former University of Miami athletic star and owner of the Charcoal Hut in Surfside . . . Rusty Weinger, former Copa City-Cotton Club co-owner, has a sparkler from Fred Lowe, a game and toy tycoon, to show he's not toying with her affections. Engagement party was at La Bastille, which is as good a place as any to become a prisoner of love.

Nitery Owner Sells Out

FIVE O'CLOCK CLUB'S Mike Westerman is "at liberty." He sold out his interest in the club — where Zorita is starred . . . "Rally Round the Flag Boys" won't start waving at the Carib, Miami and Miracle until Jan. 3. "Separate Tables" holds over . . . George Reeves, who is a newspaperman himself when he isn't Superman, at El Patio. And he never once went into that telephone booth. For those who are not hep — Reeves is Clark Kent, who steps into phone booths and emerges as Superman.

Mr. and Mrs. David Lithgow, of Miami, visited Disneyland with sons Dal and Donn recently and listed The Herald as their home town paper and the reason for the trip "a Christmas present for the boys," on the resort's inquiry blank . . . Charlie Spivak brings his "sweetest trumpet this side of heaven" into Gaslight Inn on Jan. 29 . . . Dr. Carlos Prio Socarras and guests drank farewell toasts at El Patio before his return to Cuba the other day. El Patio is on the site of the former Mother Kelly's, once operated by Norman Rothman, who has had casinos in Santiago, Camaguey and Havana.

Any "French acts in the area," whatever that is, are requested to contact Eddie Schaeffer, entertainment director of Montmartre, which opens with Denise Darcel on Jan. 23.

Ain't Fair To Teacher

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. —(AP)— Mrs. Sarah Hickerson school teacher at Paramount Studio, spends every morning teaching two child actors not to say "ain't" or "goin'."

But in the film, Fess Parker teaches the kids what he calls "good American." He conjugates thus: "I ain't a-goin, you ain't a-goin' and he ain't a-goin.'

Jayne Spurns Help Writing Her Memoirs

Memos of a Girl Friday

Jayne Mansfield . . . writer?

Blossom Seeley . . . relapse

Larry Blyden . . . teacher

DEAR WW: Jayne Mansfield is doing her memoirs but spurns a ghostwriter. Has a $10,000 bid from a British mag . . . I enjoyed Larry Steele's "Smart Affairs of 1959" revue at Bill Miller's new Riviera, where the Cafe de Paris used to was. Clever cast of show-stoppers. Like you said long ago . . . Milton Berle called. Said try to see his next program. I haven't missed any. I like Milton's nonsense . . . I assume you saw that news-photo of those two Peruvian legislators, who fought a duel with pistols twice without hitting each other. The caption writers muffed a chance of amusing readers with: "Oh, How I Miss You Tonight!"

★ ★ ★

THEY ARE very happy people over at Chateau Madrid these late nights. Armando Duprez, a rich Cuban, tips $100 bills to waiters and camera-girls. He took the entire band to another spot to serenade him and his party until 9 a.m. Paid them $1,000 . . . Blossom Seeley's crowd is rooting for her complete recovery. Suffered another relapse . . . Very pretty girl walked into the Little Club. About 17 years young. She asked Billy Reed, the boss, to do a jig with her, a soft-shoe. He obliged and said: "You remind me of my former partner, Lee Ann Meredith, when we hoofed in "Gold Diggers of 1928." The doll replied sweetly: "I should, I'm her daughter Elaine" . . . "The Old Man and the Sea," just decorated with a Best Film of the Year medal by a group, will be a 5 million dollar flop.

POUPEE, the 5-year-old Saudi Arabian Prince (his papa flew him here for polio treatments last year) is now engaged to Nahed Youssel, a 3-year-young Egyptian heiress. She gave him a watch as a betrothal gift . . . Amusing sign put up by a Minister: "Thou Shalt Not Park From Here To The Corner!" . . . If your friends plan flying to Paris tell them the best Chinese restaurant there is "Chinatown," opened by Art Buchwald, Darryl Zanuck, John Huston and others so they could enjoy good chow-mein. Now it is packing them in . . . Interesting scene backstage at "Flower Drum Song" on Thursday afternoons. Larry Blyden of the hit gives acting lessons. For many of the kids this is their first show.

DON'T INVITE Errol Garner's manager (Martha Glazer) and the top brass at Columbia Records to the same firing range . . . Socialite Claire Monell of the steel tribe stopped the show (and the show-offs) cold at El Morocco with her green eyebrows . . . Jill St. John and Bob Evans had some of us fooled when they said they merely were making personal apps on tour for the "Inn of 6th Happiness" movie. But that's how these things start. Back here in town they are inseparable.

PRINCE RAINIER and His Grace tipped the Stanhope staff, liberally, some of them wanted you to know, "They are very nice people," all agreed . . . Quiteso, quiteso . . . Remind me to tell you the large laugh Grace got with the funniest one-liner I've heard in years. Nozzir, you cannot use in the paper . . . What's the meaning of Anita Ekberg idling in Paris and Rome, while husband Anthony Steele got sun-tanned in Beverly Hills? . . . Ursula Stevens (she plays the title role in "Tis a Pity, She's a Naughty Word") is a Long Island debutante. Once presented to Queen Liz . . . Anita Loos would be happy if Jerry Lewis played the lead in her next B'way show, "Happy Birthday" . . . Songs I can do without: The Rock-and-roller named "Oh, No," which the author repeats 52 times.

AS THE YEAR ended, a star who is no stranger to headlines inspired another page-one story: Ingrid Bergman wed again. And the spotlight, which has often burned her—continued its scorching radiation. Her honeymoon home was invaded by reporters, photographers and others. Miss Bergman was finally compelled to call police in order to assure some privacy. Fortunately, the star's spirit is made of stern stuff. In the darkest days, she expressed her philosophy: "I'm lucky in having a very bad memory. I easily forget and forgive. For me, it's the present and future that count. But I fight back against those who won't let me live in peace."

LONG-TIME favorites of the Miami scene are Frank Carroll and Johnny Gorman, whose harmonies are at the Martinique Hotel lounge.

Film to Star Slav Fugitive

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. —(AP)— Tania Velia, who literally swam to freedom from behind the Iron Curtain, will star in the movie "Whiplash."

The 23-year-old blonde, brown-eyed beauty from Yugoslavia has been in Hollywood for two years, playing small parts and learning English.

"Whiplash," to be shot in Cuba, is her first important screen role.

In 1955, she made the Yugoslav Olympic swimming team and appeared in one meet in Austria. The rest of the team returned home — but Tania convinced officials in the American zone that she was a political immigrant.

Gen. Pershing
. . . premiere awaits

Know About Pershing? Call Studio

HOLLYWOOD, Calif —(AP)— If there are any old timers around who can remember Gen. John J. Pershing's Missouri youth, Columbia Pictures will toss a premiere in their town.

Producer William Goetz at Columbia Pictures wants to premiere "They Came to Cordura" on the 99th anniversary of Pershing's birth. The late General of the Armies was born in 1860 on a Missouri farm. Goetz explains that a farm is not exactly the site for a movie premiere.

The movie is based on Pershing's famous punitive action against the Mexican bandit, Pancho Villa. That was before Pershing became the leader of the American Expeditionary Forces in World War I.

Goetz says that he doesn't expect to get many answers from anyone the same age as Pershing but figures that there should be plenty of answers from some younger who may recall Pershing before he became famous.

Let's Go to the Movies . . .

LIFE WITH LARRY THOMPSON

A New Artist Emerges

ONE OF THE presents given to our children on Christmas was a finger painting set. We put it aside until they had broken most of their toys.

I think that I may have an artistic talent, something I never had suspected.

You may wonder what the children's finger painting set has to do with my artistic talent, but that is easy to explain. When we opened the box, I had to show them how to use the paints.

I followed the directions closely, soaked the paper in a pan of water, straightened it out on a table so there would be no wrinkles, then I let the children open the various pots of paint.

I put a glob of each kind of paint on the paper and told them to go to it, which they did with much vigor.

When they were done, the paper, the table, the floor and the children were covered. The alleged picture, resulting from the mixing of all colors, was a sickly, sickening brownish-blue.

It was obvious that they needed some direction on the next attempt. This time I put old newspapers around, and I had each child paint an individual picture, rather than making a community project out of it.

As supervisor, I showed them how to spread the paint. You simply put your hand on the paint and rub it around. I hadn't had such fun since I used to play in the mud.

Then I insisted that instead of rubbing all colors together over the entire paper that we get real artistic and show some contrasts.

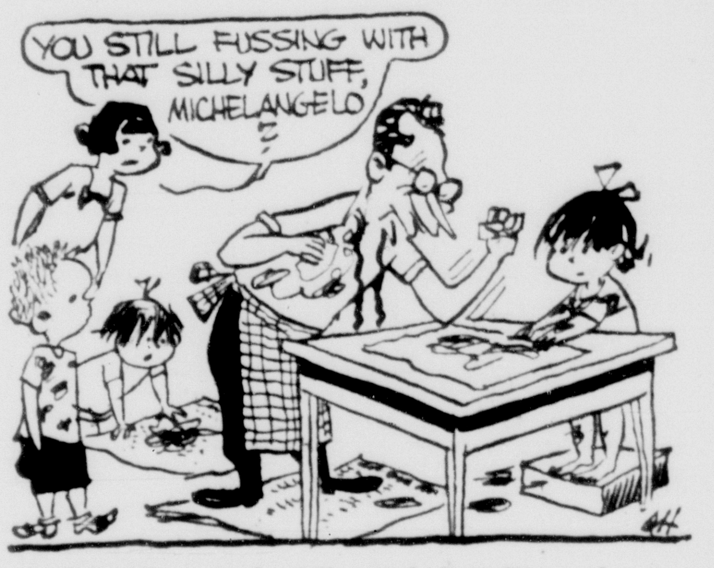
For instance, on Carl's picture I thought we'd have a poinciana tree. I put down a blob of red paint and spread it by putting my fist on it. This is an enjoyable experience.

Then I took some green paint and used one side of my hand to make the tree trunk. It didn't look much like a tree trunk, but it looked plenty artistic.

On another part of the sheet I dropped some yellow paint. I meant this for a moon, but when I spread it with an elbow — that's right, you can paint with an elbow in finger painting — it didn't turn out to be a moon so I decided it was a tree with yellow leaves. My green trunk wasn't very successful this time, either, but by now I saw I was creating an impressionistic creation.

* * *

I MEAN, OF COURSE, that Carl was creating such a creation. After all, this was his picture, but as I explained to him, I had to show him how to do it.



YOU STILL FUSSING WITH THAT SILLY STUFF, MICHELANGELO ?

While I was letting Carl's picture dry, I helped Evellen with hers. In this one, I really turned myself loose, painting in the futuristic or modernistic mood, depending on how you interpret such things.

What I was really doing was expressing a mood. At least I guess that's what it was, because it sure didn't look like anything I ever saw.

I didn't get to help Miriam, because she had gotten into the paints and already had covered her paper with that sickly, sickening combination. I scolded her sharply for ruining her picture.

This was so much fun that I wanted to let the children paint some more pictures, but my wife insisted that we all wash up.

She said she thought it was a terrible thing that the father had more paint on him than his three children put together.

I don't think she would have spoken in this tone of voice if Carl and Evellen hadn't told her that I wouldn't let them paint with their paints.

This wasn't true, since I merely had been showing them how to use them.

I am quite excited about this finger painting business. I don't know if I can really make a career out of it, but I wouldn't be too surprised if Grandma Moses won't be wondering what happened to her customers once my childrens' work gets on the market.

My main trouble will be getting the children to leave me alone when I'm showing them how to use their paints.

Display Loyalty

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Wednesday, January 7, 1959

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) It would be the very highest, noblest thing today to react toward your loved ones in such a fashion that they will be thoroughly convinced of your loyalty and devotion. Gain their love and respect and this will be a blessing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Getting together with trusted comrade or the right group toward some corporate venture today will prove most successful. Then in P.M. you can have a delightful time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Through own merit, you have a wonderful backer in business affairs. Think of some way in which you can show your gratitude. This will cement even better relations.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The ideal day to do much research work, studying at library, from printed matter, your paper, TV, etc. Your mind is very receptive, and much of the information you store up now will prove invaluable in the near future.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) By going after the support you need from others, whether financial or emotional, you can acquire that all-important feeling of security. Contact the greatest experts.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) See that you converse quite at length with all those who are important to your scheme of living at present, for thereby will come true cooperation and many fine ideas for success.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Imperative you continue to work diligently at chores awaiting your immediate attention so that you will be free of them quickly. Good day to tone up your system.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have the need to confide in someone today. Go to the person you love the most and unburden yourself, and you will emerge a happy person and get excellent advice. Be devoted.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't take offense when a devoted member of family tries to spur you on to greater achievement. You have been operating and thinking rather narrowly and are capable of far greater attainments. LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be sure to do any important errand or shopping in A.M. Then you have time to ferret out the data that is so urgent for you to have right now. Be aboveboard.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Determine to find out what is worrisome and wrong in your business affairs. You can then intelligently iron out troubles and make long-range plans for successful operating.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Sit down a while today and think out what you truly want out of life. Are you getting as much out of it and accomplishing all that you once dreamed of?

Jack Kofoed Says

Kensington Bred Rough and Tough

WHENEVER I write about Philadelphia, I get a stack of mail from ex-denizens of the Quaker City.

Take a recent piece about Kid Beebe, an old fighter, who must have had between five and six hundred battles before he hung up the gloves.

His real name was Harry Kutner, and he would have done pretty well on television, if they'd had television in his day.

Bill Sinclair, who sold a service station in Philly to operate one on South State Road 7 in West Hollywood was stirred into writing because of the Beebe yarn.

His letter brought back memories of "Iron Hat Johnny" Burns' Cambria Athletic Club.

The Cambria wasn't fancy pants, and neither were its patrons. They knew more about fighting than most of today's ring officials, and if they didn't like a decision, didn't merely boo. They threw things, including their chewing tobacco at the referee.

At intermission the customers went across the street to Green's bar, where beer cost a nickel, peanuts 15 cents a pound, and nobody interfered if they punctuated arguments with blows.

Fine fighters like Tommy Loughran, Benny Bass, Johnny Jadick and others got their start at the Cambria. If a guy didn't put on a good show, a disappointed fan was likely to take a punch at him in the street.

If you don't think Kensington developed tough knuckle dusters you don't know Kensington.

Probably the most colorful fellow who fought at the Cambria was Al Monahan. He never came close to being a champion, but nobody could say Monahan stopped trying once the gloves were on.

His bitterest rival was Al Markey. They fought 28 times, and had as much murder in their hearts the last time as they met in the ring as the first.

Al got kind of funny after he quit boxing. He had the same seat every fight night at the Cambria, and would get up in the ring, clown and shadow box, and hand out cigars from a box he carried with him.

"Who belted the priest when his back was turned?" "Monahan," they'd shout, choking with laughter.

It may not seem funny in print, but the routine had practically everybody gagas with giggles.

* * *

THERE WERE no Ivy League traditions in Kensington. Turtle neck sweaters were more common than wing collars. The neighbors didn't know Shakespeare, but were avid readers of the Police Gazette.

They were strong on muscle, light on erudition. The boys had little truck with economics. When times were good in the mills, they spent hard . . . not bothering to pay off mortgages on their little homes, but buying silk shirts, and new dresses for their women.

Rittenhouse Square, the Main Line, Elkins Park looked down snooty noses at Kensington. It was cheap and dirty and . . . and . . . well, kind of elemental.

It was, and probably still is. But, though probably no one will admit it in this scientific age, America still needs the courage, muscle and a give-em-hell philosophy bred at places like the Cambria Athletic Club.

The neighbors will never win a Nobel prize, or help develop moon-aimed rockets, but they and their grandfathers, fathers and sons never failed to fill rifle battalions from Bull Run to the stinking hills of Korea.

Kid Beebe and Al Monahan and fellows of their breed did little to make the world remember them, but they added a rough and ready touch to life. I'm glad Bill Sinclair reminded me of them.

* * *

THE FIGHT GAME is a sad and brutal one. Few men come out of it with the minds and bodies they took into the ring. In the 90s Martin Flaherty was a fistic great. His son, young Martin, took to the gloves, and though never gaining his daddy's eminence, was honest and courageous. The game hurt him. So did marital and business troubles. Flaherty is in the South Florida State Hospital.

"I hoped you might be helpful," he writes, "in thinking up a solution to my loneliness, and the feeling of not having a friend in the world. Care and food at the hospital are good, but it does get dull with no letters from the outside, no cigaret change, no visitors."

There are many sportsmen in Broward County. Some, like Bill Sinclair, will understand. Martin Flaherty is the kind of fellow who fought at the Cambria in Kensington, and Kensington is a state of mind as well as a neighborhood. The people are rough, but they help each other, and maybe some fight lovers will alleviate the loneliness of the old boxer, who wrote me.

* * *

I SHOULD apologize to Eddie Herr, who is "Mr. Tennis" of Miami Beach. Eddie has done more to promote tennis in these parts than anyone else, but I'm afraid too little attention has been paid his achievements. That's because tennis hasn't been my dish since I followed "Big Bill" Tilden and "Little Billy" Johnston, which is really too long ago to talk about.

Herr has done a fine job, but in my book the American Lawn Tennis Association hasn't. Oh, sure, we won back the Davis Cup from the Australians, but how? We used a Peruvian named Olmeda, who isn't an American, only a student in one of our universities. That's an American victory?

Slick Master of Red Trade Has Loaded Gun

By GEORGE WELLER
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

WELLER

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Magic Merchant Mikoyan, the most skilled rug salesman outside his native Armenia, has arrived on the White House mat direct from selling Russia to the Middle East.

The U.S. unrolled the red carpet for the 63-year-old son of Tiflis but Mikoyan has demonstrated his skill at pulling the trade rug from under the west.

Starting from a shoestring Anastas I. Mikoyan, Soviet first deputy premier, has built Russia's trade and aid — which means loans but no gifts —into a powerful and respected instrument of world power.

But Mikoyan's total trade strategy is adroitly aimed for three purposes:

To hold the satellites firmly inside the almost closed trade bloc where market values can be juggled and hard currencies pooled.

To shake the West's advantages by moderate bumping and clever resale policies, as with Egyptian cotton.

To ignore the committed powers of Western Europe and Latin America and concentrate on digging his way into Asiatic neutral countries with massive, carefully aimed credits.

Mikoyan starts with three-quarters of Soviet foreign trade safely buttoned up inside communism's Eurasian commonwealth. Mikoyan has Poland and Czechoslovakia locked in a cage because their heavy industries cannot function without Soviet iron. Only China, with its myriad — but inefficient — village furnaces, can partially escape dependence on Soviet iron.

With two billion dollars of trade leverage remaining for the free world, Mikoyan aims at selling missiles powered with credits almost exclusively southward at Asia's soft underbelly. Nine-tenths of Mikoyan's trade credits go to India, Indonesia, Afghanistan, Egypt, Syria and Yemen. India buys twice as much from Russia now.

Mikoyan is out to break the West's lead in gold, oil and diamonds. With the Soviet seven-year-plan getting under way, Mikoyan is gradually turning back to prewar years when he dumped wheat and barley on world markets.

Mikoyan's dumping now is political and selective. In South America the neediest American charity case is Bolivia, whose gun-toting tin miners have often cowed the government and lowered the nation's main export. The U.S. has poured more aid per head into Bolivia to correct the tin lag than any other sombrero state.

Mikoyan's answer is to dump tin, cheapen the world price and aggravate Bolivia's burden on the U.S.

The Town Crier

BY Jack Bell

BELL

I knew Jimmy Bright since the first season Hialeah Park opened. It was his idea, a promotional venture for the Curtiss-Bright Corp., developers of Hialeah and Miami Springs. Jimmy was a true horseman. He didn't bet much. He just loved the beauty of a horse, "standin' or runnin'." He never thought about money, for he was too busy being a rancher. Horses, cattle, better grass, good living "out here where a man can breathe."

But I don't know — now — who's going to get the Seminoles to Hialeah Park for Flamingo and Widener days. They ought to erect a bust of Jimmy in the infield, across from the grandstand, to be unveiled by Chief Willie Osceola.

The 1926 hurricane whipped trees pretty good in what is now Bay Point. When the place was cleared one giant rubber tree was left half up, half down. During the years that tree grew roots big as a man's body. It's a magnificent veteran, and children loved it from the beginning. It was known—and still is—as "The Tree."

When Tom McGahey bought the lot and built a house the kids begged him to leave "The Tree" and let them still play. Only a few days ago I saw Tom in a car.

"The kids are over in The Tree, having a wonderful time," he said.

"I know; one of 'em is mine," I replied. And suddenly Tom was gone.

When the Orange Bowl stadium was just a pup, with 23,000 seats, George Payne was placed at the south side gate where employes enter. All through the years he sat there, for high school, college, pro, Orange Bowl games. He never saw a play.

After the Oklahoma-Syracuse game "Pop" went home saying he felt "a little tired." He was right. After 85 good years, he's gone.

Another Sizzler

Joseph Lewis, secretary of the Tom Paine Foundation, has written another book, which probably will sizzle. The title is "The Serpents of Religion." It deals with crimes committed by religious fanatics from the murder of Hypatia in Athens in 415 to the excommunication of Spinoza in 1736. It'll be released in April.

Telethon Coming

United Cerebral Palsy's annual Telethon, the biggest show of the winter, will be on Channel 7, Jan. 17-18. As usual it'll be some 18 hours of continuous TV show.

This year your Town Crier's job is to get the entertainment talent. If I fail, it won't be because night club stars aren't around. I've never seen so many top name actors in town at one time. And I'm asking every one of them.

Clearance by Theater Authority is necessary and has been received. After that all I've got to do is get permission of the owner of the club, the star's agent — and the star. It's a bit tedious, but not too difficult. For nobody on earth is so willing to help charities set up for crippled children as are actors.

I'm asking them all, even unto Nathan Milstein, one of the world's top violinists. He'll be here for the University Symphony concerts, and I've Volpe's blessing. I'm asking Arthur Godfrey too, and my good friend Nancy Donovan, and Billy Eckstine, Nelson Eddy, Gloria DeHaven, Victor Borge, Paul Whiteman, Harry Richman, Duke Ellington, Charlie Farrell, Frank Lovejoy, Shirley Jones, Jack Cassidy, Carroll and Gorman, the Treniers, Pinky Lee, Gretchen Wyler, Dorman Bros., and on and on.

The famous Tara Singers of Barry College will be back. So will Nancy Reed and Maxine Barrat. So will singers of the Opera Guild. We'll have an impressive religious service Sunday morning. From 9:30 Saturday night until mid-afternoon Sunday we'll be coming to you, with Dennis James in charge again.

Care of cerebral palsy children requires a lot of money. And Miami has one of the nation's best clinics.

* * *

Tara Singers

Tara Singers of Barry College will sing with the Miami Symphonic Society Orchestra at Barry Jan. 11. It's on the Culture series. Included in their numbers will be Handel's Largo, Sanctus by Gounod and Victor Herbert's Italian Street Song. Carroll Healy and Marguerite Barnes are soloists.

Weegee's a Wizard

Marilyn in Movies

By GENE MILLER
Herald Staff Writer

Weegee looks perfectly normal. His head is neither bulged nor squashed.

He chomps on an unlit 25-cent cigar, wears a clip-on bow tie, and talks of his past with Murder, Inc.

When upheaval on the Batista homestead delayed a trip to Havana, Weejee short-circuited into Miami Beach for the first time in his 59 years and plopped down at the Carillon Hotel.

There he held forth Tuesday, explaining his handiwork.

The optical gymnastics of his many-eyed, misshapen caricatures come from a weird kaleidoscopic lens he designed himself. He also prints negatives through wire screens, bubbled glass and prisms.

He owns 100 cameras ("they're like women, I like them all"), but possesses neither telephone nor studio.

His real name is Arthur Fellig. The Weegee comes from "ouija board," a tribute to his alleged psychic powers as a veteran news photographer.

Examples: Once he photographed two policemen laughing crazily — just as an explosion ripped up the street behind them. And once he was in focus and ready when a car hit a pedestrian.

"I used to work for Murder, Inc.," he said modestly.

That happened after he beat the police to one of the firm's victims. The dead man was slumped over the wheel of a stolen black limousine.

Weegee Himself
. . . stogie and camera

Later he politely requested that "Mad Dog" Cole and Dutch Schultz steal gray limousines with attractive inside decor for photogenic reasons. Murder, Inc. complied.

The costumes he carried around in his car trunk also enabled him to get a fine portrait of Dutch Schultz' bullet wounds once upon a time.

Dutch was on his death bed in a hospital, closely guarded by police. Weegee put on a doctor's stethoscope and white coat and walked right in.

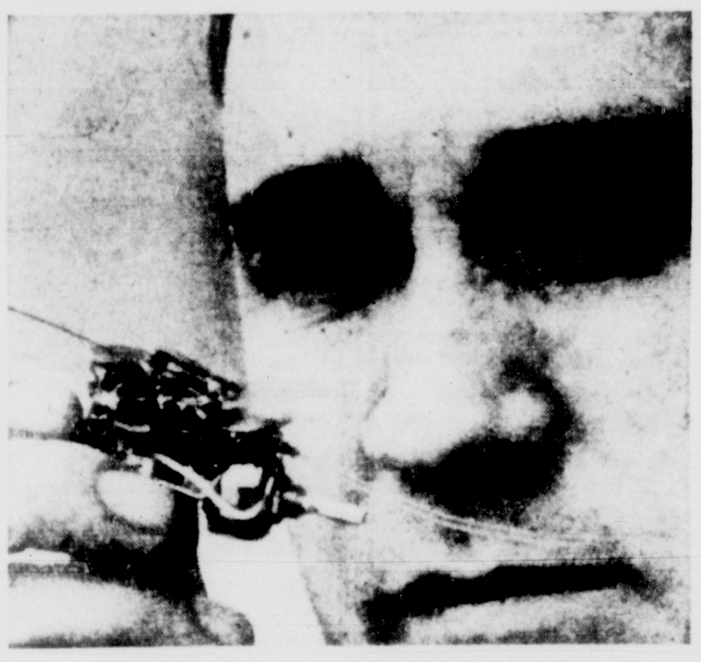
Surgeons Put 'Battery' In Bodies of Animals To Keep Heart Going

By MIKE MORGAN
Herald Staff Writer

Detroit research surgeons are placing miniature power plants in the bodies of dogs in an effort to find a method to keep diseased and worn-out hearts beating.

Dr. James Fryfogle, director of the Fryfogle Research Medical Laboratory in Detroit, Tuesday described the dramatic experiments under way.



Medical Researcher Fryfogle
. . . with midget power plant

Success in upcoming advanced stages of the experiment could provide a technique to reduce sharply the great toll in lives taken by heart failure.

Dr. Fryfogle told of the experiments at the Southeastern Regional Assembly of the International College of Surgeons now meeting at the Americana Hotel.

He also described a new method, still in the laboratory stage, of placing a slice of healthy muscle taken from the left diaphragm and using it to "overcoat" damaged or diseased heart muscle.

In effect, this gives a new muscle-case to the heart.

Explained the doctor:

"The stimulus that makes the heart beat is basically an electrical impulse. Often a diseased or damaged heart will block this impulse from reaching the pump. The problem is to find a way to amplify the strength of the heart beat."

This is how they're doing it:

A tiny "pulse-amplifier" — consisting of transistors, wires a miniature battery — is set in the cavity under the breastbone and on top of the heart.

Four extremely small plastic tubes filled with wires are placed on the aorta and linked to the pulse-amplifier.

A miniature magnet around the wires sets up a magnetic field. Movement of the wires through the magnetic field as the heart beats generates the necessary power to work the amplifier.

Thus the beat is made strong enough to make the heart muscles contract and pump.

It is, said Dr. Fryfogle, "as close to a perpetual motion heart with a self-contained power plant that you can get."

The first series of experiments involved healthy dogs who were given artificial heart blockages.

The dogs became sickly, weak and could hardly move. But the pulse-amplifiers bridged the gap of the blocked and damaged portions of the heart and restored the dogs to normal activity.

Reachers also learned that, so far, the improvised sheets of muscle-wall are responding like normal heart muscle to the beats.

Next stage will be to induce situations of acute heart failure in the dogs.

Reported Dr. Fryfogle: "If this stage is successful, there may be a very practical application of the technique to man.

"When you consider that the most common disease to man — and one of the most deadly — is failing ventricles, this method should work with any heart failure, including rheumatic ones. The potential could be enormous."

Car Stripped

Thieves stripped a new car belonging to Munroe-Zeder Motors, of 2101 SW Eighth St., early Tuesday morning. It was parked in an adjacent lot. All four tires and wheels were taken. Police estimated the loss at $216.

Officials Scout Story

'Black Market' In Babies Here?

Dade officials said Tuesday that the Miami "baby black market" that an ex-Kansas newspaperwoman told New York authorities about, is more like a "grey market."

In the "grey market," the babies are placed for adoption — but not for cash.

Former newswoman Mary Grice told a New York state legislative committee:

"Miami has a flourishing baby market. The chamber of commerce, the Dade County Medical Society and the bar association all gave me a list of reputable men from whom I could get a baby."

Miami experts said she has confused the "grey market" with the "black market."

The so-called black market involves cash for children, they said.

"I don't believe half of what she's said," said attorney Ray Earnest, who also is state president of the Children's Home Society of Florida.

"I don't say there's no black market here, but certainly the groups she named aren't giving out lists of black marketeers."

Miss Grice said she was in Miami early in December, and talked to "many attorneys, doctors, osteopaths, naturopaths and hospital officials."

Earnest said that the bar and medical associations would try to help somebody who wanted to adopt a child through proper channels, "but not through the black market. Selling humans is the most despicable thing I can think of."

Metro Likes Idea, Too

Roadblocks to Go On

By JOHN MORTON
Herald Staff Writer

KELLY

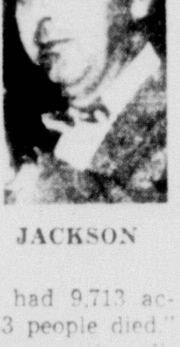
HARRIES



JACKSON

Miami's police roadblocks — in the face of criticism from the City Commission — are likely to continue and Metro is thinking about adding a few of its own.

Public Safety Director Tom Kelly said he has asked for a legal opinion on whether or not the county can put up blocks, like the city, to check licenses, drivers and cars.

"There's no question about the benefit," Kelly said, "but we want to make sure we're operating properly."

Miami Police Chief Walter E. Headley said the blocks were put up by Miami "at the suggestion of our municipal judges and we intend to keep operating them."

"It works."

Headley said accidents had dropped last year for the first time in his memory. The total in 1958 was 13,135 against 14,310 in 1957.

Capt. W. W. Harries of the Accident Investigation Bureau said injuries also dropped, but that there were 42 fatalities compared with 38 the year before.

"That's not a big enough difference to set a pattern," Harries said. "In 1950, for instance, we only had 9,713 accidents — but 43 people died."

J. I. Jackson, executive director of the Dade Citizens Safety Council, also is "strongly in favor" of the roadblocks.

"We should deny the privilege of driving to those whose licenses have been suspended," Jackson said.

Labor Plans UF Jamboree

Top Talent Due Friday

A million dollars worth of performing talent has been lined up for the gigantic Labor Show for the United Fund.

It's the Labor Jamboree slated for the Miami Beach Auditorium Friday night.

For two bucks you can see some of the top talent in show business in a king-sized spectacle that starts at 8 p.m. and probably will run past midnight.

The stars are giving their time and talent in an effort to help United Fund reach its 13,447,000 goal.

As United Fund heads into its final victory month drive collections stand at $2,103,000.

A number of special events, designed to help UF reach the needed goal to support the 55 community health, welfare and social agencies, are scheduled for the victory push.

Participating in the Labor Jamboree are enough big names to spark several revues. As a matter of fact, you'll find the cream of the talent currently performing in the area.

Such as Gloria De Haven, Billy Eckstine, Billy Daniels, Betty Costello.

And Paul Grey, B. S. Pulley, The Treniers, Dean Murphy, Hot Lips Levine, Pupi Compo.

Several other show and sports personalities are also being lined up for the Jamboree.

All proceeds go to the UF.

In addition to the mammoth stage show at the Beach Auditorium Friday, there is the Cerebral Palsy Telethon slated for Jan. 17 and 18.

And Dade County's three kennel clubs, two racetracks and two jai alai frontons will make a substantial contribution based on the previous year's parimutuel betting.

Tickets for the Labor Jamboree are available at all local labor union offices, the Dade Federation of Labor, the Miami Building Trades Council, the Mutual Employes Trade Mart, Pumperniks, Darbys, Wolfies, the United Fund and the Beach Auditorium.

On Airport Hotel Bid

$2.5 Million Loss Charged

By LEO ADDE
Herald Staff Writer

Port Authority blunders in awarding the Miami International Airport hotel concession cost Dade County at least 2.5 million dollars, special auditors told the Metro Commission Tuesday.

Auditor Robert M. Morgan said Port Authority Director George McSherry should have thrown out the bid of Miami Beach Hotelman Saul Cohen as "noncompetitive" instead of recommending it over five other proposals.

"Hotel concession negotiation proceedings were not conducted in a proper manner and each proponent did not receive equal impartial consideration," the firm of Morgan, Altemus and Barrs told the Metro Commission, which sits as the Port Authority and acts on McSherry's recommendations.

The county's contract with Cohen's Airway Hotel Inc. was signed last Sept. 15.

Persistent reports at the County Courthouse say a taxpayer's suit will be filed challenging the validity of the agreement. The suit is expected to charge the hotel deal was not properly advertised and that all proponents except Cohen were barred from actual negotiations.

The auditor pllled out all stops in his criticism of the hotel deal.

Morgan said a losing bidder, Laurence Tisch, would have built the 2.5-million-dollar hotel "without cost to the Port Authority."

Cohen agreed to pay for building the hotel only if he was repaid by the Port Authority, the report said. Morgan added that "indications are" Commission members were not told of the payback clause at the time McSherry asked Commission members to approve the Cohen selection.

A second concession award to Cohen, for the airport parking lot operation, is currently challenged by a lawsuit and by commissioners' objections that they were kept in the dark on vital clauses.

Cohen agreed to double-deck the lot at his expense — if the Port Authority will pay him back. The Commission will vote Friday on killing the still unsigned contract.

On the hotel award, Morgan said Commission members were not told McSherry allowed Cohen to change his original proposal.

Cohen's first bid, on Feb. 17, 1958, "shows that no percentage of gross income or fixed-dollar-minimum rental guarantee was offered," Morgan said. The auditor charged that this "noncompetitive" bid should have been thrown out.

Instead, the audit showed, Cohen was allowed to amend his proposal 17 days later to stipulate a $165,000 annual rental for a 25-year lease, or a Port Authority cut of 25 per cent of gross revenues over the first million dollars.

During the same week that Cohen was allowed to change his proposal, Morgan said, McSherry turned down requests of other bidders to negotiate terms of their proposals.

Morgan added the Port Authority set special "ground rules" for Cohen, and did not require adequate proof of the financial ability of Airway Hotel Inc.

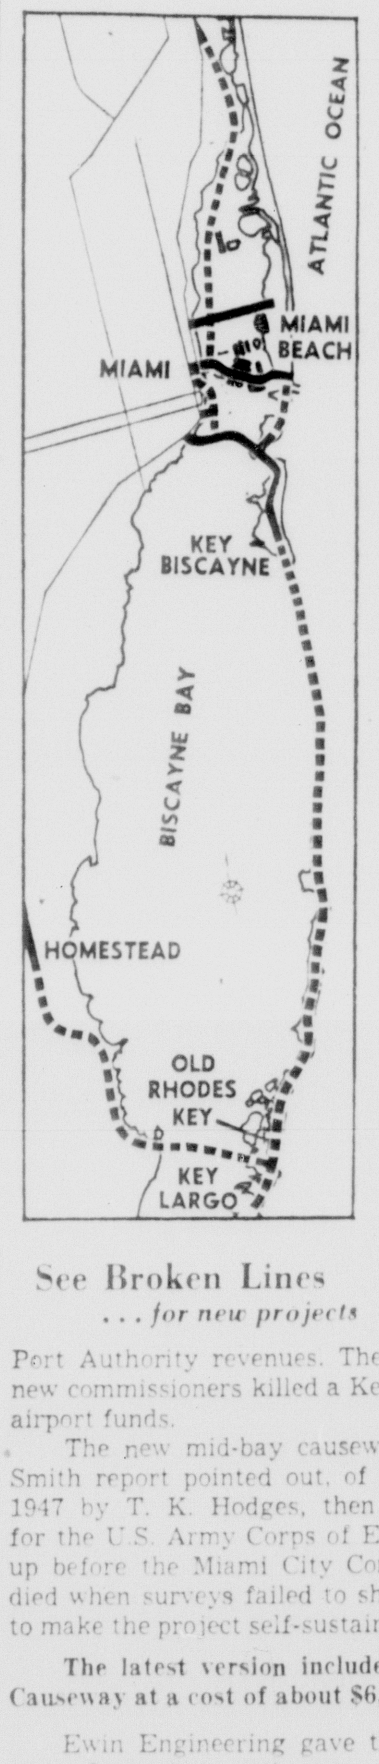
At Friday's special meeting on Port Authority matters, the Commission will be asked by member Robert Haverfield to fire McSherry from his $30,000 job for "poor judgement."

Cost? $56 Million

New Plan Offered: Broward-to-Monroe 'Malecon' in Bay

Engineering and traffic experts unrolled a new causeway plan — a 56-million-dollar over-the-water loop from the Broward to Monroe County lines — for Metro Commission consideration Tuesday.

Called the "Biscayne Bay Malecon," the route would take off from U.S. 1 above Ojus. It would skip through the Graves Tract inland, link with existing causeways through Miami Beach, then tunnel through to Key Biscayne.



See Broken Lines
. . . for new projects

Continuing southward, the Malecon would cross shoal water for 10.5 miles, link the lower keys, and hook back toward Homestead at the Monroe County line.

Commission Chairman Walter Weiss called a special meeting for next Monday to consider two experts' reports backing the project:

One was from the Ewin Engineering Corp. of Miami, Mobile, and Washington, D. C., showing feasible routes.

Another was from Wilbur Simth and Associates, traffic consultant. The Smith survey showed that the Malecon, if opened in 1962 with a 10-cent toll at each of a number of barrier stations, would be used by 46,000 cars daily and bring in 2.34 million dollars annual revenue.

The commissioners problem: To see if estimated income from tolls would pay for construction and maintenance of the span.

The six-member "new" bloc on the 11-man commission indicated they opposed tying the project to Port Authority revenues. Their first week in office, the new commissioners killed a Keys causeway plan backed by airport funds.

The new mid-bay causeway plan is a variation, the Smith report pointed out, of a project first advanced in 1947 by T. K. Hodges, then assistant district engineer for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Revisions brought up before the Miami City Commission in 1948 and 1955 died when surveys failed to show enough potential traffic to make the project self-sustaining.

The latest version includes refinancing Rickenbacker Causeway at a cost of about $6,250,000.

Ewin Engineering gave these construction cost estimates for various sections:

Mid-Bay drive, 19.64 million dollars; Key Biscayne to Sands Key, 11 million; Sands Key to Monroe County line, 2.63 million; Arsenicker Keys crossing, 3.44 million; Miami Beach to Key Biscayne, 13 million.

By 1976, the Smith report said, about 74,000 vehicles would use the causeway daily, and annual revenues would be $3,769,000.

2 De Gaulle Aides Quit Over Austerity

PARIS — (UPI) — Premier Charles de Gaulle disclosed Tuesday night that two Socialist members of his cabinet, including Party Chief Guy Mollet, have resigned in protest against his severe new austerity program. Shortly afterward, 1,000 workers staged a Paris street demonstration against De Gaulle austerity.

Police intervened to disperse gas and electricity workers who staged the first street demonstrations in France since DeGaulle announced his "truth and severity" economic policy—which meant higher prices but no wage increases for most Frenchmen.

Just a few hours before, DeGaulle's office announced the resignations of Mollet, minister of state in the De Gaulle government, and Eugene Thomas, veteran Socialist minister of posts and telegraphs.

A brief communique said the Socialists turned in their resignations Dec. 27—the date the franc devaluation and austerity measures were announced — "because they were unable to give their assent to the budget adopted by the government."

Winner of Hurst Contest Surprised, Delighted with $500 Worth of Awnings

"It still seems like a dream," said Mrs. J. H. Mahaffey of 942 NW 40th St., Miami, in speaking of the five hundred dollars' worth of Hurst awnings she won recently.

"My husband, John, laughed at me when I entered my name in the drawing at the Home Show at Dinner Key Auditorium last November," she explained. "He said he didn't expect I'd ever hear from anybody except maybe a salesman who might call me up to offer some gimmick or other. He said he was sure these contests were always rigged.

"You can imagine our surprise, then, when Mr. Padgett of the Hurst Awning Company showed up at our house one day ready to measure our windows and to put up the awnings I had won! In a very few days our home was completely equipped with the most beautiful awnings anybody in our neighborhood has ever seen. The job came to a little more than the five hundred dollars worth of awnings I had won, and believe it or not, the Hurst people threw in the extra amount free! I just can't believe it all happened, it was so wonderful!"

Mrs. Mahaffey had an old awning across the front of her house for years, and had often thought of replacing it. But she explained that there are so many companies putting out awnings these days and all making different claims for the superiority of their particular product over all others she never could make up her mind which one to call. Then she won the Hurst awnings and the whole Mahaffey family now is sold on them.

"My husband, who works for the Miami Transit Company, has been telling all his friends what a great job the Hurst people do in making their awnings," Mrs. Mahaffey added. "And all my children and my neighbors are thrilled by the beautiful new look the awnings give our home.

"We especially like the fact that all the awnings fold down for hurricane protection, should we ever need it. In the meantime, they give wonderful protection from the sun and the rain, too. The first day we got them it started to rain and, as usual, I made a dash to close the windows.

"'Wait a minute, now,' my husband told me. 'Let's just see whether these awnings really keep the rain out the way the man said they would!'

"Sure enough, not a drop of rain came in. Not even a trickle, like our old awning used to give us. The deep sides on Hurst awnings really protect our home. I just can't express how secure we all feel with our new protection against sun, rain and hurricane.

"And, as my husband says, the fine workmanship that goes into Hurst awnings shows in the smooth, streamlined way they are put together. The under-surfaces and corners — where spider webs and even hornet nests do sometimes gather, in spite of a busy housewife's care — are all so smooth and shiny that it's a cinch to keep them clean.

"There are no sharp edges or ends of bolts hanging down, you see, to catch in your dust mop or cloth. I really appreciate that, as I work in the Edison Senior High cafeteria and don't always have as much time as I'd like to devote to house cleaning. I'm sure other women will understand the advantage of easy-to-clean awnings like mine.

"I know I must sound like a super salesman for the Hurst Company, with all the nice things I keep saying about them and their awnings. But I simply can't get over what wonderful people they are. They did exactly what they promised to do in the contest — deliver and install five hundred dollars' worth of awnings free.

"There were no gimmicks, no high pressure to buy something extra, no attempt to use my home for a demonstration, or anything of that sort. They just came and quietly and efficiently, put up the awnings and then went away again. But ever since, I've been telling everybody I know about the Hurst Company and recommending their awnings.

"It's the least I can do, to show my appreciation for our own wonderful new Hurst awnings, isn't it?"

Further information about Hurst awnings and free estimates may be obtained by calling TUxedo 7-8154.

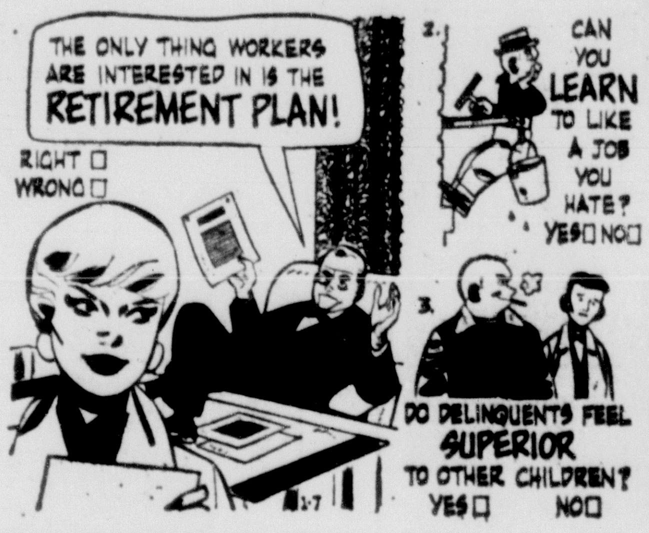
Workers Want



THE ONLY THING WORKERS ARE INTERESTED IN IS THE RETIREMENT PLAN!

CAN YOU LEARN TO LIKE A JOB YOU HATE?
YES☐ NO☐
3.
DO DELINQUENTS FEEL SUPERIOR TO OTHER CHILDREN?
YES☐ NO☐

By S. M. DUVALL and EVELAN M. DUVALL, Ph.Ds

WRONG. JOB satisfaction, says industrial relationist Keith Powlison, means far more than job security or a guaranteed annual wage or any amount of fringe benefits. Men want to feel that their work is important; and that, in doing it, they amount to something themselves. The best morale builder isn't any retirement plan, but satisfaction in work from day to day.

2. Yes, you often can. Studies at the Hawthrone Plant of Westinghouse Electric, for example, showed that the trouble often lay, not with the job or the people worked with, but the attitudes of the individual himself. When people were helped to straighten out their own personal problems, requests for transfers dropped and people who hated their jobs learned to like them.

3. No. Studies show just the opposite. More delinquent than non-delinquent children from the same families have marked feelings of inferiority. Some of these inadequacies are real and others are fancied, but the youngster feels inferior just the same. A kid in trouble may put on an act and try to get away with a lot of bravado, but underneath he probably feels pretty inadequate.

Ivan's Content Without Property

By JOHN B. McDERMOTT
Herald Staff Writer

John B. McDermott

MOSCOW — The Russian people like their own way of life, whatever Americans may think.

From the man-in-the-street to the party official, every Russian I've met both here in the capital and in Leningrad has attested to that fact.

They all admit, frankly, that they look forward to a higher living standard — something comparable to that in the U.S. But to them the development of the state comes first.

Daniel Fedorovich Kraminov, a devoted Communist official and an editor of the Communist organ Pravda, put it this way:

"In America, property is all privately owned. There are 'no trespassing' signs every place when you go out in the country to hunt, fish or to have a picnic. Even your ocean beaches are mostly private.

"Here, when I go to the country with my family, whatever place I choose for our outing, that is mine while I am there.

"The state owns everything here and I am part of the state. The next day, if I want to pick strawberries some place else I can do so without anyone stopping me."

A group of workers we bumped into in Red Square made no bones about the fact they felt Russia offered far more security than they would have in the U.S.

"How can some of you Americans live so well when so many people are unemployed?" asked one young man in his mid-twenties. "Here everybody works. We have jobs."

One of my Intourist guides, a young man who spoke fluent English, said he would not like to risk living in the U.S. where he could never be certain of having job.

"You always have work in the Soviet Union," he declared. "Everybody is part of the state and the state looks after everyone."

He said he would welcome having a larger apartment — he has two rooms for his wife and their one child — but he figures that will be possible later as Russian living standards are raised by the united production effort of the entire country.

A Leningrad housewife with two children and a husband all living in one big room, admitted her life is cramped. However, she said she was not complaining.

"Our seven-year plan, which is just beginning, will do much to improve our living," she said.

"We in the city don't expect to have our own houses. Why should we want them? All we need are larger apartments. Then, when something goes wrong — like the toilet breaking down or the paint peeling from the wall — we just call the building caretaker.

"The state fixes it without cost to us."

Perhaps what all Russians like best about their living is the low rent. They are assessed by the state on a square-footage basis for their living and bed rooms. Kitchen and bathroom, if there is one, are thrown in without charge.

Tom Nugent Put Florida State's Football on Big Time Basis

FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY is losing Coach Tom Nugent to Maryland, but it will retain some of the advantages he created. A less daring man than Nugent would have required longer to give FSU a satisfying taste of bigtime football.

Nugent, a man in a hurry, fought successfully to force the University of Florida to play the Seminoles. Tom yelled loud enough to get FSU a larger slice of the loot from special days operated at Florida's pari-mutuel plants to improve the football breed at state schools. This past year the total for Florida, FSU and Florida A. & M., amounted to $366,481.60.

Nugent picked a good time to venture into what he considered greener pastures. Some are saying he'll have a tougher time at Maryland, where the trend was towards de-emphasis of football after Jim Tatum's reign. Tommy Mont had to depart, because the de-emphasizing went even beyond expectations.

It is a matter of record that Nugent has not flinched from demanding challenges. He met 'em head on at FSU and no doubt he will pursue the same bold tactics with the Terps.

Nugent had an excellent record this past season and his team upsetting Miami and Tennessee were glorious victories. The Seminoles lost with honor in their inaugural with Florida, losing only, 21-7.

Something new was added in Maryland seeking permission from FSU before approaching Nugent who had a year to go on his contract. This was a welcome departure from coach raiding tactics employed by some other schools.

9-Club League, 5-Day Week?

BASEBALL MAGNATES will be happy to hear that C. Leo DeOrsey, Washington club attorney, has tired of authoring magazine articles. In recent years he wrote a couple of pieces on what's wrong with the game, and had the owners hotter than a resin baked potato.

DeORSEY

It is not that Leo, now vacationing at the Kenilworth hotel, has run out of ideas. Quite to the contrary, he has some new ones.

They are geared to help both the big and minor leagues.

"In 1948, the minors had attendance of 48,000,000," Leo explained. "This past season it had dropped to 13,000,000 and in 10 years the American league's paid admissions had declined 4,000,000. The National showed a slight gain, only because of moving two clubs."

Without waiting to be asked what should be done, DeOrsey came up with some revolutionary ideas:

(1) The American and National should have nine clubs, with the latter putting a team in New York. A full schedule of six inter-league games should be played in addition to 12 within each league. That adds up to 154.

(2) Baseball should go on a five-day week, leaving Mondays and Tuesdays open and playing doubleheaders only on Sundays.

(3) Without new legislation the harm done by telecasting major league games could be eliminated by pooling all receipts from TV rights. The money should be distributed:

(A) Part going to minor league teams, which suffer at the gate because of TV.

(B) Another portion to be used in setting up a pension plan for the minor players.

(C) The largest share to be divided equally between the major league clubs.

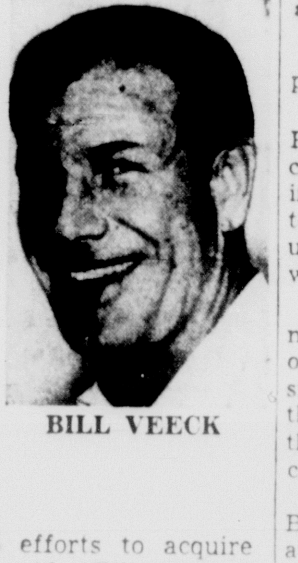
Help Minors Discover Talent

WARMING TO his subject, DeOrsey suggested the $500,000 now administered by Bill DeWitt to aid hungry minor teams should be used to finance a gigantic scouting system. The players would be developed by the minor clubs and then drafted by the majors.

"Why a five-day week?" DeOrsey said in repeating the question, "Because it is the trend in labor and business circles. The fans and players would have a chance to rest and towards the end of the season the off Mondays and Tuesdays could be used to make up postponed games."

DeOrsey declared pooling of television receipts would eliminate need for legislation to curb this activity and all hands would profit.



BILL VEECK

Concerning Bill Veeck

CONCERNING BILL VEECK'S efforts to acquire control of the White Sox, DeOrsey said, "Bill tried to buy the Senators. The Griffith family has pooled its stock and no one could purchase the Senators without taking all of their stock."

Would the return of Veeck help baseball?

"Let's put it this way," said DeOrsey. "Bill is a good promoter and baseball needs a shot in the arm."

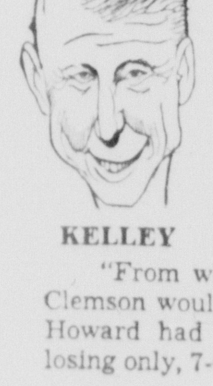
Whitey Gains Weight, Surprise

WHILE WHITEY KELLEY, Charlotte Observer executive sports editor, was visiting in the Herald sports department, where he once worked, Mort Flanagan, sage of the composing room, made an observation.



KELLEY

"Kelley's getting fat," said Mort.

Whitey, who is visiting here with Harvey (Geechee) James, allowed he picked up the extra poundage at New Orleans, where the Sugar Bowl people take good care of visiting writers.

"From what I'd heard about LSU's speed, I thought Clemson would be beaten badly," Kelley said. "But Frank Howard had his team ready and Clemson did well in losing only, 7-0."

Peggy Nugent's Reaction

When Daddy Says 'Move', You Move

By BILL McGROTHA
Herald Correspondent

TALLAHASSEE — "C'est la guerre . . . When Daddy says move, you move."

Thusly Peggy Nugent summed up her reaction to news that her husband had accepted a four-year contract to coach football at University of Maryland.

The pretty mother of nine said that she and Tom had discussed with the older children the possibility of their leaving Tallahassee and his job at Florida State before he departed Saturday for the NCAA meetings in Cincinnati.

"The kids are very adaptable, and they'll get along fine," she said. "It's sort of like being in the service. You move around now and then.

"But really, the kids are ready. They never give you a hard time, or anything. They're looking forward to the snow. Me, I'm looking forward to a fur coat."

Nugent smilingly always contended that with such a family — five boys, four girls — the milkman would raise such a fuss that he'd never be permitted to leave Florida State.

"I guess," said Peg, "he's crying in his milk right now."

She added: "Seriously, we sure hate to leave Tallahassee. We're going to miss all the friends we've made here and all over the state. We hope they'll miss us . . . this is a fine opportunity. I think Tom is a fine coach and worthy of this new job."

Around town, the completely surprising development hit like a shock wave. Few believed the rumor that circulated in mid-morning. Newspaper and radio station switchboards were pounded with inquiries.

Weldon (Babe) Starry, president of Seminole Boosters, summed up the majority reaction:

There was quick speculation over a successor. Starry said he would recommend to FSU's Athletic Committee that it try to get Terry Brennan, ousted Notre Dame coach.

WANTED--by FSU
. . . Terry Brennan

Apparently, there is no "logical choice" candidate and the Athletic Committee, due to convene today, will probably consider a number of prospects.

Big question with many folks was why FSU failed to meet the Maryland offer. Nugent said in Cincinnati he would have stayed on had FSU done so.

The four-year Maryland contract reportedly calls for $15,000 annually, plus the use of a residence and an automobile. For the past two years Nugent had received $13,000 at FSU. Named athletic director last May at no increase in pay, he had been recently recommended for a $1,000 raise.

The Maryland job is also said to include other "fringe benefits" including the probability of a good income from television appearances.

"I think the Maryland offer is beyond what we could give," Dr. Robert Strozier, FSU president said simply.

Nugent, now 45, came to FSU six years ago after four seasons at VMI. His all-time college coaching record is 53-45-3. His FSU record is 34-26-1. The Seminoles were a surprising 7-3 success last season, and drew an invitation to the Bluegrass Bowl where they lost, 15-6, to Oklahoma State.

Nugent Chosen Maryland Coach

By Herald Wire Services

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — The University of Maryland, apparently seeking to regain stature as a ranking football power, Tuesday chose promising Tom Nugent of Florida State as its head football coach.

Nugent, who led FSU to marked success during his six years as head coach and his last year, as athletic director, succeeds Tommy Mont, who resigned Dec. 8 under pressure after three dismal seasons.

Nugent was given a four-year contract calling for a reported $15,000 yearly, use of an automobile and house, and other "fringe benefits." He reports to College Park Jan. 15.

Told in Cincinnati that Maryland had announced his selection, the 45-year-old Nugent split his face with a wide grin. "I knew it was coming," he said, "but I'm still thrilled."

Florida State boosters, after the shock of the sudden shift, immediately recommended the school go for Terry Brennan or Otto Graham to replace Nugent.

Nugent, called "The Magician" by FSU rooters, took over there in 1953, and was the key man in the progress of GI football from a "pickup sport" in 1947 to a 1958 record of seven victories, three losses, and a trip to Louisville, Ky.'s Blue Grass Bowl.

Before going to Florida State in 1953, he coached four years at VMI. His 10-year coaching record shows 53 victories, 45 losses and three ties. At FSU, his teams went 34-26-1.

Under Jim Tatum, now at North Carolina, Maryland rose to the No. 1 spot in the nation in 1953. Tatum's business-like recruiting program and related activities had the full endorsement of President H. C. (Curley) Byrd, himself a Maryland coach from 1912 to 1934.

But, when Dr. Byrd retired, his successor, Dr. Wilson H. Elkins, made no secret of his opinion that football at Maryland would be de-emphasized. Tatum stayed one more year, then pushed on to UNC . . . and Mont moved up from assistant to head coach.

Nugent stressed that negotiations among Maryland, Florida State and the football coach were a model of gentlemanly conduct in a sport which has often been criticized for contract jumping by coaches and pirating of coaches by institutions.

"The first I heard about it was when our president at Florida State, Dr. Robert M. Strozier, asked me to come to his home in Tallahassee last Friday," Nugent explained. He added:

"He then told me that the Maryland president, Dr. Wilson Elkins, has asked permission from Florida State to talk contract with me. Dr. Strozier said I was a "free agent," but that I could stay at Florida State 'forever' if I wished.

"Naturally I was interested in the Maryland post," Nugent continued, "and on Saturday I went to Atlanta to talk to Dr. Elkins. We agreed immediately.

'Visitor' Wants Miami Job

Pepper Martin Here, Marlins' New Pilot?

By EDDIE STORIN
Herald Sports Writer

Before the week is out, the famed leader of the old St. Louis Cardinals' Gas House Gang probably will be manager of the 1959 Marlins.

"I hope it comes to pass," Martin said firmly when asked about his chances of becoming Miami's third skipper in four years of International League baseball.

"I came here for one reason — to talk about the job. But to be perfectly frank, Joe Ryan (Marlin general manager) and I have spent the last 24 hours talking over old times. We haven't mentioned a blessed thing about the job."

Ryan explained Martin's presence this way:

"We are strongly considering Pepper as manager and the club brought him here for an interview. It gives him a chance to look over our situation and us a chance to talk things over with him."

Since Ryan admittedly has no intentions of bringing any other candidates to town and since Martin "came here to get the job," it's safe to assume the Marlins have filled a vacancy on their payroll.

Martin, who managed Miami Beach Flamingos under Ryan at the turn of the 50's, has a three-fold reason for wanting to pilot the Marlins.

"I love baseball," said Pepper, "and I want to stay in it. Secondly that fellow over there (he pointed to Ryan) is the best I've ever worked with. And I think I can do a good job.

"No, I haven't changed in any respect from the way I was back in 1953 (his last year with Miami Beach). I still think that people come to baseball games to be entertained and like to laugh when they see something funny," Martin said.

"But when you get right down to it, in baseball there's only one thing that people want—something resembling a winner. If I get to be manager here I'm going to try to give them that in the most artful way I know how."

The 55-year-old Oklahoma rancher is no newcomer to triple A competition. In 1942 he led Sacramento to its only Pacific Coast League pennant and later managed San Diego (PCL) and Rochester of the IL.

After the Florida International League folded in '53, Martin managed at Portsmouth, Va., Macon and Des Moines. He coached the Chicago Cubs in 1956 and last year was coach at Tulsa in the Texas League.

"Yep," Pepper concluded, "I've been around a long time. And I ain't through. I think I have a future in this business and I'd like to start proving it right here."

Don Tharpe Plans Shift

Don Tharpe, assistant manager of Bowlerama for the past three years, will resign his position next week.

The New Jersey bowler will become night manager at the Bowling Palace soon thereafter. It marks the second change in the Bowlerama staff in the past two days. Manager Jim Facente left Monday to direct the new Palm Springs lanes.

Butts Gets 41, Hialeah Romps

Bernie Butts poured in 41 points Tuesday night as host Hialeah routed Fort Lauderdale Central Catholic, 83-47. It was Hialeah's third straight basketball victory.

Yankees Slate 3 Day, 3 Night Contests Here

By JIMMY BURNS
Herald Sports Editor

Two "repeat games" of the 1958 World Series are scheduled this spring during the New York Yankees' six day and night exhibition stand at Miami Stadium.

The Yankees will open their longest Miami appearance on Thursday night, March 19 against Milwaukee and play the Braves here again Friday afternoon.

First of three games with the Baltimore Orioles, who will do their spring training here, comes Saturday night. The Yankees play the Orioles Sunday and Monday afternoons and close out their stadium appearance against the Chicago White Sox on Tuesday night, March 24.

Along with the Orioles' own exhibitions, Miamians will see 17 games involving practically all of the major league clubs training in Florida.

The Yankees Tuesday announced a 31-game spring training schedule against 11 major and one minor league clubs. They will play the Virginians, their farm club, at Richmond en route home.

The Yankees' prolonged visit in Miami was arranged between Dan Topping — co-Yankee owner, and George B. Storer, owner of the Marlins of the International League. The exhibition games will be handled locally by the Marlins, who paid the city $40,000 in rent for the stadium from February through October.

The Miami club will retain the rent paid by the visiting major league clubs. In past seasons this has amounted to around $17,000 and should be increased by the Yankees' presence.

Manager Casey Stengel has ordered his batterymen to report at Miller Huggins Field, St. Petersburg, Feb. 19, with the remainder of the squad reporting Feb. 26. The exhibitions start on March 7, with the Yankees opening against the Cardinals at St. Petersburg.

Vanderbilt Surprises Kentucky

NASHVILLE —(AP)— Vanderbilt's Capt. Jim Henry scored 29 points in leading the Commodores to an astonishing 75-66 victory over Kentucky's Wildcats, ranked No. 1 in the nation, Tuesday night.

Vanderbilt carried a mediocre 5-5 record into the game against the Wildcats, who had won 14 straight this season. Kentucky's win streak carried through last year's NCAA tournament play and had reached 16 before the Vanderbilt upset.

Vandy took advantage of Kentucky's extremely poor first half shooting to build up a 41-27 halftime lead. The Kentuckians hit nine of 39 field goal attempts in the first 20 minutes, while Vanderbilt scored on 14 of 29 from the floor.

Henry contributed 15 of his 29 points during those first 20 minutes. Reserve Guard Warren Fiser, a sophomore who has been bothered with a sore foot, added 10 during the first half.

The Commodores were never behind after five minutes of the game. They trailed, 7-4, when Henry and Depp combined for seven straight points to push them in front, 11-7.

Gorham, Johns Co-Favored

Bobby Johns and Al Gorham share the favorite's role for the featured 30-lapper in Hollywood Speedway's sportsman-modified stock car program Saturday night.

Also on the program is a 15-lap jalopy chase. Races begin at 8:30.

Gables, which led 32-28 at the half and 46-44 going into the final period, missed two field goal attempts in the final five seconds.

Generals Score In Sudden Death

Danny Riveiro, held to two points for three quarters, went wild in the final frantic minutes to give Jackson a sudden-death 42-40 overtime victory over Edison Tuesday night on the winners' court.

Riveiro scored Jackson's final 10 points of the game, including the deciding bucket in the second extra period. Riveiro had sent the game into overtime with a basket that tied the score 38-38 with seven seconds to go.

Then, in the first overtime, Riveiro sank a pair of free throws to again knot the score, 40-40, and set up the sudden-death stanza.

Krulewitch Succeeds Helfand as NY Boss

ALBANY, N.Y. — (AP) — Gov. Nelson Rockefeller Tuesday night announced the appointment of Melvin Krulewitch, New York City attorney, as chairman of the State Athletic Commission.

He replaced Julius Helfand, who has been chairman of the commission since his appointment by outgoing Gov. Averell Harriman in January, 1955.

Rockefeller's appointment of Krulewitch filled a vacancy on the commission caused by the departure of Francis J. Souhan. In filling a vacancy, the governor has the power to designate the chairman.

Helfand said at his home in Brooklyn that his term would expire Jan. 1, 1960.

"Whether I will serve out the term, I can't say at this time," Helfand added.

The chairman is paid $16,900 annually. The two commissioners receive $63 a day for attendance at meetings.

The third commission member is James A. Farley Jr., whose term runs to Jan. 1, 1961.

Bardstown Totes 126 In Tropical

When Bardstown bids Saturday to become the first thoroughbred to win the $50,000 added Tropical Park Handicap twice he will carry top weight of 126 pounds.

The Calumeter will be spotting his closest rival, Claiborne Farm's Nadir, four pounds in the mile and a furlong feature according to the weights assigned Tuesday by Director of Racing Francis P. Dunne.

Dunne alloted imposts to the remaining 29 of the original list of 31 nominees. They range from Bardstown's 126 pounds down to the 102 pound package assigned Guy's Birthday.

Both Clem and Manteau have already been declared out of the race due to injuries.

In winning the Tropical Handicap two years ago, Bardstown carried 128 pounds. He defeated 15 rivals, winning by a length and a quarter in 1:48 4-5.

In last Saturday's Orange Bowl Handicap, Bardstown toted 124 pounds and set a track record of 1:40 2-5 for 1 1-16 miles.

Nadir, who was scratched from the Orange Bowl, has been alloted the same impost of 122 pounds he was slated to carry in last week's feature.

Others among the high weights in the Tropical will be A Dragon Killer and Mister Jive at 117 pounds, Hoop Band 116, Cain Hoy's One-Eyed King, another withdrawal from the Orange Bowl and Sharpsburg 115.

Bracketed at 114 are Amerigo, second to Bardstown in the Orange Bowl and St. Amour II, winner of last year's Tropical Park Handicap.

Tough Job Ahead

TV Scrap Pits Mims With Boyd

CHICAGO—(AP)—Bobby Boyd, who is trying to punch his way back to middleweight recognition, and well-tested Holly Mims meet in a 10 round bout in Chicago Stadium tonight.

Boyd, gangling 25-year-old Chicagoan who a few years ago was ranked the No. 1 contender, is a 7-5 favorite for the televised fight (Ch. 10, 10 p.m.)

It will mark the third clash of the two. Mims, 30, of Washington, D. C., held the unranked Boyd to a draw a year ago in Miami Beach after being beaten by him on April 18, 1956 in Chicago Stadium.

TV FIGHT

Mims is the spoiler type and has some difficulty landing fights. He supplements his ring earnings by driving a mail truck.

He had an exceptionally good year in 1958. After drawing with Boyd he defeated highly rated Spider Webb in Fort Wayne, Ind.

Boyd lost to Rory Calhoun in Chicago last June, then stopped Jimmy Morris in Miami Beach a month later. The next month he lost in the same ring to Jimmy Beecham, then defeated Beecham in a rematch in Chicago.

Coaches Propose Chats With QB's

By Herald Wire Services

College football coaches went on record Tuesday as favoring a rule which would permit one player — usually the quarterback — to confer with his coach during time out.

They also suggested returning the goal posts to the goal line to promote field goal kicking; more liberal substitution; and a rewriting of the present one-arm blocking rule.

The recommendations were from the Advisory Rules Committee of the American College Football Coaches Association meeting in Cincinnati. They may — or may not be — adopted by the National Rules Committee when it meets in Los Angeles next week.

Of 831 coaches polled, 662 favored allowing one player to talk with the coach during timeouts. More than 500 wanted goal posts moved back to the goal line.

Cooper Beaten

AUSTRALIAN tennis ace Ashley Cooper made his professional debut in Sydney, Australia. He played for nothing and lost.

Veteran Pancho Segura of Ecuador defeated the 22-year-old Cooper, 8-5 in a one-set match. Cooper's pay starts Thursday when he plays a match in Melbourne.

Floyd To Fight?

FLOYD PATTERSON'S manager, Cus D'Amato, indicated that the heavyweight champion may have a couple of title fights this year before he gets around to Sweden's Ingemar Johansson.

But D'Amato wouldn't say who he had in mind for Patterson to meet first.

"Johansson is not imperative to us," said D'Amato bluntly.

Yanks Satisfied

BECAUSE of the recently completed Florida Winter Instructional League, the New York Yankees probably will have no spring training school for hopeful young farmhands, Assistant Farm Director Johnny Johnson said.

Cronin 'Cinch'

IT BECAME CLEAR Tuesday that Joe Cronin is the solid No. 1 candidate to succeed Will Harridge as American League president.

Official announcement is expected Jan. 31, at a meeting of league club owners in New York. They will receive recommendation of a screening committee, which meets in Chicago Jan. 14.

'Not For Sale'

MRS. GENE MARKEY, owner of the famous Calumet Farm at Lexington, Ky., said Tuesday in Miami reports that she planned to sell the thoroughbred establishment were "utterly ridiculous."

Downey Heads List Of Doherty Entries

Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore, defending champion, was the first of 60 golfers to send in entries for the Helen Lee Doherty golf tournament at Coral Ridge, Jan. 21-25, Bob Hines, club manager, announced Tuesday.

Another early entrant was Marlene Stewart Streit, 1958 runnerup who is still ambitious to win the Doherty championship. Mrs. Streit has won the United States and British women's amateur titles and the Canadian championship.

Hines predicted a field of 90 contestants for the tournament limited to golfers with a handicap of 12 or better. He reported that Joanne Goodwin, Mass., golfer and 1956 winner, has entered.

Hines is hopeful Anne Quast, Marysville, Wash., who won the Women's National Amateur in 1958, will return. Miss Quast, 1957 Doherty winner, had to skip the tournament last year because of illness.

Moylan Wins Dixie Match

TAMPA — (AP) — Top-seeded Eddie Moylan of Trenton, N.J., met strong resistance from Brazil's young Edison Mandarino Tuesday but steadied himself for a 6-1, 7-5 victory in the second round of the Dixie International Tennis tournament.

Moylan reinjured a back muscle in the match and left immediately for a doctor's office. Later, taped about the chest, he announced he was withdrawing from double competition but would continue in the singles.

Fish License Switch Tops 12 Game Bills

A dozen proposed legislative bills sponsored by the Florida Wildlife Federation have been endorsed by the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission as acceptable and beneficial to the wildlife interests of the state.

The bills will be submitted to the 1959 State Legislature, and O. Earl Frye, assistant director of the Game Commission, is inviting interested parties to express their points of view beforehand.

DUNAWAY

Frye terms six of the bills as being of major importance. The remaining half-dozen are either of local or limited interest.

The bill with the most public effect would be a law requiring fishing licenses for all persons between the ages of 15 and 65. Presently, county residents are permitted to fish without a license in their home county, provided they use poles and do not fish commercially.

This bill would add license revenue, in addition to simplifying the enforcement of license laws. Residents older than 65, and children under 15 would remain exempt.

Million-Dollar Fishery Fund Asked

THE OTHER proposed bills are:

A measure calling for a special legislative appropriation of about one million dollars for statewide fishery restoration and improvement, including land and access point acquisition, boat launching sites, lake construction and control of undesirable water vegetation. The 1957 legislature appropriated $532,000 to these purposes.

A bill providing county commissioners with authority to condemn lands to provide public access to certain public waters.

A bill enabling the U.S. Government to use Federal Duck Stamp revenue to purchase Florida lands for wildlife management areas, after approval by appropriate state authorities.

A concurrent resolution endorsing a policy of cooperative regulation of fish in tidal waters by the State Board of Conservation and the Game Commission. This would permit development of more effective and workable regulations to cope adequately with the problem created by the mixing of salt and fresh water fish in tidal waters.

FISHING
with Vic Dunaway

Bills providing for the registration and safe operation of boats, including airboats. This legislation is presently being prepared by the Governor's Advisory Committee on Water Access and Water Safety.

Boating legislation is imperative because of a U.S. law providing that the federal government will regulate boating if the states do not.

* * *

Revision of License Setup Proposed

THE SIX LIMITED or local interest bills proposed are subject to final recommendations form the individuals and business concerns that will be affected. These are:

New legislation on bait dealers licenses, clarifying present laws and establishing license fees; also alligator hunters and dealers license; wild animal exhibitors licenses; and frog dealers licenses.

A licensing system similar to that used in other states will be recommended for commercial shooting preserves, and there is a proposed local bill governing operation of airboats in Alachua County.

Hickox Tops UM Scorers

Mike McCoy, the much-talked about "runaway" basketball player from Northwestern, will get his first glimpse of the University of Miami's high-scoring cage team Thursday night when the Hurricanes take on University of Toronto in the Miami Beach Auditorium.

McCoy said Tuesday he was anxious to see the team play and will be "a spectator at the UM game Thursday."

As the UM cagers go into the game with the Canadians, tiny Dick Hickox is the leading UM scorer with an amazing 181 points. Another sophomore, Ron Godfrey, is Miami's No. 2 point maker with 161, topping Senior Joe Gardner by nine.

Accuracy from the floor is a mark of Miami's performance this season. The top six men have hit from 41 to 50 per cent of their field goal efforts to give the team a field goal accuracy of almost 42 per cent against 38 per cent for the opposition.

The women's tournament gets under way at noon. Opening ceremonies are scheduled for 11:30.

A record entry looms for the three weekend tournament with 234 teams entered. The doubles count has reached 204 and the singles, 408.

UM Mermen Go Saturday

Swimming makes its seasonal debut Saturday for the University of Miami when Coach Lloyd Bennett sends his natators against the University of Florida team.

The meet will get under way at 2 p.m. at the Veterans Hospital pools in Coral Gables.

Bennett's chief loss from his 1958 team was Martin Redlich, ace freestyler. However, he has regained sprinter Hal Mischner who has been in the service for a couple of years.

DANDY BLITZEN forced early pace while in hand, wore down SANDYS JOY from outside when ready on entering stretch, drew clear at will and won with something left. Latter had her early speed, saved ground and gave way readily to winner. MARE'S BEAU lost all chances when it appeared she was unprepared for start. COURT PLANTING gained a striking position on final bend but had nothing left when real test came. BONNIE A. bled.

THE GREAT MAN unhurried early, came wide to make his belated bid on second turn, was brushed by NICKEL BOY when that one drifted out entering stretch, responded to urging while continuing wide and wore down leaders while drifting in through closing strides. NICKEL BOY worked his way up gradually while racing between horses, drifted out slightly entering stretch was immediately straightened away and finished gamely while being carried in. A stewards inquiry revealed insufficient cause for a disqualification as the first two horses were equally at fault. SAM SLICK found his best stride too late while closing a big gap. NITIME was forced to steady when blocked entering first turn and dropped back steadily thereafter.

Flagler Futurity Starts Tonight

The 24 top young racing greyhounds in the nation clash tonight in the three first-round heats of the rich $2,500 added Flagler Futurity.

This four round elimination contest, concluding on Jan. 14, is open to greyhounds whelped on or after Jan. 1, 1957.

Most of the 24 starters arrived for the current meet unheralded, some have compiled great win records at Flagler, and all have proven consistent money finishers. In all, the big group has been to the post 315 times this season, returning with 85 victories and 169 payoff finishes.

Tonight's three heats — the seventh, eighth, and ninth events on a 10-race card — will be at the standard 5-16th mile distance.

Leading the post parade for the seventh will be the amazing Johnny's Best, winner of seven, including one string of three straight.

Benito Top 'Yearling' At Fronton

Benito, a tall Mexican youth, may be the best young prospect among Miami Fronton first-year men.

A sensation at West Palm Beach last winter, Benito summered at Mexico and repeated as a stickout in front court and singles play.

Benito, who taught himself the game at nine and handwove his own crude cesta for practice, has finished in the money 21 times in 46 outings in the first, second and third games.

Otto Graham To 'Inspect' CG Academy

NEW LONDON, Conn. —(AP) — Otto Graham, a football great, is coming here over the week-end to look over the Coast Guard Academy.

Since the Academy is looking for a head football coach, and Graham is available, there's no secret about the purpose of his visit.

"We've been in contact with Graham for some time," said Capt. John Forney Tuesday.

Marcelino Keys Field At Dania

His chief competition, as usual, figures to come from Bari and Alex. Ignacio, who barely missed the singles title in the 1957-58 season, is another likely contender.

a—E. L. Cotton & Miss Ethel Pepper entry.

ACES EVEN's last race points him out; BRADLEY is a speedy fellow, could be right there; GONE will be roaring up the stretch; FORKY may upset at a price.

Bet I Can Tops Field At Beach

John G. Conlen's Bet I Can, pressed to the limit in winning effort the last time out, hopes to find an easier assignment in tonight's Grade A eighth race over the Rickard Course at the Miami Beach Kennel Club.

The speedy daughter of Running Streak-Trudy Alice engaged in a stretch battle with Flip That to win her latest effort by half a length. The two resume their rivalry tonight.

A third contender in the field is Amble, an offspring of old Beach track favorite Original.

Another three-way battle may result in the ninth race, also a Grade A test, over the Smith Course. Buck Joe, Foxy Guy and Trans Trix all previous winners at the week-old Beach meeting, are the trio.

Hollywood Field 'Fast'

Al Dark, who has run against Bud Jack on several occasions, headlines this speed field, but encounters plenty of opposition from Three Guesses, Bright Magic, Glide Home and Snow Cap, all excellent box breakers.

Compare Your Income With Neighbors'

Half of City Families Earn $5,300 or More

By SYLVIA PORTER
Financial Columnist

How does your income rate against your neighbor's as this new year opens with more Americans in cities making more money than ever before?

You're only average if your family earns over $5,300 a year. Half the city families in our country earn at least this.

You're only average if your income has been rising with just minor interruptions since World War II. Family incomes have been in a steady climb and the dips in the 1948-49, 1953-54, and 1957-58 recessions were picayune.

SYLVIA PORTER

You're only average if in the past three years, the increase in your income has been significantly ahead of the increase in your cost of living. Between 1955 and 1956, average family income jumped a whopping 8 per cent; in 1957 it went up another 4 per cent; it rose again last year.

You're only an average veteran of World War II if your income has more than doubled since 1947 as compared with a rise in incomes of nonvets of about 65 per cent. In 1947 the average veteran was earning less than a nonvet; now he's earning $700 a year more.

* * *

If you're a self-employed professional, you're "in the middle" if your income tops $7,300 — half of your group makes more, half less.

If you're a husband-and-wife team and the head of the family is a year-round, full-time worker, you're in the middle if your income tops $6,800 — and four out of 10 of you earn from $7,000 up.

You have 4,000,000 "neighbors" if your family income is over $10,000 and 18,000,000 neighbors if it's between $5,000 and $10,000.

And you're among the seven of 10 families in our country if you're earning more than you did a year ago or at least as much and among the nearly eight of 10 if a year from now you expect to be earning more than you earn today or at least as much.

I dug these fascinating figures out of the Census Bureau's just-released final report on income of U.S. families in 1957 and the latest consumer study by the University of Michigan Survey Research Center.

Rate yourself on the scale before you read on. I think you'll find the answers gratifying, discover you're comfortably above the nation's average.

* * *

Now, what major implications do the statistics suggest?

They dramatize the extent to which we have become a nation dominated by middle-income families, underline our continuing march toward a land in which "income equality" is more than a textbook phrase.

Of course, you've heard this said before — but the social revolution inherent in these figures simply cannot be overemphasized. There is no parallel for us anywhere.

They pound home the fundamental fact that we not only have more spending power than ever before but we also have more power over how we spend. This is a profoundly important distinction.

Millions of families now have more than they need for the necessities of life. How they spend what's left over—their so-called discretionary income—now is a vital factor in the trend of our economy. If you decide to save, pay off debts, you help slow down business. If you decide to buy cars and appliances enthusiastically, you put a glow on the entire country. Never have so many had so much discretion about their spending.

And they underline the probability that we'll keep upgrading our purchases, increasing our demands for new goods and services.

* * *

It is the middle-income American who is spending more and more for pre-packaged and easy-to-serve foods. It is this consumer who is devoting an increasing share of his income to education, medical care, travel, leisure activities, quality goods and services.

This is the month of the President's messages and in the weeks ahead the headlines will be loaded with billion-dollar figures measuring our nation's progress. But none will have the direct personal meaning of these two:

At the end of World War II, the average city family's income was well under $3,000. Now it's marching toward $6,000.

For Best Tax Deal, When Shall I Sell?

By WILLIAM A. DOYLE

Q. The stocks I bought last August have risen in value a great deal. Some people tell me that if I sell the stocks at a profit now, I will have to pay higher federal income taxes than if I wait and hold the stock six months. They say that if I own the stocks six months, I will only have to declare half of my profits for tax purposes. Can you clarify this point for me?

A. You're getting straight information. There is a big tax advantage when you sell securities or any other property which is a capital asset at a profit after more than six months' ownership.

DOYLE

The long-term (over six months) capital gains situation is widely misunderstood. But it's really very simple.

The law is that a person who has a long-term capital gain does not have to pay a tax of more than 25 per cent on that profit.

And the tax on a long-term capital gain can be a good bit less than 25 per cent. That's because the taxpayer has the option to pay a straight income tax on only half the profit — at whatever regular income tax rate applies in his or her case.

So, if you are one of the fortunate people who is in a 40 per cent or better tax bracket, you pay a 25 per cent capital gains tax. If you are in a lower tax bracket, you naturally use the second method of computing capital gains taxes and pay a lower effective tax rate on your profits.

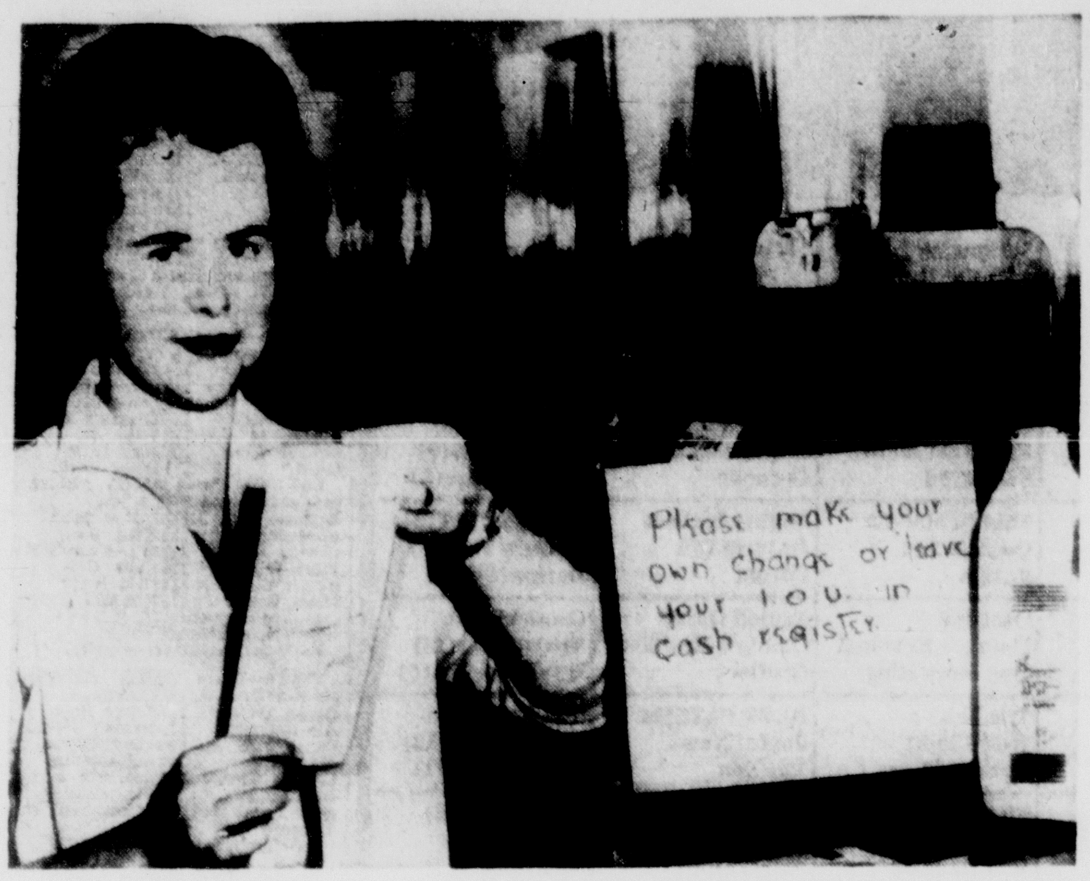
Q. I am 14 years old and have saved $1,000 by selling newspapers. I would like to invest that money and the $500 I expect to earn in each of the next three years. The money is now in a savings bank, but I feel I would do better by buying one or two common stocks.

I am considering Beneficial Finance and Columbia Gas. I have checked up on both and think Beneficial has better growth prospects. What advice can you give me?

A. Before advice, I'll offer congratulations. I'm saving your letter to show to my Big Guy and Little Terror when they get older.

You have picked two sensible investments. And you have them pegged right. Beneficial Finance is rated as having greater growth possibilities than Columbia Gas. But it isn't considered as safe a situation. Keep that in mind.

Splitting your investments between the two would seem to be a wise thing to do. But don't rush into it. Have your mother or father open two Monthly Investment Plans for you. That way you'll avoid the possibility of a big loss — just in case the stock market turns suddenly sour.



Honor Bought

This customer found the cashier gone when she went to buy milk at Ralph McKenzie's Brampton, Ontario, dairy bar. So she took note of the sign and left an I.O.U. MacKenzie and his staff took a holiday and left the store open with only the honor system to run it. Returning, he found that receipts, including I.O.U.'s, balanced exactly. More than $60 change was left in the cash register.

It's Taxes, Not Revolutions, That Cloud Latin Investments

By STAN JOHNSON
Herald Business Writer

A noticeable coolness is developing in the postwar romance between U. S. businessmen and Latin America.

It's not political upheavals, like the one in Cuba, but rising taxes and labor costs that worry investors in the United States.

Businessmen here say there are still opportunities for American investment capital in South and Central America. But, some of them add, many of the advantages which once existed have disappeared.

The U. S. company with development capital often finds today that the net return on a dollar invested in Latin America is no greater than in this country. Risks, on the other hand, are much greater.

The recent Venezuelan tax increase is viewed by Miami-based firms as a far more serious development than the fall of the Batista government in Cuba.

"Latins," said one oil company executive, "have a high regard for the sanctity of the contract. There have been very few cases of expropriation by a new government since the war."

However, the clamor for higher living standards in Latin America has caused wages and taxes to rise more rapidly than they have in the U.S.

Money is unstable in many South American countries. Currency devaluations have cost American companies millions of dollars in the past year.

Devaluation means that accounts receivable will bring in fewer dollars and that depreciation allowances will be inadequate.

However, there is no protection from sudden tax increases, skyrocketing wages and government regulations.

These are the factors that most affect profits, and they are also the reason why U. S. companies are no longer as eager as they once were to invest in Latin America.

The Corner Grocer Is Rallying

The independent grocer is faring well in Florida in the face of increased competition from the chain stores, a report by Associated Grocers of Florida indicated Tuesday.

Tom W. Smith, Associated's general manager, said small store owners actually increased gross sales last year.

Membership in Associated Grocers, a cooperative buying organization, rose five per cent during 1958 to a total of 131 stores in Florida and the Caribbean, Smith said.

He said AGF delivered to its members 25 per cent more groceries and household supplies than in 1957.

Price cuts have been announced by Sears Roebuck & Co. and Spiegel Inc. Sears cut its prices 13 per cent, and Spiegel's dropped 2 to 2½ per cent.

COMPLETE N.Y. STOCKS Late Rally Stops Decline

Indicators Confusing For Buyers

More stocks declined than advanced. Two stock market averages rose and one broad index fell.

In a rare reversal of the usual trend, more of the active stocks fell than rose. Only 5 of the 15 most active stocks advanced, 9 fell and 1 was unchanged.

Volume was 3,690,000 shares compared with 4,210,000 yesterday.

American Stock Exchange prices were mixed on volume of 1,570,000 shares compared with 1,810,000 yesterday.

Well Done, Thou Good and Faithful Servant

She Used Talent Wisely

—Associated Press Wirephoto

A Modern-Day Parable
. . . Janitress Nicolosa Donlucas

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— "This is a talent," the Methodist minister said, pressing a 50-cent piece into the gnarled hand of the tiny $90 a month janitress. "Use it wisely and it will increase."

And Nicolosa Donlucas listened to the Rev. Nicolas Davila relate Jesus' Parable of the Talents. As she stood, broom in hand, he explained how some persons can make one coin become many, while others — as told in Matthew — fail to make use of what they have.

That was last summer.

Some days later, a timid knock came on his door. It was Nicolosa. She held out $17.50 to him.

Haltingly, she explained. His half-dollar had paid for some cheese and tortillas. She had made enchiladas and sold them, then bought more cheese and tortillas and sold more enchiladas. Now she had $35! Half she was giving to the Methodist-operated community center where she works. Half would finance more enchiladas in her spare time.

"Is this not the meaning of the tale you told me?" she asked.

Ex-Notre Dame Coach Boomed For Job

Why Nugent's Leaving FSU: 'Won't Match Maryland Bid'

Special To The Herald

TALLAHASSEE — Florida State football backers pushed forward the name of former Notre Dame Coach Terry Brennan as a successor to Tom Nugent within hours Tuesday after Nugent accepted the head coaching job at Maryland.

Brennan's name was suggested by Tallahassee Attorney Weldon G. Starry, president of the Seminole Boosters'.

Ironically, the 29-year-old Brennan was removed a few weeks ago at Notre Dame as suddenly as Nugent removed himself from the FSU position Tuesday.

News of Nugent's resignation hit state football circles with bombshell force. He had just completed his most successful season here since he took over in 1953, and had been recommended for a $1,000 salary increase to $14,000 a year.

The peppery 45-year-old Massachusetts native will receive $15,000 a year, a four-year contract and a house and car at Maryland.

Nugent said he accepted the Maryland post "only after giving FSU ample opportunity to meet the Maryland offer."

"Dr. (Robert) Strozier (FSU president) told me everyone wanted me to stay at FSU," Nugent said by telephone from Cincinnati, where he is attending a coaches' convention.

"I told him, 'I love FSU. If you and the others feel that way, there is just a few thousand dollars in the way to keep me. If you match the offer, I'll stay.' "

Speculation here was that the main point of difference was FSU's refusal to match Maryland's four-year contract offer. The state board of control is reported leaning toward year-to-year status for Nugent along the same lines of the arrangement with Bob Woodruff, Florida head coach.

Nugent will take over at Maryland Jan. 15. He succeeds Tommy Mont, who resigned under pressure Dec. 8.

Nugent took over from Dr. Veller here in 1953 and has had a 34-26-1 record. His 1958 team won seven of 10 games and lost to Oklahoma State 15-6, in the Blue Grass Bowl at Louisville.

World Gets at Least 6 Months Grace

Soviet Halts A-Test Plans, Despite Gromyko's Threats

By MILT FREUDENHEIM
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The Russians have hatled nuclear weapons test preparations, despite Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko's threats to set off new explosions.

This information, available from Western intelligence reports, means the world may expect at least six months more without any nuclear blasts.

Meanwhile, The Miami Herald-Chicago Daily News Servcie obtained the inside story behind Monday's White House announcement on test ban inspection problems.

The White House said new information shows it is more difficult than had been thought to tell underground bomb tests apart from small earthquakes.

EXCLUSIVE

Earlier, East-West technical experts had thought they had a 90 per cent sure detection system for underground explosions as small as five kilotons.

But these calculations were based on only a single American underground test.

Now, with four more such tests, the West's figures have changed radically. However, the new margin of error estimates are not expected to upset agreement on a controlled test ban, Western sources say.

The hazards of being caught exploding a small bomb underground would be far worse for the culprit nation, it is felt, than any advantages to be gained by cheating at these odds.

Worldwide dismay at those last two Russians tests has made resumption extremely unlikely as long as East-West test-ban talks continue at Geneva.

However, the U.S. State Department is under heavy pressure from the Pentagon and Atomic Energy Commission either to come up with a global no-test control system or else let American testing resume.

Every test takes about six months and often millions of dollars to prepare.

If the Geneva talks do not produce pay dirt by March, there will be major demands by the military and their congressional allies to start preparing tests for next fall, after a 12-month moratorium.

Armed, Boasts Iraq; by Reds?

DAMASCUS, Syria — (AP) — The deputy chief of staff of the Iraqi army said Tuesday Iraq has received "up-to-date modern arms from friends." He did not name the friends.

Brig. Shaker Mahmud Shukri was speaking over Baghdad radio on Iraqi Army Day.

Reports of arms shipments to Iraq from Communist countries since the revolution which overthrew the monarchy last July have been frequent, but never confirmed.

2 Brothers Die Within an Hour

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — Two brothers died in Lankenau Hospital within an hour of each other.

Herman H. Perlmann, 58-year-old Chester furniture dealer who lived in suburban Overbrook Hills, died first. He had been a patient since Sunday.

Morris C. Perlmann, 54, an attorney, suffered a heart attack while visiting his brother. He was being treated when Herman died.

HAVANA, Cuba—(AP)—The revolutionary government dissolved Congress Tuesday and announced it will rule Cuba by decree for at least 18 months when new elections are planned.

The government suspended all criminal courts, regarded as a symbol of the fallen dictatorship of Fulgencio Batista, and was reported preparing a decree abolishing all political parties.

The provisional regime dismissed all provincial governors, mayors and councilmen. Apparently their functions will be taken over by new civilian appointees prepared in advance for the task.

Other decrees, informed sources said, would ban all candidates in the 1954 and 1958 elections from Cuba's political life, freeze the private bank accounts of all Batista officials, and stop the cashing of all outstanding checks against the Batista regime.

Revolutionary courts were reported being prepared to try Batista, now in exile in the Dominican Republic, and other officials who may be accused of crimes during his rule.

These and other laws were announced, or reported in preparation, as Provisional President Manuel Urrutia sat almost continuously in the Presidential Palace with his new cabinet.

The initial policies of the new government were being shaped as hoarse-voiced Fidel Castro, the rebel leader who shoved Urrutia to power, was still plodding through adoring throngs toward the capital from the east. It was doubtful he would reach Havana today as planned.

Castro stopped at almost every town and was forced to make speeches. He attempted to fly by helicopter from Camaguey to Santa Clara. But the helicopter broke down. When he attempted to slip through Santi Spiritus, 200 miles southeast of here, in a car ahead of his column of 3,000 troops, he was recognized by a screaming crowd of 40,000 and forced to stop for yet another speech.

The decree abolishing Congress said the Urrutia government could rule by ministerial decree until free elections are held. Urrutia has announced that these would be held in 18 to 24 months.

The losing of political rights by all candidates in the 1954 and 1958 elections would apply not only to Batista but also to Rivero Aguero, his successful candidate in last November's presidential elections and the second runner, former President Ramon Grau San Martin.

The rebels considered both the 1954 and 1958 Batista elections were fraudulent.

The dissolution of political parties would affect former President Carlos Prio Socarras, head of the Autentico Party, who returned to Cuba after the New Year's Day resignation of Batista. Although Prio made common cause with the rebels against Batista, he apparently is not trusted by Castro's 26th of July movement.

Castro's Son Is Missing

By JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writer

Fidel Castro's nine-year-old son had vanished from Havana Tuesday, just hours before his father was to make a triumphant entry into the Cuban capital.

The boy, Fidel Jr., was living with his mother, Castro's divorced wife, a known supporter of ex-president Fulgencio Batista. There were unconfirmed reports she had fled to Miami with the child.

Castro told newsmen in Camaguey "I was looking forward to seeing him, and now they have taken him away.

"They have taken my money and my blood," Castro told reporters, referring to the Batista regime, "and now they have taken my son.

"If they've removed him for security reasons, it's all right, but if they're holding him for retribution it's another matter."

The rebel leader's former wife now is married to the son of Emilio Nunez Portuondo, a former prime minister of Batista's cabinet and the latest Cuban ambassador to the U.N.

Castro, in an interview last year, said his wife's family broke up their marriage, "because they were very close to the Batista government."

Batista supporters here, who went underground New Years Day when the president fled Cuba, were unreachable for comment on the report Castro's ex-wife may have brought the child here.

Representatives of the new Cuban government in the U.S. and members of Castro's 26th of July revolutionary movement had not been advised that the rebel leader's son was missing from his Havana home.

Alive but in critical condition at Dade County Hospital is Miami Attorney Paul Foisy, 33, of 2981 SW 12th St. Highway Patrol officers said he "deliberately" swerved into Moore's car. GOP Picks Halleck

Martin Ousted As House Leader

The vote was Halleck, 74; Martin, 70.

The 74-year-old Martin had been House GOP leader for 20 years, and was speaker of the House in 1947-48 when the GOP last controlled the House.

Halleck, 58, is also a veteran House member and has long been a sort of unofficial assistant leader to Martin.

The overturn was voted at a closed-door organizing conference of the faction-split GOP House minority on the eve of convening of the new 86th Congress. Only five of the 153 GOP House members were absent.

Halleck is an Eisenhower Republican with a reputation as a rough and tumble floor battler for administration programs. It took two ballots to settle the issue.

The first ballot resulted in 73 votes for Halleck, 72 for Martin and one ballot ruled spoiled. Thus neither had a majority.

BOISE, Idaho — (AP) — Mary Ann Gardner headed home to El Monte, Calif., after escaping from the Idaho Penitentiary Dec. 28. Tuesday her father brought her back. She was serving a forgery term.

Al Gardner stayed only long enough to surrender his 21-year-old daughter to Warden L. E. Clapp. Then he, his wife and a grandmother started home.

Clapp said he suggested Gardner turn his daughter over to California officers when the father telephoned last weekend. "No, I'll take her back myself," he quoted Gardner.

Arctic Gale Lashes East Second Day

NEW YORK — (AP) — A vicious Arctic gale hammered the Eastern seaboard for a second day Tuesday with wind gusts up to 70 m.p.h. Damage was widespread, as bitter cold intensified the misery of the storm.

The biting cold even penetrated the depths of New York's subway system, disrupting mechanical equipment and delaying rush hour travelers by the thousands. New York's low was 13.7 above zero.

At Stratford, Conn., the father of four children died in a duplex fire, and his wife and four children were hospitalized.

Sixteen students fled the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity house on the Williams College campus at Williamstown, Mass., during a pre-dawn fire. And at Long Branch, N. J., 11 persons escaped from a burning apartment house.

In New England, thousands of autos were stalled by the cold. Wild winds felled trees and utility poles and delayed scores of trains out of Boston.

Syracuse U. Dorm Burns; 7 Air Force Students Die

Firemen Search Through Ruins of One-Story, Prefabricated Barracks
. . . 50-MPH winds whipped flames into an inferno, survivors said

13 Injured In 'River Of Fire'

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — (AP) — Seven Air Force students perished in their sleep Tuesday and 13 others were injured in a wild scramble to flee wind-whipped flames that made an inferno of a barracks dormitory at Syracuse University.

Twenty-five airmen escaped without injuries of consequence, mostly by jumping through windows of the one-story building.

Firemen, battling in near-zero weather at 6 a.m., kept the flames from spreading to the 14 other barracks of a university housing development atop a hill overlooking the city.

The dead included:

Airman Billy D. Marlow, 29, of Converse, Tex., who left a wife and two children; Airman Michael E. Gasparri, 19, of Yonkers; Airman Edward E. Duggan, 23, of Manning, S.C.; Airman Joseph E. Stoll Jr., 18, of Norwalk, Ohio; and Airman Remus A. Ridwell, 18, of Oneonta, Ala.

The names of the other dead were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

The 45 men, many of them in their teens, had just been assigned to the university for a nine-month course in Russian. Their headquarters is Wright-Patterson Air Force base, Dayton, Ohio, where they are attached to the Air Institute of Technology.

Fire officials said the fire apparently started from an oil-fed steam boiler in the center of the 22-room building, which was prefabricated of metal and composition board.

The escape was "like animals trying to get out of a cage," said Sgt. Peter Dowling, 25, of Kalamazoo, Mich.

Many of the injured were cut and bruised, as well as burned. None is considered in critical condition.

Donald Dowling, not related to Sgt. Dowling, said he was terrified when he opened the door of his room, so he slammed it and crashed a chair through a window to escape.

"The barracks went up like a matchbox," Peter Dowling said." I tried to get to a fire extinguisher in the hall, but the fire and smoke were so great I couldn't stand it. Everybody was jumping out of windows."

Mother Says She'll Share Stolen Baby

NEW YORK — (AP) — The mother of a kidnaped infant girl pleaded for the safe return of the baby Tuesday and offered to share the child with the abductor.

The kidnaper is believed to be a frustrated mother.

"If she loves the baby that much and would return her to us I would even be willing to let her visit the baby periodically," said Mrs. Frances Chionchio, 26, from her hospital bed.

"I would be willing to appeal to the kidnaper on a woman-to-woman basis. If she would call the hospital, I would speak to her on the telephone."

Police still hold hope the baby, stolen from a hospital nursery Friday night, might still be alive despite a foreboding note found pinned to a diaper in a Coney Island subway station.

They learned that the diaper did not come from the hospital where the baby was born, indicating the note might not have been written by the kidnaper. On the other hand, the kidnaper could have obtained diapers elsewhere.

"Please return to St. Peter's Hospital. Didn't want to hurt anyone. Everything is so hard. Tired. Sick. The ocean is so inviting. Maybe now I will find peace. I tried to keep her warm. Dear God forgive me."

St. Peter's is the hospital miles away in downtown Brooklyn where the baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chionchio was kidnaped only 2½ hours after birth.

Suicidal Motorist Lives; Kills Man in Another Auto

Two more Miamians died on Dade highways Tuesday, including a driver whose car was the target of a would-be suicide.

The man who attempted suicide survived the bloody smashup though his condition is called critical.

In the bizzare suicide attempt, police said Henry N. Moore, 50, of 7431 NW Seventh Ct., died instantly when his east-bound car collided at Tamiami Trail and 122nd Ave., with a west-bound auto driven by Attorney Paul A. Foisy, 33, of 2981 SW 12th St.

Florida Highway Patrol investigators said Foisy deliberately veeered his speeding car — traveling about 90 miles an hour — into Moore's vehicle.

A pet collie in Moore's car was also critically injured, and may have to be destroyed, police said.

The other traffic death was Cornelius B. Willard, 35, of 6048 SW 19th St., who was hurled from his laundry truck in an intersection collision and pinned to the pavement.

Miami police said George S. Pietzcker, 73, of 7737 Atlantic Way, Miami Beach, failed to yield the right of way to Willard's truck at NE Third Ct. and 78th St.

A special FCC examiner has recommended that the present license of Public Service Television, a subsidiary of National Airlines, be voided.

In an atomic attack, doctors would have to ignore about 20 per cent of casualties critically injured and dying, Rear Adm. Bartholomew W. Hogan, the Navy Surgeon General, said in Miami Beach Tuesday.

Russian Candy for an American Baby
. . . Mikoyan met youngster in supermarket

Soviet No. 2 Man To Meet Our V-P

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan arranged a private meeting with Vice President Richard Nixon Tuesday, following up his hints that Russia is open to a deal for easing Berlin tensions.

The bouncy little Armenian, fresh from a swift tour of a suburban supermarket, asked to talk with Nixon at the vice president's office, just off the Senate floor.

Nixon quickly agreed to meet the 63-year-old Mikoyan, who holds a similar second ranking position in the Kremlin high command.

Most officials anticipated Mikoyan would plunge into a review of foreign policy with emphasis on Russia's demands for an end to four-power control of Berlin.

He smilingly wheeled a shopping cart through the aisles, directing Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov to pick out $9.29 in groceries. Menshikov paid while Mikoyan, seemingly fascinated, watched the checkout girl ring up his items on the electric cash register.

Mikoyan pulled a piece of Russian candy from an overcoat pocket and handed it to a six-month-old baby sitting in a shopping cart.

The baby is the son of a Washington metropolitan policeman who often helps his wife with the shopping.

Mikoyan made the surprise visit, Menshikov explained, because "he has read all about supermarkets and he wanted to see for himself."

Mikoyan's visit, frequently punctuated by placard-waving Hungarian pickets, struck another unfriendly note at luncheon time.

James B. Carey, head of the Electrical Workers Union, sponsored a buffet for the Soviet visitor in the Philip Murray building, directly across from the Soviet embassy.

However, AFL-CIO President George Meany avoided the affair, along with George Schnitzler, federation secretary-treasurer, and Vice Presidents L. H. Hayes and William Suffridge.

Mikoyan broadly hinted Monday at possible Soviet concessions to make any new deal over Berlin more acceptable to the Western Big Three countries. One of these was reported to be formal guarantees of free access to the city via mail, water and air routes.

The Town Crier

BY Jack Bell

BELL

I knew Jimmy Bright since the first season Hialeah Park opened. It was his idea, a promotional venture for the Curtiss-Bright Corp., developers of Hialeah and Miami Springs. Jimmy was a true horseman. He didn't bet much. He just loved the beauty of a horse, "standin' or runnin'." He never thought about money, for he was too busy being a rancher. Horses, cattle, better grass, good living "out here where a man can breathe."

But I don't know — now — who's going to get the Seminoles to Hialeah Park for Flamingo and Widener days. They ought to erect a bust of Jimmy in the infield, across from the grandstand, to be unveiled by Chief Willie Osceola.

The 1926 hurricane whipped trees pretty good in what is now Bay Point. When the place was cleared one giant rubber tree was left half up, half down. During the years that tree grew roots big as a man's body. It's a magnificent veteran, and children loved it from the beginning. It was known—and still is—as "The Tree."

When Tom McGahey bought the lot and built a house the kids begged him to leave "The Tree" and let them still play. Only a few days ago I saw Tom in a car.

"The kids are over in The Tree, having a wonderful time," he said.

"I know; one of 'em is mine," I replied. And suddenly Tom was gone.

When the Orange Bowl stadium was just a pup, with 23,000 seats, George Payne was placed at the south side gate where employes enter. All through the years he sat there, for high school, college, pro, Orange Bowl games. He never saw a play.

After the Oklahoma-Syracuse game "Pop" went home saying he felt "a little tired." He was right. After 85 good years, he's gone.

Another Sizzler

From Texas moisture laden winds over the top of the cold air that sent a 31 reading to Laredo on the Rio Grande is streaming clouds to Lake Michigan and rain across southern Texas to Houston and Austin. The threat of this pattern is reflected in aircraft reports of ice in the clouds of southern Oklahoma.

Another very cold night was in store for the East but by Wednesday the Atlantic States will begin to feel the rising temperature trend which has already taken hold over the Plains and Midwest.

Some snow is likely across colder northern border areas from the Plains to northern Maine but winds will diminish in the Northeast.

Rain should spread from Texas eastward through the Gulf states and moisture feeding northward may form fog and drizzle through Missouri to Iowa. Foggy, rainy weather will move into Oklahoma and icy conditions may result from freezing temperatures in northern parts of the state.

Go Home Yank, Is Their Cry

By GEORGE SOUTHWORTH
Herald Latin America Editor

HAVANA, Cuba — Jabbering for "defeat of Yankee imperialism," the Communist Party here clambered out of the woodwork Tuesday and onto Fidel Castro's bandwagon.

But a Communist spokesman modestly admitted that his party could not claim all the credit for the overthrow of Dictator Fulgencio Batista.

At the Communist headquarters here, the spokesman declared, "the revolutionary movement was not a Communist movement, but there were a lot of Communists in the victorious armies."

"What we have to do now is defeat Yankee imperialism," he said, "and support the democratic revolutionary movement that has liberated our country."

"The U.S.," said the spokesman, "is an enemy of Cuba's independence, and conspired to set up a military junta in Cuba to take over when Batista fled the country.

"The U.S. tried to keep the Cuban government from passing into the hands of the rebels."

The spokesman offered no information to back up his claim. Instead he turned to questions about his party's strength.

"We don't know for sure now how many people we have in the Communist Party in Cuba because we had to flee and hide when the dictator Batista was here.

"But we do know we are going to support provisional president Manuel Urrutia," he added.

Meanwhile, far removed from the Communist headquarters, the man whom Batista had branded as the top Commie in the rebel movement was mildly denying membership in the party.

"I am not a Communist," said Dr. Ernesto (Che) Guevara, "but tell your readers I am not anti-Communist either."

Guevara, an Argentine who led Fidel Castro's forces in Las Villas province, did not protest much when reminded that Batista propaganda listed him as working with Communists in Guatemala and Mexico.

"I had no official function with the governments of either of those countries. I was there as a civilian only. At this very moment I am nothing more than a military official in the provisional government of the 26th of July movement headed by Fidel Castro.

"Everybody asks me if I am a Communist. I say, no, but the Communist Party has a right to figure in Cuba life now that the country is free. I am not an anti-Communist."

His Vacation Ends in Jail

An 18-year-old Miami youth who went to Birmingham over the Christmas holidays to visit a girl friend was jailed in Atlanta on a charge of armed robbery.

The youth, Thomas Whittle, son of Mrs. Mildred K. Whittle, of 3148 NW 95th Ter., and a former Miami friend of his, Ralph Dino, 20, now of Atlanta, confessed to robbing two women.

Whittle and Dino said they used a gun loaded with blanks to force the women to empty their purses.

The robbery, for which the two young men face a maximum penalty of death, netted only $21.40.

U.S. Envoy To Cuba Flies Home

Castro Officials Demand Removal

By JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writer

Ambassador to Cuba Earl E. T. Smith made a flying trip to Washington Tuesday while spokesmen for the new Castro-Urrutia government demanded his recall.

Smith flew to Miami from Havana aboard an Air Force plane and switched to a scheduled airliner for the Washington jaunt. It was not known whether he was summoned to a conference by the State Department or whether the trip was his own idea.

The ambassador would say only, "I am going to Washington for consultation."

Meanwhile, in Havana, it was learned that leaders of the new Cuban government were preparing a petition asking that Smith be removed from office.

And in Chicago, Fidel Castro's attorney Constantine Krangles branded the ambassador as a "meddler in foreign affairs," and said Smith "embraced the dictator Batista" while "openingly showing his hostility" to Castro.

Krangles also accused Smith of "engineering the phony Cuban elections of Nov. 3," and said the ambassador was extremely unconcerned with the safety and rights of American citizens in Cuba during the revolution.

Smith and embassy officials in Havana were criticized by the thousands of Americans stranded in Havana on New Year's Day for failing to advise them of evacuation possibilities.

Smith, in a brief pause between planes at Miami, issued a statement in which he said he would recommend that the U.S. offer to assist Cuba in revitalizing its economy.

He said he believed a technical mission of engineers and equipment could help rebuild the country's overland communications system.

"I believe this is not only important to Cuba but in the best interests of the U.S." he said, adding:

"The history of the U. S. in Cuba has always been one of loyal friendship regardless of political changes."

Talbert will act as executive editor of the foundation's 10 regular publications and special reports, and will serve as a member of the board.

The foundation is an independent non profit organization devoted to the promotion of safety in all forms of flight.

Cubans Hustling Home Leave U. S. With a Problem

What Happens to Gun-Running Charges?

By DAVID J. KRASLOW
And ARTHUR JOHNSEY
Herald Staff Writers

Cuban rebel sympathizers hustling home from exile here are leaving behind a flock of un-prosecuted gun-running charges against them and a diplomatic muddle over what to do.

In Washington, a spokesman said the problem could become ticklish if the U.S. winds up holding charges against men who any day now may be named officials of the new Cuban government expected to be recognized by this country.

Indications in Miami and Washington were that officials will be very lenient in dealing with the Cubans.

Federal Judge Emett C. Choate announced he will give bondsmen responsible for appearances of accused Cubans 60 days to get the defendants back to this country if they hurried off to Cuba following Fidel Castro's overthrow of the Batista regime.

Some hint of a new attitude was the dismissal of an arms possession charge against an exiled Cuban brought before a U.S. Commissioner Monday. Government prosecutors recommended dismissal.

CHOATE

GOLDBERG

All through the two-year revolution Miami was a hot spot of gun-running and other revolutionary activities supporting Castro's campaign against the Batista government, then recognized as a friendly power by the U.S.

Officials estimated there are about 150 Cubans under bond in Miami pending trial on a veriety of charges ranging from Neutrality Act violations to gun-running.

But Murray Goldberg, Miami professional bondsman who has posted bonds for most of the Cubans in trouble with customs and immigration authorities, said Judge Choate's 60-day limit relieves his worries.

Former Cuban President Carlos Prio Socarras, who now has returned to Cuba, was one of Goldberg's clients. Goldberg helped post a $300,000 bond to free Prio, under indictment in New York on a charge of violating the Neutrality Act.

Goldberg said he will go to Havana next week. He said he feels certain the Cubans will "want to come back and set the record straight" — and free him from having to forfeit his bond.

Immigration officials said they did not object to Prio's returning temporarily to Cuba.

Bonds usually restrict the movement of accused persons whose trials are pending.

In Washington, Walker Yeagley, acting head of the Justice Department's Internal Security Division, said:

"I grant you we are going to be running into a problem.

"I don't know what will happen. We'll just have to handle them on an individual basis when they come up for trial," he said.

Yeagley said the government obtained some 150 convictions in 1958 for violation of the Neutrality Act, but I could not estimate how many more cases are pending in Miami, New York and elsewhere.

Other sources said it would be "reasonable to expect" that the State Department, sensitive to possible diplomatic ramifications, would "consult" with the Justice Department on handling arms smuggling cases.

Seminoles Fire Counsel

O. B. White, Miami attorney for part of the Seminole tribe, has been fired because of charges he made against Indian Affairs officials in Washington.

The Seminole Tribal Council, meeting in Dania, took the action because of charges made by White last week against the Indian Affairs Bureau in Washington and the Indian Agency in Dania.

White had said the two groups were plotting "a dirty deal" in connection with a lease for valuable property along State Road 7.

Astrologer Picks Date, But Rules Out Townsend, Plunkett

Stars Say Meg Will Marry—But to Whom?

Eddie Fisher

Don Newcombe

Inger Stevens

Sophia Loren

By Herald Wire Services

PRINCESS MARGARET will be married in 1959, Britain's top astrologer predicts—but the bridegroom won't be Peter Townsend or Lord Plunkett, the most-often mentioned possibilities.

And the likeliest date, according to the star reading by William Tucker—is Sept. 17.

Tucker, who is president of the Federation of British Astrologers, did not name the man he thought the 28-year-old princess would marry. But he says he probably will be a Scorpio type — born between Oct. 23 and Nov. 21.

Townsend, whom Margaret turned down in 1955, was born Nov. 12, 1914. Lord Plunkett, currently linked by gossip writers with the princess, was born Sept. 8, 1923.

Tucker said in London that the Queen's horoscope shows "she will have an emotional disturbance in May connected with a personal and family matter.

"I deduce from this she will take a decision concerning the marriage of her sister, Princess Margaret.

"The princess's horoscope gives a very exciting year for her. A decision concerning her future will be taken in May.

"Her stars indicate contemplation of marriage and suggest her desire will be rendered effective this year. The date of Thursday, Sept. 17, is highly suggestive for the actual wedding."

Eddie Fisher's TV Show Dropped

EDDIE FISHER'S television show will be dropped March 17, a spokesman for the crooner said in Hollywood, Calif.

Did the Eddie-Debbie Reynolds-Elizabeth Taylor triangle have anything to do with it?

The National Broadcasting Co. had nothing to say, officially.

But unofficially, a network source confided: "It's strictly a matter of low ratings." Although there is no doubt that Eddie's marital troubles caused some headshaking among the brass.

'Ready and Willing' Says Newcombe

Trial of the Cincinnati Redlegs' pitcher, scheduled Monday in New Jersey, was postponed to Jan. 26 because Newcombe was reported to be barnstorming in Venezuela.

But a puzzled Newcombe said Tuesday in Colonia, N.J., which is quite a ways from Venezuela. "I haven't left the city." He explained he had asked for the postponement because he has a new lawyer, who wants more time to familiarize himself with the case.

Inger Stevens' Condition Better

ACTRESS Inger Stevens was reported Tuesday to be improving although still in a coma as a result of swallowing what police described as a caustic solution.

At Columbus Hospital in New York City, a spokesman said the 24-year-old blonde movie star was "responding satisfactorily to treatment." She was rushed to the hospital in critical condition Sunday after her apartment superintendent found her sprawled unconscious across her bed.

Police said Miss Stevens may have drunk cleaning fluid, but they found no bottles, vials or notes in the apartment.

Sophia Poohs Bigamy Talk

SEXY SOPHIA LOREN says she's going back to Italy next spring despite reports that she might be jailed for bigamy if she returns.

"This is old stuff," the Italian actress said. "Someone in Italy started the story a year ago. I'm going home in four or five months to work on a picture, and I'm not a bit afraid."

The government there recognizes only a church-approved annulment for a couple married in a Catholic ceremony. Sophia, 24, and Carlo Ponti, 46, a film producer, were married by proxy in Mexico in 1957 after he obtained a Mexican divorce from Guiliana Fiasti.

Truman Flies Into Capital

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Former President Harry S. Truman flew in from Kansas City to watch some new senators and representatives be sworn in Wednesday at the opening of the new Congress.

Truman stayed away from political subjects when questioned at the airport. He did say the new Russian space rocket is a "good thing."

"It gives us a kick and makes us do what should have been done in the first place," he said.

What Would U.S. Do Inside Soviet Ring?

By JOHN B. McDERMOTT

MOSCOW — "If Russia had bases in Mexico, Canada and Newfoundland and had its fleet maneuvering off your coast, wouldn't you be concerned?"

That question was put to me by one of the Soviet Union's most influential men, Daniel Fedorovich Kraminov, "American" editor of Pravda.

McDERMOTT

"Would you sleep well under such conditions?" he asked.

"Well, that is the way we Russians feel with American air bases ringing us from Western Europe, across North Africa to Turkey and Pakistan. And with your fleet coming within bombing range of our country."

* * *

RUSSIA, HE SAID, must be strong for defensive reasons.

This was his explanation for the Soviet military build up, a factor which has the United States on a virtual war production schedule to keep abreast of the danger from the East.

Kraminov's job is to direct news and editorials on matters involving both North and South America. His newspaper, Pravda, has the biggest circulation of any daily in the world — just under six million.

It is the "voice" of the Soviet Union, the official organ of the Communist Party's Central Committee.

* * *

WHAT ABOUT intercontinental ballistic missiles which have changed the theory of war drastically?

"Of course you can worry about these now," the English-speaking editor declared "But that has been only in the last two or three years. Before that, the Soviet Union was not in such a strong position."

As for war between the U.S.S.R. and U.S.A. Kraminov thinks this is unlikely.

"I believe your people look too hard for something to be upset about," he said.

On the current Berlin crisis, Kraminov commented:

"I don't think it is so terrible. What happens there will depend on the Germans."

* * *

KRAMINOV SAID Russia does not get excited by international "crises" which make so many headlines in the United States.

"We think your economy can't exist without a political crisis. In order for you to get out of an economic slump, you must create a crisis which means spending money for a war economy," the editor continued.

"In Russia, we need just the opposite.

"We need the quietest possible conditions so that we may develop and build our standards of living. You know, our standards are far below yours."

Kraminov said peaceful co-existence between the Russian world and the West was quite possible. Referring again to the Western encirclement of Russia, he added:

"If you Americans are afraid and concerned about Russia, then we have more to fear from you."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Will Johnson Brand Senate As a One-Man Operation?

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Most interesting question discussed in Senate cloakrooms as the 86th Congress convenes is:

"Will this be a Lyndon Johnson Senate or a Democratic Senate?"

PEARSON

This general question was first raised two years ago when Adlai Stevenson, Harry Truman, Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, Gov. "Soapy" Williams of Michigan, Democratic Chairman Paul Butler, and others started the Democratic Advisory Committee for the specific purpose of keeping Democratic senators from coming under the exclusive influence of e likable, efficient Senate leader from Texas.

Whether or not this committee can claim redit, Lyndon last year proved an able, on he whole, farsighted leader. His views didn't leviate much from those of the advisory comittee.

This year the committee is again riding rd benignly on the gentleman from Texas.

Lyndon in turn has been getting out the olitical branding irons to see which of the ew Democratic senators he can brand with LBJ," the brand of his ranch in Texas.

Of course those who get branded won't ven know it. For Lyndon is a political salesman without peer. He can talk the average freshman senator into teaming up with him without twisting his wrist at all.

He doesn't indulge in blackmail. He's discreet, helpful, solicitous for the new senator's future.

* * *

HERE IS HOW the 15 new Democratic senators are being sorted out into two groups —the mavericks who will vote their own conscience and those who will submit to the LBJ branding iron:

SEN. CLAIR ENGLE of California — a tough, battle-seasoned graduate of the House of Representatives who will take no one's branding iron.

EUGENE McCARTHY of Minnesota — another tough, battle-seasoned House veteran. He will take orders from no one.

GALE McGEE of Wyoming — Will probably wear the LBJ brand. Sen. Joe O'Mahoney has said he expects to turn over Wyoming chores to the young senator.

HOWARD CANNON of Nevada — Will probably take the LBJ brand. He's a little overawed at being elected to the U.S. Senate.

ERNEST GRUENING of Alaska — A maverick. He has already declared himself publicly against the 27½ per cent depletion allowance which is sacred to Johnson.

BOB BARTLETT of Alaska — An independent. Knows the ropes from long experience and is not likely to get branded.

ED MUSKIE of Maine—Will be inclined to take the LBJ brand. He will be a popular addition to the Senate.

STEVE YOUNG of Ohio — A maverick. Young was considered a political nobody when he first announced against John Bricker, long considered unbeatable. Young will turn out to be one of the surprises of the new Senate. He is determined to serve one term only and serve well.

FRANK MOSS of Utah — Untried, untested, and didn't really expect to win. Therefore he may lean on Lyndon.

JENNINGS RANDOLPH of West Virginia —Conscientious, experienced in the House of Representatives, will bear the LBJ brand most of the time.

TOM DODD of Connecticut — Will submit to the LBJ brand with a reasonable amount of docileness.

This is the probable lineup of the biggest assortment of new Democratic senators in recent history.

NOTE—Few mavericks could argue too much with Lyndon Johnson's policies last year. They were good. What they and the Truman-Stevenson committee do argue with is that his is a one-man, not a Democratic rule.

In Cuba, they remind, Fulgencio Batista was once a great hero.

Sniff-and-Probe Tactic

Mikoyan Willing to Talk If Not Prepared to Act

By PETER LISAGOR
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

WASHINGTON — Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan has made it clear that he is here on a sniff-and-probe operation.

The official pretense that he has come to the U.S. for a guided tour of American hamburger joints and supermarkets has been quickly stripped away, to the surprise of no one.

LISAGOR

His first working day in this capital was a skillful exercise in creating the impression that, like the Soviet "lunik" hurtling toward the sun, there's no limit to his mission.

A little man with piercing eyes, a black mustache and the bashed-in nose of an old-street-fighting Bolshevik, Mikoyan sustained this image with the somewhat cocky assertion, after a 90-minute conversation with Secretary of State Dulles, that "there will be peace."

* * *

THE STATE DEPARTMENT helped to abet Mikoyan in his tantalizing game. Spokesmen confirmed that he had talked to Dulles about Berlin, about Germany about disarmament, about trade between the U.S. and Russia.

Officials privately said that it was a "preliminary" exchange of views, with nothing new having been broached on any of the subjects mentioned.

Mikoyan stated "known positions," and indicated he was available to anyone who might want to talk to him.

But the range of items was enough to suggest that Mikoyan had achieved his first objective:

To let it be known that he's willing to talk about any cold war issue, if not prepared to do business on a couple of them.

* * *

HE WILL GET PLENTY of mileage with this impression, especially abroad, during the two weeks he spends touring the U.S.

At the conclusion of his tour, he will return to Washington to talk again with Dulles and also with President Eisenhower.

He also has asked to talk with Vice President Nixon, as well as Secretary of Commerce Lewis L. Straus, presumably about expanding trade between the two countries.

Whether he's been commissioned to agree on anything or not, Mikoyan obviously wants to test the hands on the U.S tiller, to find out if they are firm or yielding.

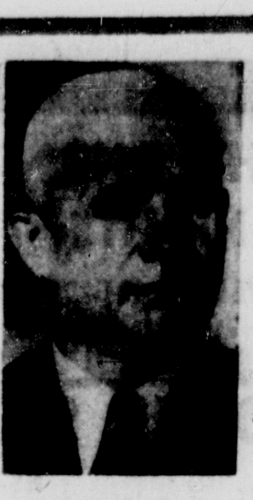
* * *

DESPITE OFFICIAL efforts here to treat the Mikoyan visit as a "private" and "unofficial" one, it took on the trappings and drama of a major diplomatic event the moment the Soviet party hove into view at the State Department.

Scores of reporters and photographers accompanied Mikoyan into the diplomatic reception room outside of Dulles' office.

Dulles, suffering from a virus infection which caused him to retire to his home after the Mikoyan talks, came out to greet the Russian.

When Mikoyan emerged, he was swarmed over by inquiring newsmen, and amiably mentioned the subjects discussed, adding "it was very useful."



Khrushchev

Nikita Badly Rattled

By William H. Stoneman
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

LONDON — Kenneth de Courcy, British news letter editor who forecast Russia's first A-bomb explosion, says that Nikita S. Khrushchev is in trouble.

The information received by this service from some of the best sources in the Soviet Union now suggests the possibility of "a military-political clash in the fairly near future cannot be excluded," says his weekly, Intelligence Digest.

Marshal Konev and other military leaders "are worried about Berlin," it says.

"Khrushchev, for his part, is not in the position of strength that his words and actions suggest," it adds. "He is not the master. He is, in fact, badly rattled and jumpy."

The Intelligence Digest does not explain how it got into contact with "some of the best sources in the Soviet Union."

A Cracker Viewpoint by Nixon Smiley

Farm Boy Has No Mule Now

AMATEUR HUMORISTS are always ready to declare that they have worked for many a jackass, but how many persons can truthfully say that they have worked for a mule?

I have. And so has anyone else who lived on a farm in the days before farms became mechanized.

We used mule-power, man-power and boy-power.

I supplied the latter, and in such generous quantities that it might well be classed as man-power.

SMILEY

A mule is, in a way, like a tractor, in that both use fuel. But the mule, unlike a tractor, can't be parked and forgotten. A mule eats every day in the year, whether working or not.

How much land we set aside to grow feed for the mules I have no way of measuring, but the picture of our corn field which still hangs in my memory looms rather large.

We must have planted about as many acres in corn as we did in all other crops combined, including cotton, tobacco and peanuts.

* * *

TODAY, THE AGRICULTURE Department tells us, a farmer produces food and fiber for himself and 23 others.

Well, I can't say how much fiber we produced, but the food we produced was hardly more than enough for ourselves and for our mules. I don't recall that we had corn to sell.

What we didn't shuck and sell and take to the grist mill for making grits and meal for the table went mostly to the mules.

And since my folks believed in feeding their mules well, of keeping them round, sleek and sassy, a large percentage of the corn crop was consumed by them.

Being of a rather sensitive nature, I used to consider the daily work done by our mules — how they pulled a plow in the sweltering sun all day, and with nothing to look forward to but a cool drink and a bin full of corn in the evening.

Mules receive no pay, I thought, and had no future. It was certainly a boring life, and one without purpose.

Thus was the way I kept my mind occupied while walking behind a mule, my hands firmly clasped to a plow or cultivator.

I don't recall whether I considered how much work I was doing for the mule.

Nor do I recall whether I considered my own narrow existence.

No doubt I did, because I used to plan my future while plodding down the corn rows in the hot sunshine. And while my future turned out to be quite different from what I perhaps planned, I can assure you that in the life I planned for myself there were no mules.

* * *

In the meantime I have watched with interest the tremendous progress that has been made in farming in the South; and I have often thought about the rather primitive farming we practiced when compared with farming today.

What a difference it was in the days when so much of our efforts went into subsistence farming — of producing food for ourselves and for our mules.

Like other farmers, we also had a garden, a sugarcane patch, sweet potato patch, chickens, a milk cow and hogs. There was work to be done from early until late. There was work before school and after school, and chores to be done on Sundays and holidays.

How different is farming today from the mule-ridden farming I knew as a boy.

The mule is gone, and the land that was planted in corn for the mule is now growing some other crop.

The farmer may live in town, perhaps at the insistence of his wife. For living on a farm today must be a lonesome kind of life.

The barn is gone, and the animals it housed have gone with it. And so are the little flocks of chickens, the milk cow, the squealing shoats.

A few sentimentalists do keep a cow and a few chickens, and they may plant a little garden. But milk and eggs and vegetables, now mass-produced, are cheaper to buy at the grocery store.

All he has to look forward to is growing up in town, with no mules to work for and no farm chores to do, but only to play ball with his friends in the day time and spend the evenings roaming the juke joints with his fellow delinquents.

It sure must be a tough life.

Some Odd Winners Popped Up in Landslide

'Wonder Boys' Moving Into 86th Congress

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON — The 86th Congress will have more than its share of political "wonder boys." Records dropped like flies in the Nov. 4 Democratic landslide.

Consider, for example, the election of James G. O'Hara, 33, of Shelby Township, Mich., to the 7th Michigan District.

O'Hara won the Democratic primary by just five votes, on a recount. He went on to win the November election by 2,862 votes. He is the first Democrat to represent the Thumb area of Eastern Michigan since 1895, and he was the only challenger to unseat an incumbent in the 18-member Michigan House delegation.

The young Richland County sheriff unseated Rep. Charles W. Vursell (R), 77, on a recount in the 23rd Illinois Congressional District. Vursell had represented the district for 16 years.

William H. Meyer is the first Democrat to represent Vermont in the House in 105 years. The last Democrat to turn the trick was Thomas Bartlett Jr. He was elected to the House on the Democratic and Free Soil ticket in 1852, lasted one term.

* * *

GERALD T. FLYNN (D) of Wisconsin's 1st District is the first Democrat to be elected to Congress from the Racine and Kenosha area since 1888.

Quentin N. Burdick is the first Democrat to be elected to the House from North Dakota since it became a state in 1889.

Moreover, he is succeeding his father, Usher L. Burdick, a Republican maverick. The elder Burdick strongly supported his Democratic son for Congress.

Mayor Samuel S. Stratton of Schenectady in New York's 32nd District is the first Democrat to represent his area in the House in 40 years, and Newell A. George of Kansas' 2nd District is the first Democrat elected to represent the Kansas City, Kan., area in the House in 34 years.

These and other freshmen Democrats attribute their victories to a stress on "bread and butter" issues, such as higher costs of living, the recession, farm problems and the "lack of leadership" in the White House. Those running in states where the "right-to-work" issue was on the ballot reported that the big vote turnout helped them.

* * *

SUCCESS in the election awaited several who had often tasted defeat. Robert W. Levering (D) succeeded on his fifth try for the House, after the incumbent died.

Randall S. Harmon (D., Ind.) ran three times as a Republican against Rep. Ralph Harvey (R., Ind.) without success. Harmon's wife suggested that he switch parties this time. He did, and won.

John Brademas (D), third youngest new member at 31, has been running for the 3rd Indiana District since he was 27. He lost twice, this year won by the largest margin ever received by anyone in the history of the 3rd (South Bend) district.

The campaign of State Rep. Odin Langen (R) in the 9th Minnesota District was totally obscured in the publicity given to the marital problems of his opponent, Rep. Coya Knutson (D), whose husband Andy wanted her to come home to Oklee, Minn. Yet Langen edged out Mrs. Knutson by 1,531 votes, and was the only Republican to unseat a Democratic incumbent.

Rep.-elect James C. Oliver (D., Maine) is an old-new congressman. He is the first Democrat elected to the House on the 86th Congress. He served in the House from 1937-43 as a Republican. He has run for Congress seven times, four as a Republican, three as a Democrat.

Last Word

By DR. BERGEN EVANS

QUESTION: I have never understood why people who don't care what they do in their cars are called wreckless drivers. Why aren't they called wreckfull drivers?—B.M.

ANSWER: They aren't wreckless drivers — far from it. They are reckless drivers.

You have confused the common word wreck, meaning ruin or destruction, with the uncommon word reck, meaning heed or care. Reck was once a much commoner word than it now is. "Reck my rede," an old saying, meant "Heed my advice."

But reck now lingers in our vocabularies only as a part of the word reckless (— careless, heedless) and in its distant cousin reckon. A reckless driver is not one who is free from wrecks but one who is devoid of care — especially for others.

The confusion of the two words — apart from their sounding exactly alike — is made worse by the fact that reckless was formerly often spelled wreckless and by the additional fact that there is a rare word wreckless (Byron used it) meaning "that which can't be wrecked."

Paramount's chairman arrived in America with $25 sewed in his clothing, the story goes, and became a Hollywood fable. His first job was sweeper in a furrier shop. Zukor soon owned his own fur business. In 1903, he joined Marcus Loew in founding a chain of penny arcades, and later opened a chain of nickelodeons. Among stars he introduced to American picture audiences were Sarah Bernhardt, Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks.

Convicts Hear From the Pope

VATICAN CITY—(AP)—Pope John XXIII says the "hidden pains" of conscience felt by convicts would be a blessing to their "stricken families."

The pontiff, who visited a Rome jail at Christmas time, sent a message to convicts at the prison of Melun, France.

Pope John said the Lord will console and comfort the families of the convicts. The pontiff sent them his "fatherly apostolic blessing," adding that he would pray for the prisoners and their families.

Presumably the pope's message was in reply to a note received from Melun after his Rome jail visit.

Congo Rioting Toll Mounts to 34

Congo —(AP)— Thirty-four persons are reported killed and about 100 seriously injured so far in two days of rioting in Leopoldville, the Belgian Congo capital.

Shops have been set on fire, Roman Catholic missions ransacked, and schools and police headquarters burned out.

Europeans have been stoned and shot at, and mission priests have been beaten by the rioting Africans.

Most of the dead were believed to be Africans shot by police or troops.

Troop reinforcements patrolling in armored cars and barbed wire roadblocks brought at least partial order. But the situation remained highly explosive because native leaders apparently had lost control of the masses.

The riots started Sunday with a political meeting of Congolese at which future independence for the Congo was mentioned. The crowd started shouting, "We want independence now."

British Pacifists Facing Arrest

SWAFFHAM, England —(AP)— A British court has issued warrants for the arrest of 19 pacifists who invaded a base for American rockets.

Warrants for a number of others are expected later. Police are expected to begin making the arrests today.

During the weekend of Dec. 20 groups of pacifists marched on the RAF base here where American Thor missiles will be mounted. Twice they tried to stop construction. Police dragged them away on charges of obstructing the law.

During hearings a judge told those seized either to sign pledges not to repeat the performance or go to jail for 14 days. He gave them several days to make their choice.

Vatican Rejects Two Ambassadors

VATICAN CITY —(UPI)— The Vatican disclosed with regrets that it had withdrawn recognition of ambassadors from the anti-Communist government-in-exile of Poland and Lithuania.

The Vatican City newspaper Osservatore Romano said the action was a legal technicality forced by the fact that the ambassadors could not produce credentials acceptable under international law.

'Smallest Union' Title Changes

HUCKNALL, England —(UPI) — The United Wool, Swahl, Fall and Antimacassar Union of Hucknall and District with 100 members has relinquished its claim to being the world's smallest union.

The Amalgamated Society of Lace Pattern Readers, Correctors, Press and Piano Punchers, a union in the same area of Britain, beat them out with 15 members.

The piano punchers have nothing to do with music. They punch and correct intricate patterns on a piano-like keyboard for the lace industry.

Briton, German Disarm Big Bomb

LANGSCHEID, Germany —(AP)— A Briton and a German joined efforts Tuesday to disarm a six-ton bomb which had failed to go off 14 years ago in a British dam-busting air raid.

The 10-foot-long monster was the largest of the hundreds of thousands of unexploded bombs which have been neutralized in West Germany since the war.

The two experts pulled out three detonators in 80 minutes. Hundreds of police evacuated the area for 1,000 yards around the bomb.

The two experts were Royal Air Force flight Lt. James Mann Waters, 39, and Walter Mitzke, 49-year-old German who has dealt with 3,000 dud bombs.

Democrats Elect Rep. Sam Rayburn To Ninth Term as House Speaker

RAYBURN

THOMAS

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Rep. Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) Tuesday was elected unanimously by House Democrats to his ninth term as speaker of the House.

Rayburn already has served as speaker longer than any other man. He first took office in 1940 and has served continuously since then except in 1947-48 and 1953-54 when Republicans controlled the House.

Mr. Sam — as friends call him — also celebrated his 77th birthday Tuesday.

Slaying Conviction Upheld in Court

PHILADELPHIA —(UPI)— The State Supreme Court unanimously upheld the conviction of Raymond P. Wilson, 35, of Tulsa, Okla., one of four men sentenced to life imprisonment for the $200,000 robbery-slaying of a wealthy widow here.

Wilson was the first of four to be tried and convicted for the slaying of Mrs. Lulubel H. Rossman, 73, in her Center-City Hotel room July 3, 1955.

The jury fixed the penalty at life imprisonment and urged that he never be granted a pardon.

Also convicted at separate trials were Frank J. Ellsworth, Tampa, Fla., Robert W. Thomas, former deputy sheriff of Dade County, Fla., and Gus A. Demoss, former Tulsa police radio dispatcher.

Wilson and Ellsworth, ex-convicts, were charged with the actual slaying, Thomas with masterminding the scheme and Demoss acting as a go-between.

Arms Cache Tied To Atlanta Student

ATLANTA — (AP) — A big cache of arms found in a deserted rural cabin 20 miles from here has been connected by officers with a Georgia Tech student who flew to Cuba New Year's Day to help with the revolution.

Henry County Deputy Sheriff Hiram Cook said about 75 infantry rifles and five 20-millimeter cannons found in the cabin were shipped from California to Paul Hughes, 30.

Hughes is a freshman at Georgia Tech, studying aeronautical engineering. He is a veteran of the Air Force and former president of the Georgia Tech Flying Club.

Dog Walks on Ice To Rescue Master

LEVITTOWN, Pa. — (AP) — For five hours Tina waited on shore while others tried to rescue her master, Donald Dickey, 22.

Dickey and two other hunters had taken the dog hunting and Dickey had gone out alone on a lake in a small boat when he spotted a flight of ducks.

The outboard motor failed and Dickey had only one oar.

Firemen and police came, but were unable to reach the young hunter.

Someone thought of calling in a helicopter. And someone thought of Tina.

A rope was attached to the two-year-old spaniel's neck and Dickey called to his dog. Slowly, gingerly, Tina walked across the thin ice to her master.

Dickey attached the rope to the boat and was hauled ashore, suffering from frostbite and exposure.

To Act as Booster

Salk Urges Fourth Shot of Vaccine

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—(UPI)—Dr. Jonas E. Salk, discoverer of polio vaccine, Tuesday advocated a fourth, or "booster," shot of the serum for full protection against polio.

Speaking at a symposium at the University of Michigan, Salk said some persons failed to get full protection from the first three shots of vaccine because commercially-produced serum was not up to the potency of that produced in his laboratory.

Salk said a more potent vaccine was desirable and attainable but a fourth shot of the vaccine now being manufactured by commercial producers would complete immunization of persons who were not completely protected by three doses.

Fabulously Rich Oil Empire Leans to Nasserism

'Eagle of the Gulf' Keeps Firm Hand on Kuwait

Kuwait, the tiny Middle Eastern country incredibly rich with oil, is seemingly pro-Nasser. But at the same time it's the most stable country in the area. Who keeps it that way is a man of contrasts — the heir-apparent to the ages-old throne, called "The Eagle of Gulf" for very good reasons.

—Map by Associated Press

Two hawk-faced Bedouins gingerly lifted tiny hoods from the heads of fierce-looking hunting falcons perched on their arms.

Everyone in the headquarters of the Kuwait security department froze in their tracks, and their eyes swiveled toward the main door.

Through it swept the "Eagle of the Gulf" — Sheikh Abdullah Mubarak — his long black Arab robe and swirls of fine desert sand trailing in the air behind him.

The sheikh's heavy-lidded eyes pinpointed each person lining the path he strode to his office. There were lean desert tribesmen, his favorite falconers, a British army officer, an ambassador from Saudi Arabia, a European envoy, businessmen, clerks, lackeys and newsmen.

The majestic entrance to his headquarters wasn't an affectation of Mubarak, who is the deputy ruler of this fabulously oil-rich Arabian sheikhdom. To him it comes naturally.

At 43, Sheikh Abdullah Mubarak is the heir-apparent to the throne now held by 63-year-old Sheikh Abdullah As-Salim As-Sabah.

When the ruler is absent, Mubarak rules the sheikhdom, which is the size of Connecticut and is one of the most valuable pieces of real estate in the world because of its "black gold."

His main job, as commander of the army and security forces, is to keep order in his country, not an easy one in the turbulent Middle East. And Kuwait right now is considered the most stable of Middle East countries.

Powerful and aggressive, Mubarak looks massive in his flowing Arab robes. Actually, he is only of medium height and overweight in contrast to the lean, tall tribesmen surrounding him. At first, however, this goes unnoticed.

Abdullah Mubarak
. . . an Arabian prince

Hooded eyelids conceal gimlet eyes. His jowls are heavy, his complexion swarthy. All this gives the impression he is ruthless. He is. He has well earned the title "Eagle of the Gulf."

Tiny Kuwait is washed by the northern waters of the Persian Gulf, only here they call it the Arabian Gulf. It is bordered on two sides by Saudi Arabia and the other by Iraq.

The oil in Kuwait has made Mubarak, the others of the royal family and most of the 80,000 Kuwaitis inordinately rich. It has given lucrative businesses and employment to 140,000 foreigners — Englishmen and Americans, Iranians, Iraqis, Egyptians, Palestinians and Syrians. Moreover, it provides the British with a seemingly inexhaustible supply of oil.

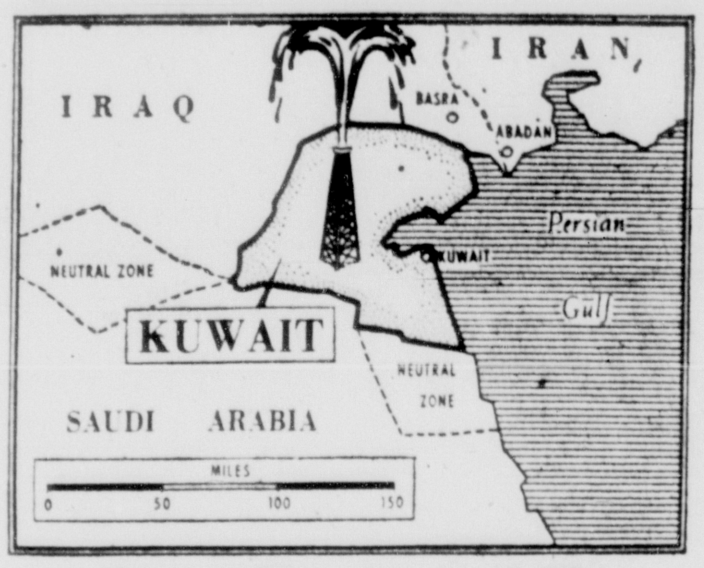
Yet, to an observer who takes the time to look, it is apparent there is less restraint on the people of Kuwait than in any other Arab country.

He tempers his toughness with the genuine graces of Islamic politeness and traditions. And that's swiftly fading among the new oil-rich Moslem aristocracies.

All who know Mubarak acknowledge that he is extraordinarily generous. And a heavy spender.

"I want to enjoy my money," he says, and he's got plenty of it to enjoy. His state salary is 11,000 rupees monthly (about $2,200), about what he actually spends every hour of the year.



Britain's Main Source of Oil
. . . may soon join Nasser's sphere

Only a part of his vast income goes into a stable of 40 purebred horses, three palaces and a host of servants and devoted Bedouin followers. One of his palaces — with 63 bedrooms — is considered the finest in the Middle East.

In the capitals and playgrounds of Europe, his frequent visits already have become legendary. Abroad, he dresses in European clothes, donning his Arab finery only on state occasions. A chauffeur drives his automobiles. He eats with a knife and fork.

But at home in Kuwait, he reverts entirely to Arabism. He drives his own American limousines and the chauffeur and bodyguard ride in the back seat.

He eats with his fingers, as do all good Moslems. And he beams with delight on the foreign guest who adopts his custom.

As a guest at the sheikh's 100-foot long dining table, overburdened with huge mounds of food, a European envoy hesitated to dig in with his fingers. He accepted the knife and fork supplied by a servant.

The sheikh chided him:

"That knife and fork have gone into the mouths of many before yours, your fingers only into your own mouth."

Sheikh Abdullah Mubarak keeps no harem. Divorced from his first wife, he has been married to his second for 15 years. They have one daughter.

He is hardly considered puritanical. If the stories they tell of him are only half true, the 43-year-old sheikh still knows how to enjoy himself.

His associates, however, insist that he is no playboy, nor one of the idle rich. He plays hard. His hunting excursions deep into the Arabian desert are elaborate expeditions. But he works hard, determined to help keep Kuwait and the people abreast of the progressing world.

Moreover, he is a shrewd politician.

One by one, Middle East rulers who fought Nasserism — the Arab nationalism personified at the moment by President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt — in their countries have fallen from power in the last few years. Mubarak has intently watched this. Instead of fighting it, he's joining it.

So does Sheikh Abdullah Mubarak.

He recently said in Cairo that Kuwait will join the Arab League sooner or later. Nasser indisputably dominates the league.

In London, the statement drew a quick protest and denial from the British foreign office. Britain has a treaty arrangement with Kuwait, covering defense and foreign affairs. More important, Kuwait is her biggest source of oil. The British run the Kuwait Oil Co., owned equally by British and American oil firms, and they are striving to keep a tight hold on it.

The sheikh reaffirmed that he made the statement in Cairo, and he said: "It isn't in our interest to insulate Kuwait from the rest of the Arab world."

Red Nomads End Wandering Ways

TOKYO —(AP)— Outer Mongolia's famed nomadic herdsmen are giving up their roaming ways under communism. Peiping radio says 56 per cent of them have joined cooperatives since 1955.

Manual Gear Shift in Cars Is Rapidly Being Out-Moded

DETROIT — (UPI) — The manual gear shift in an automobile is going the way of magnetos, running boards and whip holders, sales reports indicate.

The "straight stick," as the manual gear shift is called in the industry, is being driven into obsolescence by constant improvements in automatic transmissions.

Dodge, for example, reported 97.8 per cent of the 1959 model cars it sold this year have been equipped with automatic transmissions.

Because Dodge is a middle-priced car, that figure is higher than the average for all car sales, but Ford, in a pamphlet distributed to its customers, reported 69 per cent of sales of all makes of cars in 1958 were cars equipped with automatic transmissions. And the figure for 1959 model sales is probably higher than that.

Ford, in pointing out the advantages of buying a car equipped with automatic transmission, estimated it cost the average motorist about $30 a year for the added convenience and safety.

The auto company figured it this way: an automatic transmission on a Ford three years ago cost $190 extra. After three years of service, it was worth an extra $100 in trade-in value. In other words, it cost the driver $30 for each year he drove the car.

When the automatic shift was first popularized—it was introduced in 1906 but didn't become popular until 1940 — acid-tongued critics claimed anyone who couldn't shift manually had no business driving a car.

They pointed out the automatic shift sacrificed economy and power and was subject to frequent—and costly—repair bills.

But the automatic transmission has been improved so much since then that Ford listed lack of repair bills as one of its advantages over the straight stick.

And Ford claimed even expert drivers would have difficulty selecting better shift points than the automatic transmissions of today, a factor in gasoline economy. Cars with automatic tramsmissions pull away from stops as rapidly—or more so—than cars with the straight sticks, Ford said.

The last remaining stronghold of the straight stick is the driver who learned to drive with a clutch.

He considers himself the "old pro" among motorists and is proud of the fact that he has been driving a long time. To demonstrate his long experience as a driver, he clings fondly to the car with a straight stick.

But as his number grows smaller, the popularity of the automatic transmission increases and its value as a trade-in factor increases. Soon, like headlights which were once considered optional equipment, the automatic transmission will be considered an essential part of an automobile if sales trends continue.

JACK ANDERSON—About TV

Balderdash of Pills Really Calls for Duel

ONE OF THESE DAYS there's going to be a duel in the early morning in New York's mist-enshrouded Central Park. Three, rather than the customary two, caped adversaries are going to be banging away at each other to the death.

The duelists will be the pitchmen on television for aspirin, Anacin and Bufferin.

ANDERSON

Their competition on TV for the use of our stomachs has reached the point now that there's nothing left but to try to kill each other.

I hope they settle matters before they kill the customers by scaring them into the grave.

It used to be the pill people settled for commercials extolling the virtues of their products without referring to the competition.

Then they went a step further. They began talking about the secret ingredient one had that the other didn't. Now they've started talking about what each other's secret ingredients will do to you if you don't watch out.

★ ★ ★

THE OTHER NIGHT I took one of the advertised tablets for a slight migraine. I settled down before my TV set to wait for the headache to pass away.

On the screen came the shouting commercial of the competitor to the firm whose pellet I had just slipped into my kisser.

I was told the tablet, now presumably disintegrating inside me, contained an intricately named acid. And what this would do to my stomach shouldn't happen to a dog.

It happens I'm pretty skeptical about advertising claims. But TV viewers more susceptible to this mularkey, to say nothing of being more squeamish about medicines than I am, must have felt they should reach for a stomach pump.

In the course of an evening's exposure to television the viewers are subjected to so many dire contradictions among the pill peddlers that it's hard to know whether any specific remedy is a cure or a cheap way of committing suicide.

Things have gone far enough, men. Take off those coats, put up those dukes and let's settle the pill problem once and for all.

CAUGHT CBS' blabbermouth game, Keep Talking, for the first time Sunday night. It's a diverting, sometimes hilarious, half hour. Two teams of comedians or comediennes match each other in trying to continue extemporaneously a story started for them by host Carl Reiner.

The teams are scored on their quickness in inserting a gag handed to them for working into their respective versions and on their ability to spot the gag in each other's narrative.

It's strictly a fun game. No prizes. And it's a real test of a comic. Keep Talking is no place for a script comedian. If he hasn't a do-it-yourself wit, he's sunk.

7 — MILTON BERLE — Milton has one of America's finest baritones, Tallulah Bankhead, along for some arias like "You Call Everybody Dahling." Berle and Bankhead is an act that has worked together hitherto with great success, so it will probably be a lively session.

10 — DONNA REED — Jeff, the young boarder, sprains his arm and that's about as dramatic as things can get on a situation comedy. Little else remains to be told, save that Jeff, instead of bringing his wounded member to his dad, takes his case to a new competitor. A very wispy plot.

"Baritone" Tallulah Bankhead
. . . cuts up with Milton Berle at 9

9:30

4 — I'VE GOT A SECRET — Tonight's show is so busy playing musical chairs that it's hard to tell who the players will be with or without a scorecard. Garry Moore, Bill Cullen and Henry Morgan will definitely be present, Betsy Palmer might be and Mary Astor and Bess Myerson are possible secret-sharers.

7 — BAT MASTERSON — Bat is drawn to the town of Trinidad, where he himself is unknown, to meet the town's recently elected sheriff who calls himself Bat Masterson.

4 — CIRCLE THEATER — A half - humorous, beautifully contemporary tale is the program's "actual" for tonight. It tells of Newsweek editor Philip Clarke's frantic efforts to adopt a Greek child, which eventually, after a blizzard of red tape, takes the form of trying to smuggle the baby into the country. Phillip Abbott and Joan Copeland co-star.

7 — THIS IS YOUR LIFE — Tonight's trapped guest is a citizen of the world, whose life is rich in incidents.

10 — WEDNESDAY NIGHT FIGHTS — Hard-hitting Bobby Boyd of Chicago and Holly Mims of Washington, D. C., swap leather at Chicago Stadium in a 10-round middleweight return bout.

10 — MOVIE — "The Champion," (1949), Kirk Douglas, Marilyn Maxwell, Arthur Kennedy. A young fighter gets to the top only to lose to the "syndicate."

7 — JACK PAAR — Peggy Cass and Zsa Zsa Gabor, a couple of witty girls with decidedly different points of view, will be on the panel with Guido Panzini, the Italian golf pro, whose face you may recognize from another show. Diahann Carroll, a lovely and talented singer and Miss Australia contribute the pulchritude.

11:25

Kommuter Klub Kampus Kick

The 40 members indicated it would have a Greek organization significance to match fraternity and sorority activities on campus.

Soviet Scientists Say Lunik May Enter Solar Orbit Today

—Associated Press Wirephoto

NEW COSMIC ROCKET joins three sputniks above the Kremlin on a Russian stamp celebrating launching of the "Lunik." The one-ruble stamp went on sale in Moscow Sunday.

MOSCOW —(AP)— The Soviet cosmic rocket Mechta (Dream) has practically entered orbit as the solar system's first artificial planet, a Russian scientist announced Tuesday.

The 1½-ton projectile is about a half million miles from the earth and streaking on to start its circling of the sun, Vice President Alexander Topchiev of the Soviet Academy of Sciences told news men.

Topchiev said the rocket at the time of his (8 a.m. Miami Time) news conference was 497,097 miles from the earth and 310,686 beyond the moon, which it passed Sunday at a speed of more than 5,000 miles an hour.

It missed the moon, 2,160 miles in diameter, by the equivalent of two diameters of the moon or 4,320 miles, he said.

Soviet scientists lost track of their 1½-ton brainchild when its radio signals died at the 370,960-mile mark Monday. But they said its predetermined course would put it into a solar orbit today or Thursday.

Topchiev called the creation and launching of the rocket "a triumph of human genius which for the first time has succeeded in overcoming the force of terrestrial gravitation."

"When the first earth satellite (Sputnik I) was launched," he remarked, "some of our detractors abroad alleged that it was an isolated breakthrough by the Soviet Union, an accidental record by what is in general a technically backward country. Now these fabrications have been exploded."

Topchiev spoke of the wide range of human skills brought to play in creation of Mechta and said "it is the boldest undertaking ever conceived and executed by man."

Academician Anatoly Blagonravov, a Soviet space authority, told the newsmen "there isn't a spot in the universe today which could not be reached by rocket."

"This would of course require time," he said, "but the wait will not be long now."

Blagonravov described the rocket as a guided missile.

Evald Mustel, chairman of the Solar Exploration Committee, said the rocket offers the first chance of studying solar energy and interplanetary gas unaffected by the influence of the earth.

He said it would help to bring the world nearer to an understanding of such problems as the origin of stars and planets.

'Pull, Treat' Plan

Tree Law Challenged

TALLAHASSEE —(UPI)— The State Supreme Court was asked Tuesday to invalidate Florida's 1957 law putting a $1,000 per acre limitation on the amount the state can pay growers for destruction of healthy trees in the controversial "pull and treat" method of eliminating spreading decline.

The court took the case under advisement after hearing oral arguments from attorneys on both sides. It gave no indication when it will rule.

The case came up on appeal from Polk Circuit Judge Gunter Stephenson's ruling that the $1,000 per acre limitation is invalid.

The limitation was challenged by Polk County Citrus Grower Walter A. Smith and his wife, Mildred, in a suit against the State Plant Board, which administers the "pull and treat" program.

Marshall Edwards, Bartow attorney hired by a committee of Citrus Mutual growers to defend the $1,000 limitation, argued that the Smiths had not exhausted all their remedies under the act.

He said the Smiths "short-circuited" the Plant Board and went into court with an attack on constitutionality of the act before it was ever determined whether healthy trees destroyed in Smith's grove were worth more than $1,000 an acre.

Edwards took the position that in no case would the loss of profits from healthy trees, destroyed to create a safety zone to prevent spread of the burrowing nematode which causes decline, exceed $1,000 an acre.

Harvey Crittenden and Robert Stauffer, Winter Haven attorneys for the Smiths, argued that there was no point in appealing to the Plant Board since the 1957 act "arbitrarily" limits payments to $1,000 an acre and the Plant Board could not go beyond that even if it felt Smith was entitled to more.

The Supreme Court ruled several years ago that the state must compensate growers for healthy trees destroyed in the compulsory treatment program.

State Seeks To Prevent Furen Fill

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — The Cabinet Trustees of the Internal Improvement Fund took action Tuesday to prevent the Ratner interests from dredging and filling the so-called "Furen Fill" in Boca Ciega Bay.

J. Velma Keen of Tallahassee, attorney for Lee Ratner, told the Cabinet the fill must start before Jan. 14, or Ratner would lose his permit to dredge.

The submerged land, amounting to 500 acres, was originally sold to Al Furen of St. Petersburg to fill and develop. But later, the Cabinet changed the action and said the sale was not in the public interest.

The sale has been under litigation for several years and Keen said the Ratner interests have won at every turn. He offered to settle the case with the state but Attorney General Richard Ervin said he will take legal action to stop the fill.

Ervin said he will ask the appellate court at Lakeland for an order to halt the fill until all litigation in the case is settled.

He said he doubts the wisdom of Ratner going ahead until the cases are concluded. Gov. LeRoy Collins said the trustees will "resist to the fullest extent" any filling in the controversial area.

The Governor said if the filling were started today, it would be without the express or implied approval of the trustees.

Keen said he would have liked to hold up filling until settlement of the case, but he pointed out that every time the Ratner interests win one case, someone instigates another one.

If his client waits until all litigation is settled, Keen said, "no one here will be around to see it." He added it was difficult for a citizen to litigate with the state in such matters.

Ervin took issue with this statement. He said he has found it just the reverse. The courts "lean over backwards against the state," Ervin said.

Treasury Ends Year In the Black

Ray Higgins, general auditor for the State Comptroller's Office, reported with some relief Tuesday the state treasury had a net balance of $3,809,896 on Dec. 31.

A short time back Higgins was sweating out the bills when the treasury hit close to the bottom with an $800,000 balance.

From now on out the treasury will be building up with receipts from automobile tag sales and heavier tax collections.

Because of lower than expected tax collections, the state has had to borrow 20 million dollars from the trust funds to tide the general fund over until the period of heavier tax collections. This loan will be repaid later this year.

Freeze in North Florida

Cold Wave Passes; Damage To Crops Reported Light

By The Associated Press

Temperatures fell below freezing in portions of north Florida Tuesday morning but the Weather Bureau promised warmer temperatures under sunny skies today.

A thin strip near the Georgia line and scattered points in the northern interior felt the shock of the frigid air. The mercury fell to 30 degrees at Jacksonville, 29 at Tallahassee and 28 at Pensacola.

The Weather Bureau said indications before dawn pointed to slight damage to crops.

Gentle north to northeast winds played over much of the state Monday night, blowing the chill into Florida, giving the Sunshine State a taste of the bitter cold in much of the eastern United States.

A shift in winds at Miami Beach shot up the mercury 13 degrees in 5 minutes this morning. When the wind changed from north to northeast, beach thermometers rose from 55 degrees to 68.

Small craft warnings were displayed on the eastern Gulf of Mexico and on the Atlantic coast from Jacksonville through the straits. Warning flags were lowered from Jacksonville north to Cape Hatteras, S. C.

The cold front pushed through the peninsula by Monday afternoon, sending temperatures most places into the 50s and 60s. North Florida shivered with late afternoon readings in the 40s.

Miami had the nation's high temperature of 72 degrees.

Some early morning temperatures: Jacksonville 30 degrees, Daytona Beach 49, Orlando 41, Vero Beach 58, West Palm Beach 51, Miami 51, Key West 61, Fort Myers 44, Tampa 40, Cross City 30, Tallahassee 29 and Pensacola 28 degrees.

St. Petersburg Acts

City Reopens Spa In Integration Fuss

ST. PETERSBURG—(AP)—The City Council voted Tuesday to reopen the SPA Beach and Pool but gave the city manager authority to close them again "If any emergency arises."

The council closed the municipal recreation area last September when Negroes armed with a favorable U. S. Supreme Court ruling, tried to integrate it.

Presumably, the "emergency" clause in Tuesday's motion refers to further attempts by Negroes to use the SPA facilities.

The vote was 4-3 in favor of a motion by Councilman Ray C. Chase. It called for a temporary reopening of the SPA until settlement of a current controversy over a council plan to construct a civic auditorium and convention center on the site.

City Recreation Director Jack Puryear announced he would open the SPA for "business as usual" today.

In his motion, Chase contended that St. Petersburg residents and thousands of winter visitors are being deprived of a convenient bathing facility because of the shut down of the SPA.

"Pending the start of work on the auditorium," he said, "the SPA should be reopened. It should be opened on the same basis as before, with the understanding that Acting City Manager V. L. Fletcher has the authority to close it again if any emergency arises.

The Council did not say how it would get around a U.S. Supreme Court ruling which gives Negroes a right to use the beach and pool. Some councilmen said privately that the SPA would be padlocked again if Negroes swam there.

The SPA is the only municipally-owned beach for whites in St. Petersburg. When it was closed, the city charted plans to develop North Shore Beach as a white bathing beach. This is located just north of the SPA on Tampa Bay.

Sleep Tight! And She Did

JACKSONVILLE — (AP) — Eager Wood never knew what happened. The 2-year-old girl went to sleep in the back seat of the family car while her mother drove home from a shopping trip.

When D. E. Wood hopped in the car and drove to his night job, he didn't know his daughter was there. Mrs. Wood realized it after he was gone, notified police, who sent a car to meet Wood at work.

Eager was whisked home, still asleep.

'Kidnaped' Says Pilot After Crash

A student pilot from Miami who crashed a plane near Key Largo claimed Tuesday he was kidnaped and ordered to fly two passengers to Havana.

Lt. Cmdr. John Doherty of the Coast Guard said Jose Bosch, who holds a student pilot license, told of being held captive for three days before the flight.

The officer quoted Bosch as saying two men took him to an airport and ordered him to get a co-pilot to fly the two-engine Beachcraft to Havana.

T. J. Kennedy of Miami Springs, who was rescued along with Bosch after the crash, said he knew nothing of the kidnaping. He said Bosch asked him to make a flight to Cuba and he said he made the trip "just for the ride."

Bosch told the Coast Guard and border patrolmen the two men who kidnaped him hid in the swamp during the rescue.

"We're checking the story out completely," a border patrolman said "We're approaching it very carefully and thoroughly."

Miamians Head State Surgeons

Three Miamians won top offices in the Florida chapter of the International College of Surgeons in the annual elections, held in connection with the surgeons' convention here this week.

Dr. Claude G. Mentzer was named president; Dr. Alfred G. Levin, vice president; and Dr. Herbert W. Virgin, Jr., secretary-treasurer.

Directors are Drs. Frank L. Meleney, Coral Gables; Carl S. McLemore, Orlando; Quillian Jones, Fort Myers; James A. McLeod, Orlando; and H. A. Lisenby, Panama City.

Train Runs Cut

TALLAHASSEE — The Atlantic Coast Line Railway discontinued two passenger trains on its Jacksonville-Tampa run Monday.

The State Utilities Commission authorized the action with the provision that ACL will substitute a special trucking service to take care of express and mail which made up the bulk of the two runs.

Barracks Fire Sends Cadets To Georgia For the Winter

By RICK TUTTLE
Hollywood Bureau Chief

HOLLYWOOD—Riverside Military Academy, whose students have spent the winter here for nearly 30 years, was planning Tuesday to return to its summer quarters at Gainesville, Ga.

The north wing of the main barracks was swept by fire Monday. Firemen from four cities fought the blaze for two hours before bringing it under control.

"We have 12 buses lined up now. We need 15," he said. "Some of our vans began loading Tuesday afternoon."

None of the 750 cadets were in the barracks when the fire started. No one was injured. Damage was estimated at $150,000.

Counties Qualify For School Aid, Won't Get It All

Enrollment Up But Funds Short

Thomas D. Bailey
. . . cites cutbacks

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— Increased public school enrollment has made 55 Florida counties eligible for additional state aid money, but the financial pinch won't permit the full amounts to be paid.

School Superintendent Thomas D. Bailey said the counties were entitled to $6,431,580 in state recalculation funds to help meet costs of the bigger enrollment. However, because of earlier cutbacks in state spending, there is actually only $3,629,747 available for them, he said.

Statewide, the increase in pupils was 10.2 per cent over enrollment for the same period last year.

Twelve counties failed to expand enrollment by the five per cent necessary to qualify for additional recalculation money. But of these, only little Gilchrist County, in North Central Florida, had an actual decrease, Bailey reported.

Charlotte County on the lower west coast led in the increase with a whopping 37.32 per cent boost. Brevard County, booming from the activity at the Cape Canaveral missile launching base, increased its enrollment 27.49 per cent.

Bailey said minimum foundation funds were rolled back five per cent, along with those of other state functions financed from general revenue, when the cabinet realized in May that tax revenues would fall 83 million dollars short of legislative appropriations.

Under the program, the counties which qualify for recalculation money receive it in three disbursements, one-third each in January, February and March.

Bailey said he would ask the Budget Commission later this month to release the third due for January.

Among the enrollment increases reported by Bailey were Alachua County 9.42 per cent; Broward 13.30 per cent; Collier 15.74 per cent; Dade 8.63 per cent; Duval 8.08 per cent; Escambia 7.94 per cent; Hillsborough 11.25 per cent; Lake 8.91 per cent; Lee 16.29 per cent; Leon 11.59 per cent; Manatee 12.19 per cent; Marion 5.53 per cent; Monroe 7.84 per cent; Orange 13.95 per cent; Palm Beach 13.75 per cent; Pinellas 14.93 per cent; Polk 8.69 per cent; Putnam 7.90 per cent; St. Lucie 12.69 per cent; Sarasota 10.66 per cent, and Volusia 8.07 per cent.

Counties in addition to Gilchrist which failed to qualify for recalculation money are Baker, Calhoun, Columbia, Flagler, Franklin, Hamilton, Hamilton, Jefferson, Lafay-Jefferson, Lafayette, Marison, St. Johns and Suwanee.

Wins Epiphany Blessings

Football Player Retrieves Cross

TARPON SPRINGS —(UPI)— Sam (Pinky) Mack, a strong swimmer and University of Florida freshman football player, retrieved the cross from Springs Bayou Tuesday afternoon to win the blessings of his church in this Greek-American colony's 56th annual Epiphany ceremony.

Mack, 19, was one of more than 30 young Greek Americans who dived into the chilly waters to retrieve the golden cross as hundreds of visitors watched. Thus, he received the church's blessing and, according to legend, will have good luck the rest of the year.

The cross was thrown into the water by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Polyeftktos of Pittsburgh, the chief celebrant, who directed the Epiphany Day program at St. Nicholas Greek Orthodox Church.

The rites commemorate the baptism of Christ in the River Jordan and have been held here almost ever since the colony was established by Greek sponge divers.

Boys and girls wearng Greek costumes and the church's Byzantine Choir, its members wearing black robes, led a procession from the church to the bayou for the cross-throwing.

Nick Mack, father of the winning diver, said he was "real tickled" that his son came up with the gold-covered, wooden cross.

"I tried for 15 years and was never able to do it," he said.

Greek and American flags decorated the city as between 1,000 and 2,000 visitors watched the ceremonies under cloudless skies. The day began with chill temperatures, but the mercury had climbed to the mid-60s by the middle of the day.

Chair Near After Long Legal Bout

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — Gov. LeRoy Collins Tuesday signed a death warrant, setting the week of Jan. 19 for the execution of a condemmed Negro rapist, Jimmie Lee Thomas, of Jacksonville.

The acutal day and hour of the electrocution will be set by Raiford Warden DeWitt Sinclair, who customarily selects the Monday starting the week set in the death warrant.

Thomas, 32, was convicted in 1955, but has kept his case in the courts on appeal since. Clemency has been refused him in State and U.S. Supreme Courts, U.S. Court of Appeals, and the State Pardon Board.

Thomas, who was raised in Brevard County, has a wife and two children in Jacksonville. He was convicted, without a recommendation for mercy, of raping a white woman in Jacksonville on April 29, 1955.

After losing appeals to the State and U.S. Supreme Courts, and being turned down by the pardon board in September, 1957, Thomas went back before the U.S. Court of Appeals on the claim of racial discrimination.

Thomas contended, unsuccessfully, the Florida law which permits a jury to recommend mercy in capital offense cases, in its actual operation results in discrimination against Negroes.

His lawyer, Ernest D. Jackson of Jacksonville, claimed statistics show that, in the last 23 years in Florida, 24 Negroes have been executed following rape convictions, while no white man has been put to death for that crime.

Tax Income Takes Jump

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— Collections of alcoholic beverage and cigaret taxes for the first half of the current fiscal year were up almost six per cent over the total for the corresponding period of last year, State Beverage Director H. G. Cochran Jr. said Tuesday.

All collections by the department from June through December amounted to $36,834,330. Cochran said the increase was "in excess of our anticipated receipts."

Will Aid Governor

Young Lawyer Picked To Draft Proposals

Collins announced Tuesday Peeples had joined his staff as legislative assistant Jan. 1 at a salary of $500 a month.

Collins said Peeples will help in planning the program to be presented to the Legislature in April, and would draft bills designed to carry out the administration recommendations.

Peeples is a graduate of the University of Florida law school and served as campus manager of the 1956 Collins for governor campaign.

The new legislative assistant has been associated with the Tallahassee law firm of Ausley, Ausley, and McMullen, of which Collins was a partner before being elected governor.

2 Sought In Glades

NAPLES —(UPI)— Swamp buggies and Civil Air Patrol planes searched the Everglades Tuesday for two lost hunters. Both men are believed wandering in the Monroe Station area, 65 miles west of Miami.

James Williams, 22, Lakeland, was reported missing Monday afternoon. He left a hunting lodge Sunday morning and did not return.

The identity of the second hunter was not known. He was reported wandering in the Everglades, southeast of the Monroe Station.

Graham to Ask License To Build Radio Station

CHARLOTTE, N. C. — (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham said he and several associates will ask the Federal Communications Commission for a license to build a 5,000-watt radio station in Black Mountain, N. C.

Graham said the station would be primarily religious in its broadcasts, but that it also would offer good music, public service programs, news and sports. Any profits would go to missions and charities, he added, and advertising would be accepted but not solicited.

The state has chartered backers of the station as the Blue Ridge Broadcasting Corp. of Black Mountain. Listed as incorporators of the non-stock organization are Graham; Dr. L. Nelson Bell, his father-in-law, of Montreat; George M. Wilson of Minneapolis, secretary-treasurer for the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, and Harold E. Finch of Black Mountain.

The evangelist said that station's operation would not be connected directly with the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, and that it might affiliate with a network.

Winner of Hurst Contest Surprised, Delighted with $500 Worth of Awnings

"It still seems like a dream," said Mrs. J. H. Mahaffey of 942 NW 40th St., Miami, in speaking of the five hundred dollars' worth of Hurst awnings she won recently.

"My husband, John, laughed at me when I entered my name in the drawing at the Home Show at Dinner Key Auditorium last November," she explained. "He said he didn't expect I'd ever hear from anybody except maybe a salesman who might call me up to offer some gimmick or other. He said he was sure these contests were always rigged.

"You can imagine our surprise, then, when Mr. Padgett of the Hurst Awning Company showed up at our house one day ready to measure our windows and to put up the awnings I had won! In a very few days our home was completely equipped with the most beautiful awnings anybody in our neighborhood has ever seen. The job came to a little more than the five hundred dollars worth of awnings I had won, and believe it or not, the Hurst people threw in the extra amount free! I just can't believe it all happened, it was so wonderful!"

Mrs. Mahaffey had an old awning across the front of her house for years, and had often thought of replacing it. But she explained that there are so many companies putting out awnings these days and all making different claims for the superiority of their particular product over all others she never could make up her mind which one to call. Then she won the Hurst awnings and the whole Mahaffey family now is sold on them.

"My husband, who works for the Miami Transit Company, has been telling all his friends what a great job the Hurst people do in making their awnings," Mrs. Mahaffey added. "And all my children and my neighbors are thrilled by the beautiful new look the awnings give our home.

"We especially like the fact that all the awnings fold down for hurricane protection, should we ever need it. In the meantime, they give wonderful protection from the sun and the rain, too. The first day we got them it started to rain and, as usual, I made a dash to close the windows.

"'Wait a minute, now,' my husband told me. 'Let's just see whether these awnings really keep the rain out the way the man said they would!'

"Sure enough, not a drop of rain came in. Not even a trickle, like our old awning used to give us. The deep sides on Hurst awnings really protect our home. I just can't express how secure we all feel with our new protection against sun, rain and hurricane.

"And, as my husband says, the fine workmanship that goes into Hurst awnings shows in the smooth, streamlined way they are put together. The under-surfaces and corners — where spider webs and even hornet nests do sometimes gather, in spite of a busy housewife's care — are all so smooth and shiny that it's a cinch to keep them clean.

"There are no sharp edges or ends of bolts hanging down, you see, to catch in your dust mop or cloth. I really appreciate that, as I work in the Edison Senior High cafeteria and don't always have as much time as I'd like to devote to house cleaning. I'm sure other women will understand the advantage of easy-to-clean awnings like mine.

"I know I must sound like a super salesman for the Hurst Company, with all the nice things I keep saying about them and their awnings. But I simply can't get over what wonderful people they are. They did exactly what they promised to do in the contest — deliver and install five hundred dollars' worth of awnings free.

"There were no gimmicks, no high pressure to buy something extra, no attempt to use my home for a demonstration, or anything of that sort. They just came and quietly and efficiently, put up the awnings and then went away again. But ever since, I've been telling everybody I know about the Hurst Company and recommending their awnings.

"It's the least I can do, to show my appreciation for our own wonderful new Hurst awnings, isn't it?"

Further information about Hurst awnings and free estimates may be obtained by calling TUxedo 7-8154.

Innocent Victims, H. N. Moore and Collie

. . . Moore died instantly on Trail, dog was critically hurt

Suicidal Motorist Kills Man

Two more Miamians died on Dade highways Tuesday, including a driver whose car was the target of a would-be suicide.

The man who attempted suicide survived the bloody smashup though his condition is called critical.

In the bizzare suicide attempt, police said Henry N. Moore, 50, of 7431 NW Seventh Ct., died instantly when his east-bound car collided at Tamiami Trail and 122nd Ave., with a west-bound auto driven by Attorney Paul A. Foisy, 33, of 2981 SW 12th St.

Florida Highway Patrol investigators said Foisy deliberately veered his speeding car — traveling about 90 miles an hour — into Moore's vehicle.

A pet collie in Moore's car was also critically injured, and may have to be destroyed, police said.

The other traffic death was Cornelius B. Willard, 35, of 6048 SW 19th St., who was hurled from his laundry truck in an intersection collision and pinned to the pavement.

Miami police said George S. Pietzcker, 73, of 7737 Atlantic Way, Miami Beach, failed to yield the right of way to Willard's truck at NE Third Ct. and 78th St.

Pilot 'Abduction' Remains Mystery

By ARTHUR JOHNSEY
Herald Staff Writer

Border patrolmen sifted the strange kidnap story of a Miami student pilot Tuesday without finding a trace of two passengers the pilot claimed coerced him into taking off for Havana.

The ill-fated trip ended when the pilot and co-pilot crashed in a Beechcraft plane in shallow water Monday near Key Largo.

Jose Bosch, of 5025 SW 114th Ave., a Puerto Rican who has a student pilot's license, and T. J. Kennedy of 648 Mokena Drive, Miami Springs, were rescued by a Coast Guard helicopter Monday.

The passengers were reported to have hidden in a mangrove and escaped.

Lt. Cmdr. John Doherty of the Coast Guard said Bosch claimed he was held by the two men for a day or two, kept blindfolded, then ordered to find a co-pilot and fly the plane from Tamiami Airport to Havana.

Patrol investigators said Bosch and Kennedy, interviewed separately, related they took off from Tamiami Airport for Key West with the two mysterious men aboard.

When rescued, Bosch and Kennedy did not mention their passengers until the Coast Guard rescue helicopter had left the crash scene, according to the Coast Guard.

Kennedy said he got into the act when Bosch, whom he knew only slightly, invited him to go along as co-pilot and he agreed. He didn't suspect anything was wrong, investigators were told, until Bosch told him after the takeoff that "we can't go to Key West."

Border patrolmen, examining a possibility the passengers were revolutionaries who sought this means to return to Cuba, pointed out clearance can easily be obtained in most cases for legal departure.

She Used Talent Wisely

A Modern-Day Parable

. . . Janitress Nicolosa Donlucas

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— "This is a talent," the Methodist minister said, pressing a 50-cent piece into the gnarled hand of the tiny $90 a month janitress. "Use it wisely and it will increase."

And Nicolosa Donlucas listened to the Rev. Nicolas Davila relate Jesus' Parable of the Talents. As she stood, broom in hand, he explained how some persons can make one coin become many, while others — as told in Matthew — fail to make use of what they have.

That was last summer.

Some days later, a timid knock came on his door. It was Nicolosa. She held out $17.50 to him.

Haltingly, she explained. His half-dollar had paid for some cheese and tortillas. She had made enchiladas and sold them, then bought more cheese and tortillas and sold more enchiladas. Now she had $35! Half she was giving to the Methodist-operated community center where she works. Half would finance more enchiladas in her spare time.

"Is this not the meaning of the tale you told me?" she asked.

4 Votes End His Reign

White House Aides Blamed

WASHINGTON — (AP) — House Republicans ousted their veteran leader, Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts, Tuesday on the eve of a new congressional session.

A rebellion pointed toward giving the party high command a more aggressive, vigorous look shifted the leadership mantle to Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana.

Martin pointed a finger of blame at some White House aides, but not at President Eisenhower directly. He also said Vice President Richard Nixon's associates opposed him.

The changeover provided a dramatic, spectacular prelude for a similar showdown within Senate Republican ranks and for the opening of the heavily Democratic 86th Congress at noon today.

A thin, four-vote margin was the difference between volt against the House GOP success and failure in the re-leadership — the first successful one in 28 years.

In spite of the usual professions of unity and amity after the balloting, the outcome may leave damaging scars on the depleted ranks of Republican congressmen.

HALLECK

MARTIN

Martin said that "I don't think the President himself did anything against me." But he said some White House aides conferred with Halleck about a month ago and they may have had a little bit to do with his ouster. White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said Eisenhower took no part in the fight. The President praised both Halleck and Martin.

Asked if Nixon was instrumental in his defeat, Martin

East Still Chilled by Icy Winds

NEW YORK — (AP) — A vicious Arctic gale hammered the Eastern seaboard for a second day Tuesday with wind gusts up to 70 m.p.h. Damage was widespread, as bitter cold intensified the misery of the storm.

The biting cold even penetrated the depths of New York's subway system, disrupting mechanical equipment and delaying rush hour travelers by the thousands. New York's low was 13.7 above zero.

At Stratford, Conn., the father of four children died in a duplex fire, and his wife and four children were hospitalized.

Sixteen students fled the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity house on the Williams College campus at Williamstown, Mass., during a pre-dawn fire. And at Long Branch, N. J., 11 persons escaped from a burning apartment house.

In New England, thousands of autos were stalled by the cold. Wild winds felled trees and utility poles and delayed scores of trains out of Boston.

Dulles Conquers Virus Infection

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was reported to be feeling better Tuesday. An illness, described as a virus infection, prevented him from making a planned trip to Canada Monday for conferences.

The State Department press officer, Lincoln White, said Dulles' temperature is normal but that "the secretary is remaining at home, resting and doing some work."

Congress Dissolved, Courts Suspended

New Cuban Regime to Rule By Decree for 18 Months

Cuba at a glance, 3A

HAVANA —(AP)— The revolutionary government dissolved Congress Tuesday and announced it will rule Cuba by decree for at least 18 months when new elections are planned.

The government suspended all criminal courts, regarded as a symbol of the fallen dictatorship of Fulgencio Batista, and was reported preparing a decree abolishing all political parties.

The provisional regime dismissed all provincial governors, mayors and councilmen. Apparently their functions will be taken over by new civilian appointees prepared in advance for the task.

Other decrees, informed sources said, would ban all candidates in the 1954 and 1958 elections from Cuba's political life, freeze the private bank accounts of all Batista officials, and stop the cashing of all outstanding checks against the Batista regime.

Revolutionary courts were reported being prepared to try Batista, now in exile in the Dominican Republic, and other officials who may be accused of crimes during his rule.

These and other laws were announced, or reported in preparation, as Provisional President Manuel Urrutia sat almost continuously in the Presidential Palace with his new cabinet.

The initial policies of the new government were being shaped as hoarse-voiced Fidel Castro, the rebel leader who shoved Urrutia to power, was still plodding through adoring throngs toward the capital from the east. It was doubtful he would reach Havana today as planned.

The losing of political rights by all candidates in the 1954 and 1958 elections would apply not only to Batista but also to Rivero Aguero, his successful candidate in last November's presidential elections and the second runner, former President Ramon Grau San Martin.

The rebels considered both the 1954 and 1958 Batista elections were fraudulent.

The dissolution of political parties would affect former President Carlos Prio Socarras, head of the Autentico Party, who returned to Cuba after the New Year's Day resignation of Batista. Although Prio made common cause with the rebels against Batista, he apparently is not trusted by Castro's 26th of July movement.

Prio has been living in exile in Miami since 1952 when he was overthrown by a Batista coup.

Additional appointments were made to the cabinet headed by Premier Jose Miro Cardona, president of the Havana Bar Association. These included Luis Orlando Rodrigues as interior minister, and Raul Cepero Bonilla as minister of the treasury. Earlier Bonilla had been slated for commerce minister and Raul Chibas for the treasury.

Felipe Pazos was named director of the National Bank in place of Joaquin Martinez Paez, who was linked to the Batista government.

Castro's Son, 9, Returning to Cuba

NEW YORK — (AP) — The nine-year-old son of Cuban Leader Fidel Castro has been living quietly in New York City, it was learned Tuesday night.

The boy, identified as Fidel Castro Jr., talked to newsmen on boarding a plane at Idlewild Airport to return to Cuba.

He said his fellow pupils in in the third grade at Public School 20 in Flushing, Queens, didn't know he was Castro's son, adding:

"They didn't ask me and I didn't tell them."

Glennon told reporters his wife was a sister-in-law of the boy's mother, Mrs. Mirta Diaz de Nunez, who is divorced from Castro.

Glennon said the former Mrs. Castro sent young Fidel to New York six weeks ago because she was afraid that followers of Fulgencio Batista, deposed Cuban dictator, might take reprisal action against the boy.

Glennon and his wife said that since the youngster used his true name, they were surprised his classmates and neighbors had not learned he was the son of the rebel leader.

The boy learned of his father's victory in Cuba when he saw a television program, Mrs. Glennon said.

"Fidel marched around the house," she added. "He first promoted himself to sergeant, then to lieutenant and finally to a general."

She said young Fidel had packed his toy guns in a big box and was carrying them back to Cuba with him.

Dad Totes Her Back to Prison

BOISE, Idaho — (AP) — Mary Ann Gardner headed home to El Monte, Calif., after escaping from the Idaho Penitentiary Dec. 28. Tuesday her father brought her back. She was serving a forgery term.

Al Gardner stayed only long enough to surrender his 21-year-old daughter to Warden L. E. Clapp. Then he, his wife and a grandmother started home.

Clapp said he suggested Gardner turn his daughter over to California officers when the father telephoned last week-end. "No, I'll take her back myself," he quoted Gardner.

Mary Astor Discloses—

Quit Fight for Child, Studio Brass Told Me

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Movie Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — (AP) — Mary Astor disclosed Tuesday that moviedom's top brass tried to persuade her to call off the 1936 child custody suit in which her sensational "purple ink" diary figured.

She refused, and the resulting scandal rocked Hollywood.

The disclosure was made in her autobiography, "My Story," a regretful look back to the wilder days of filmtown history. She is now 52 and a grandmother. Her account doesn't spare the lovely, wilful film star of the '30s. Her reflective view of herself after the trial:

"I do not think I could have borne it to face myself as I really was—sick, spoiled and selfish, prowling like some jungle animal seeking momentary satisfaction. Sexually I was out of control. I was drinking too much, and I was brought up short when I found myself late in the evening thinking someone was 'terribly attractive' and wondering the next morning, 'Why, why'!"

The actress created lurid headlines when she sued her

Firemen Search Through Ruins of One-Story, Prefabricated Barracks
...50-MPH winds whipped flames into an inferno, survivors said

13 Injured In 'River Of Fire'

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — (AP) — Seven Air Force students perished in their sleep Tuesday and 13 others were injured in a wild scramble to flee wind-whipped flames that made an inferno of a barracks dormitory at Syracuse University.

Twenty-five airmen escaped without injuries of consequence, mostly by jumping through windows of the one-story building.

Firemen, battling in near-zero weather at 6 a.m., kept the flames from spreading to the 14 other barracks of a university housing development atop a hill overlooking the city.

The dead included:

Airman Billy D. Marlow, 29, of Converse, Tex., who left a wife and two children; Airman Michael E. Gasparri, 19, of Yonkers; Airman Edward E. Duggan, 23, of Manning, S.C.; Airman Joseph E. Stoll Jr., 18, of Norwalk, Ohio; and Airman Remus A. Ridwell, 18, of Oneonta, Ala.

The names of the other dead were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

The 45 men, many of them in their teens, had just been assigned to the university for a nine-month course in Russian. Their headquarters is Wright-Patterson Air Force base, Dayton, Ohio, where they are attached to the Air Institute of Technology.

Fire officials said the fire apparently started from an oil-fed steam boiler in the center of the 22-room building, which was prefabricated of metal and composition board.

The escape was "like animals trying to get out of a cage," said Sgt. Peter Dowling, 25, of Kalamazoo, Mich.

Many of the injured were cut and bruised, as well as burned. None is considered in critical condition.

Donald Dowling, not related to Sgt. Dowling, said he was terrified when he opened the door of his room, so he slammed it and crashed a chair through a window to escape.

"The barracks went up like a matchbox," Peter Dowling said. "I tried to get to a fire extinguisher in the hall, but the fire and smoke were so great I couldn't stand it. Everybody was jumping out of windows."

Rhee to Run Again? He's 84

SEOUL — (AP) — A government spokesman said that President Syngman Rhee will run for a fourth term next year.

Rhee will be 84 next March and has been South Korea's only president since the republic was founded in 1948. The presidential election is expected about May, 1960, by which time Rhee will be 85.

Mother Says She'll Share Stolen Baby

NEW YORK — (AP) — The mother of a kidnaped infant girl pleaded for the safe return of the baby Tuesday and offered to share the child with the abductor.

The kidnaper is believed to be a frustrated mother.

"If she loves the baby that much and would return her to us I would even be willing to let her visit the baby periodically," said Mrs. Frances Chionchio, 26, from her hospital bed.

"I would be willing to appeal to the kidnaper on a woman-to-woman basis. If she would call the hospital, I would speak to her on the telephone."

Police still hold hope the baby, stolen from a hospital nursery Friday night, might still be alive despite a foreboding note found pinned to a diaper in a Coney Island subway station.

They learned that the diaper did not come from the hospital where the baby was born, indicating the note might not have been written by the kidnaper. On the other hand, the kidnaper could have obtained diapers elsewhere.

The unsigned note, found Monday in the women's room of the station, read:

"Please return to St. Peter's Hospital. Didn't want to hurt anyone. Everything is so hard. Tired. Sick. The ocean is so inviting. Maybe now I will find peace. I tried to keep her warm. Dear God forgive me."

St. Peter's is the hospital miles away in downtown Brooklyn where the baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chionchio was kidnaped only 2½ hours after birth.

U.S. Warned

LONDON — (UPI) — Red China, charging that two U.S. Navy planes violated its air space, has issued its 46th "serious warning" against "military provocation" to the U.S.

'Confession' Attacked

Bulganin Branded Traitor and Liar

MOSCOW — (UPI) — A speech to Communist Party leaders made public Tuesday denounced former Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin as a "traitor and double dealer" who did not tell the truth even in his confession of error.

The latest public attack on the goateed army marshal who preceded Nikita S. Khrushchev as premier was contained in a stenographic report of the Communist Party Central Committee meeting last month at which Bulganin admitted he was a member of the disgraced "anti-party group."

According to the report, L. P. Kornitz, president of the state committee on cereals and a high Soviet official, blasted Bulganin's admissions as being given "insincerely and untruthfully."

"Actually, this is nothing surprising," Kornitz said.

"He is a double-dealer and a traitor and does not want to tell the truth even up to the end."

The Communist Party newspaper Pravda joined in the denunciation of Bulganin and the other anti-party clique members — former Premier Georgi Malenkov, former Deputy Premier Lazar Kaganovich and ex-Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov and Dmitri T. Shepilov.

Both Pravda and Kornitz attacked the ousted officials for their opposition to Khrushchev's program of agricultural development of virgin lands in Siberia.

Pravda said their "foolish assertions" that the scheme would lose money have been disproved by the income received from the program.

"Facts and figures," Kornitz said, "show how harmful and criminal were the actions of the anti-party factional group . . . who opposed the measures of the party on the sharp upsurge of agriculture."

His remarks were not carried in a resolution adopted by the Central Committee at the end of its five-day meeting Dec. 19.

On Dec. 18, Bulganin, who had been demoted gradually from head of the state bank to a minor economic post, appeared before the committee and admitted opposing party policy. He begged to be allowed to remain as a party member.

The other "anti-party" officials had been ousted in July, 1957, from their government posts.

Statehood Hikes Tax In Alaska

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Statehood brought bad news to some Alaskans Tuesday: The heretofore tax-free cost-of-living allowance paid federal employes in the 49th state now is taxable.

Federal employes in Alaska receive a 25 per cent allowance above their basic wage scale to offset higher living costs. It previously had been exempt from federal income tax.

In a ruling made public Tuesday, Harold T. Swartz, assistant Internal Revenue commissioner, said Alaska's admission to statehood makes a change necessary.

"Individuals there will no longer meet the statutory requirement that they be stationed outside the continental U.S. and their cost-of-living allowance will thereupon become subject to federal income tax," Swartz wrote R. D. Stevenson, Alaska's tax commissioner.

Floridian On Jaycees' 'Top 10' List

This year's winners will be presented the silver "Jayson," symbolic of their selection. U.S. Jaycee President Robert V. Cox will make the presentations at a banquet at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Jan. 17.

Those picked were Singer Pat Boone, 24, Lt. Shepherd M. Jenks, 31, navigator of the Nautilus; Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, 35, Harvard University political scientist; Donald A. Glaser, 32, professor of physics at the University of Michigan; James T. Grace Jr., M.D. 35, Buffalo, N. Y.; Warren H. Phillips, 32, managing editor of The Wall Street Journal; Loren Edward Schnack, 32, county and probate judge of Adams County, Ill.

Also chosen was Dr. Richard T. Smith, 34, head professor of pediatrics and chief of pediatric services at the J. Hillis Miller Health Center at the University of Florida. He was cited for his "revolutionary" discoveries in the field of natural immunity and immunological tolerance in the newborn period of life.

The other two doctors picked are Dr. Gus Turbeville, 35, president of Northland College, Washland, Wis.; Hugh Edward Wilson III, M. D., 34, University of Texas' Southwestern Medical School.

'Outlaw Airline Strikes'

Holland Drafts Bill for Ban

By DAVID J. KRASLOW
By Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. Spessard Holland of Florida said Tuesday he will ask Congress to outlaw airline strikes.

Holland said a bill he is drafting would require that operations continue while mediators work on disputes. Labor and management would be bound by findings of the arbitration board.

Holland said he plans to introduce the bill Friday.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, Eastern Air Lines' board chairman, urged such a law as EAL's 38-day strike ended last week.

"There is an immense public interest and investment in the commercial airline industry," Holland said.

"Public funds pay for airports, flight control equipment and mail subsidies. The government hands out airline routes and certifies crew members."

Unions and the airlines have been opposed to compulsory arbitration. Both realize that it could be a two-way street and that under compulsory arbitration they might be forced to swallow settlements they don't want.

Holland apparently had this in mind when he said:

He is chairman of the powerful Senate subcommittee which will handle appropriations for the new Federal Aviation Agency.

The FAA has replaced the Civil Aeronautics Authority and has taken over some of the duties of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Sens. Mike Monroney (D., Okla.) and George Smathers of Florida have indicated they may push for similar legislation. Monroney is chairman and Smathers a member of the Senate aviation subcommittee.

Both also are key members of the parent interstate and foreign commerce committee.

replied: "All I know is that all his people were against me—actively against me."

A 74-70 vote in a secret Republican caucus brought to an end Martin's 20-year-rule over House Republicans, as floor leader and a two-term speaker.

The first ballot was too close to produce a majority for either the 74-year-old Martin or the 58-year-old Halleck. It was 73-72 for Halleck, with one vote spoiled.

Halleck was the Republican House leader in the 80th and 83rd Congresses, when the GOP was in control and Martin was speaker.

A forceful, hard-hitting Hoosier orator, Halleck has championed the cause of the Eisenhower administration. So has Martin. Both are regarded as basically conservative.

ex-husdand, Dr. Franklyn Thorpe, for full custody of their daughter Marilyn, four. He had won custody with an uncontested divorce. His weapon: Miss Astor's diary with allegedly purple passages concerning several noted men.

The actress writes of being called to Samuel Goldwyn's office and being confronted by top studio bosses. Spokesman Irving Thalberg told her they felt she was making a grave mistake, that "if the information they had received was true, the trial and the diary would create a vicious scandal, give the industry a bad name, and I would probably lose the case and the child, too."

She refused to drop the suit and commented: "I looked upon it as all too boring and a little pompous; besides, Walter Huston and some champagne were waiting for me in my bungalow."

She later discovered why the bigwigs were so upset: A person who figured in the diary had forged a version and shown it to the producers, hoping they would forestall the scandal.

She writes: "The forgery was lurid; it contained a 'box score' of practically every male big name in the business and it was loaded with pornographic details."

Miss Astor said the forgery was leaked to the press. She cried futilely to her attorney: "There wasn't any 'box score' and I never called the damned thing 'Dear Diary.'" The Los Angeles Examiner printed a few pages of the authentic diary, she said, concerning her friendship for Playwright George Kaufman, which was "romantic and sentimental, certainly not pornographic."

The diary was never read in court because it had been mutilated and was inadmissible as evidence. Superior Judge (later governor) Goodwin Knight ordered it impounded, and in 1952 it was destroyed by court order.

Why did Miss Astor keep a diary?

She explains: "I wanted to talk about my own activities and my opinions of other people and the things they did. I wanted the assurance of individuality and reality and substance that the dairy gave me. The diary was a consolation and a reassurance."

The actress came out of the scandal with her career unscatched. Goldwyn, for whom she was making "Dodsworth," refused to fire her under a morality clause. His comment: "A woman fighting for her child? This is good!" She had won custody of Marilyn for nine months of the year.

Statistics

MIAMI Readings at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday: Skies, sunny; temperature, 65; winds from the northeast at 14 miles an hour; barometer, 30.23 inches; relative humidity, 58 per cent.

National Summary

The fair, cold weather in the south that give 29 lows from Jacksonville to Apalachicola, Fla. and a 25 at Mobile, Ala. maintained sunny weather west to the Mississippi. From Texas moisture laden winds over the top of the cold air that sent a 31 reading to Laredo on the Rio Grande is streaming clouds to Lake Michigan and rain across southern Texas to Houston and Austin. The threat of this pattern is reflected in aircraft reports of ice in the clouds of southern Oklahoma.

Another very cold night was in store for the East but by Wednesday the Atlantic States will begin to feel the rising temperature trend which has already taken hold over the Plains and Midwest.

Some snow is likely across colder northern border areas from the Plains to northern Maine but winds will diminish in the northeast.

Rain should spread from Texas eastward through the Gulf states and moisture feeding northward may form fog and drizzle through Missouri to Iowa. Foggy, rainy weather will move into Oklahoma and icy conditions may result from freezing temperatures in northern parts of the state.

Roads Now Being Built To Help Ease Traffic Load

'East Coast's Worst Bottleneck' Slowly Uncorking

By BILL BUNGE
Melbourne Bureau Chief

BUNGE

MELBOURNE — The question has been raised here about whether the recent traffic jam caused by homeward bound Orange Bowl fans was a preview of what could be expected if a disaster should hit this "packed missile base area, suddenly causing thousands of residents to climb into their cars and get moving.

Government officials answer that the traffic mess in Palm Bay, Melbourne and Eau Gallie, caused by the football fans last Friday, could be repeated during a disaster in this defense area.

But, they point out that backcountry routes now are being completed and would be a tremendous help in taking some of the vehicle load off the only highway — U.S. 1 — presently running through these three communities.

An adequate highway system is of vital importance here to meet the demands of big population increases, and also to insure speedy evacuation of the crowded target area surrounding the Air Force Missile Test Center.

Melbourne is an evacuation area because it is believed to be out of the danger zone, but close enough for emergency aid stations.

In fact, Civil Defense officials here are awaiting delivery of a 200-bed emergency hospital from their national headquarters. The disaster unit will be stored in the gigantic Melbourne Airport recreation building, where it would be set up for use.

"We'll be in a position to divert this annual football game rush next time, besides have good evacuation routes if disaster should ever strike our area," commented County Commissioner Joe Wickham of Eau Gallie.

Wickham said that Wickham Road—named in his honor—will be finished this year and will provide a U.S. 1 alternate route between Malabar and Pineda, where U.S. 1 is four-laned.

"This new route will permit motorists to completely miss Palm Bay, Melbourne and Eau Gallie," explained Wickham. "Since drivers will avoid the congestion of these towns, traffic should be able to move faster through this area."

The county commissioner said that "the State Road Department told me it had been looking for a U.S. 1 alternate route for a long time, and this one is just the answer." Wickham also said that the SRD will make Wickham Road a secondary road for maintenance purposes when it is completed in February.

County Commission Chairman Max K. Rodes of Melbourne has his crews at work extending Babcock Street southward from Palm Bay. A stretch north of that town still needs surfacing before being completed to provide a U.S. 1 alternate route through Melbourne and into Eau Gallie.

Babcock, another blow to the traffic tangle and an additional evacuation route, is rapidly becoming an important Melbourne-Eau Gallie business street.

Babcock provides another route, besides U.S. 1, over Crane Creek in Melbourne. Melbourne City Commissioner James W. Rossetter also is seeking a third city creek crossing at Grant Street.

In addition, Commissioner Wickham is making fast progress on building a St. Rte. SR A1A alternate route and evacuation aid from the Eau Gallie causeway on into Patrick Air Force Base.

The day is coming soon, say these officials, when this area no longer can be tagged as "the worst bottleneck on the East Coast."

Woman Struck by Car

Pedestrian's Death Is Fort Pierce's First '59 Fatality

By ANNE WILDER
Herald Correspondent

FORT PIERCE — Fort Pierce had its first traffic fatality of 1959 Tuesday evening.

A pedestrian, Mrs. Allene Harper Hoskin, 50, of Pittsfield, Ill., was struck and killed by a car.

Driver of the car, Joseph Sosa, 58, of Rt. 1, Ft. Pierce, said that Mrs. Hoskin was crossing U.S. 1, hesitated in the middle of the highway and darted in front of his car so quickly that he was unable to stop.

He said he was traveling about 35 miles an hour.

Mrs. Hoskin was dead when she was brought to the hospital.

The accident occurred at 6:18 p.m., Tuesday.

Officers Glenn Boyd and Tom Myers said the investigation had not been completed and no charges had been yet filed.

Officers said the victim and her husband, Harry Hoskin were driving south.

They said Hoskin had parked the car on the west side of the highway and Mrs. Hoskin was crossing to inquire about motel accommodations.

Remodeling Project

Ft. Pierce Opens Bids on City Hall

FORT PIERCE — The Fort Pierce City Commission Monday evening opened bids for renovating the city hall, a step which will enable the city to save money on rental space. Apparent low bidder was J. M. Jolly, with a figure of $16,820. All bids were referred to city manager Floyd Glisson for tabulation.

Remodeling the city hall will enable the officials to move the light and water billing department out of rented quarters and into the city hall. Space became available when the new police station was opened, but first floor accomodations for the office will be necessary.

The commission also passed a revision of the garbage and trash collection system to provide more efficient pick-up. City Manager Floyd Glisson said he will publish a schedule of weekly trash collections in 30 days.

He Donates 1,501 Pennies

FORT PIERCE — An 80-year-old Negro, Nathanial Phoenix, brought his contribution to the Fort Pierce Memorial Hospital expansion fund up to $165.01 Tuesday, with the addition to 1,501 pennies.

Phoenix, who sells boiled and roast peanuts, keeps all the pennies for the hospital fund—and brings them to the hospital in a variety of cans and containers.

He made a $100 pledge two years ago when the expansion fund drive started, and paid it off in pennies. Since that time he has made two more contributions.

County To Build Road

Project OKd At Melbourne

Herald Bureau

MELBOURNE — County officials agreed Tuesday to construct a downtown relief roadway along Crane Creek.

But they balked at a city proposal to bulkhead the filled road right-of-way to also provide for expansion of the nearby municipal harbor.

County Commission Chairman Max K. Rodes told Melbourne officials at a joint planning session that "we can go along on building the road, but we can't get into the bulkhead deal" because of the cost involved. Commissioner Joe Wickham agreed.

City Manager Tevis Huguely reported that one contract price Melbourne has received for the entire project was $150,000, which included $90,000 for the fill and bulkheading.

However, it was felt that government equipment could do the work for less.

The road presents a difficult engineering problem because most of the 100-foot right-of-way will have to be filled. The county hopes to start work as soon as the fill engineering has been completed.

City Commissioner James Rossetter had suggested that the area be bulkheaded at the same time so that the harbor could be enlarged to accommodate more boats. "All of the slips at our present harbor are filled," he commented.

The city previously agreed to obtain the right-of-way if the county would construct the road, starting at Melbourne Avenue behind the old post office and terminating at Front Street near the harbor.

A new high-level U.S. 1 bridge is being built over Crane Creek to permit this roadway to pass under, as well as allow larger boats to navigate the creek.

The road is expected to help break one of the worst U.S. 1 bottlenecks by providing a thoroughfare to take local downtown traffic away from the U.S. 1-New Haven Avenue intersection.

The creek highway also would be used by beach motorists and Melbourne residents going to work at Patrick Air Force Base.

State Road Official To Attend Meeting

By ZOLA SWARTHOUT
Herald Correspondent

STUART — Stuart area residents may get a new bridge several years before they expected it.

A special meeting of the Martin County Commission Tuesday, Jan. 13, will be attended by Ralph Hartsfield of the State Road Department who will discuss with the commission the possibility of rebuilding the Jensen Beach Bridge and the center span.

The bridge has been out of commission since Thanksgiving when a barge knocked the turning mechanism out.

Tolls were placed on the old wooden structure, which was built in 1921, when the two new Stuart bridges were completed last January.

Commission Chairman Marvin H. Rowell said "we have a very strong covenant to maintain, the Jensen Beach bridge which is now in the Indian River."

Commissioner Guy F. Boyd said that in talking to Hartsfield he also informed him that an insurance adjuster for the barge company would be willing to pay a cash settlement instead of rebuilding the damaged bridge.

This amount would range from thirty to fifty thousand dollars.

When the new Stuart bridges were built it was agreed that a second bond program would be launched to rebuild the oid Jensen bridge as soon as it was financially possible.

The recent emergency might step up the program, however, and provide area residents with a new bridge much sooner than they expected.

A letter from Joe Grotegut, SRD chairman revealed that the amount of toll traffic and revenue on the two new spans which cross the St. Lucie River at Stuart to Sewall's Point and the Indian River to Hutchinson Island, was "disappointing."

Grotegut added that this was no threat to the bond security as 80 per cent of the surplus gas tax was more than adequate to serve the debt.

He added that the situation should be reviewed and a special meeting be held on the subject.

A budget of $70,000 was set up to operate the toll system. Until recently the budget has run in the red since the bridge was opened. The last two months report indicated that a total of $8,073 was collected, at a cost of $7,048.

This situation brought a blast from commissioners E. J. Arnold and Rowell who stated that tolls should be removed as soon as possible.

Rowell said "if we can't show a profit close down the number of shifts for the tolltakers, which would reduce the cost of the toll collections immediately."

Hartsfield is expected to have information with him at the Tuesday meeting on if and how the Jensen Beach bridge could be financed and rebuilt.

Commission Elects Graves Chairman

By THELMA FROSCHER
Herald Correspondent

VERO BEACH — Robert W. Graves was elected chairman of the Indian River County Commission at its annual reorganization meeting Tuesday.

Commissioner D. B. McCullers Jr. was elected vice chairman.

The possibility of the county's helping to finance a convalescent wing on the Indian River Memorial Hospital instead of building a county home for the aged or nursing home was proposed.

The commissioners decided to meet with the hospital trustees to discuss the idea.

Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Whittier, owners of 641 acres of land west of Blue Cypress Lake, appeared to notify the commissioners that Mrs. Rosa Surrency, a neighboring property owner, had not removed a locked gate across the old military trail.

Mrs. Surrency had been directed to do so by Circuit Judge D. C. Smith on Dec. 26 when he decreed it a public road.

County Attorney Sherman Smith said that if the judge's decision was not appealed or the gate removed within the 60 days allowed for an appeal he would file a petition in behalf of the county for a court order.

A delegation from Rockridge subdivision headed by C. A. Smith asked that the commission prevent Dan Knoebel, developer of the subdivision, from laying water lines for his private water system on the same route as existing lines carrying city of Vero Beach water to the original part of Rockridge.

Smith said he was afraid that, although they had been promised city water in their purchasing contracts that they would have water from the private plant forced upon them if 51 per cent of the home owners approved.

Knoebel appeared later and promised the commissioners he would not put water from his private system into the mains now carrying city water without approval of at least 75 per cent of the homeowners and without notifying them and the county well in advance.

A resolution of appreciation for the work of retiring commissioner W. C. Graves Jr. cited that he had served as commissioner for 20 years, longer than anyone holding that office in this county.

He had not sought reelection and Horace Gifford took his place.

Four Are Held In Bank Theft

MOUNT VERNON, Ind. — (UPI) — Four men were under arrest on federal charges Tuesday in connection with the Christmas Eve theft of more than $17,000 from a night depository at the People's Band & Trust Co. here.

Three of the men were arrested in Mount Vernon Monday. The fourth suspect, Harold McMahan, 25, was arrested on an intoxication charge at Orlando, Fla. last Saturday.

In St. Lucie

Three Men Arrested In Break-ins

FORT PIERCE — St. Lucie County Deputy Sheriff Bob Williams thought a car parked near the Santa Lucia Restaurant on north U. S. 1 early Tuesday morning looked "suspicious" — and as a result of his suspicions three men are in the St. Lucie County jail charged with breaking and entering on five counts.

They are Charles Yaggie, 22, and Aimone Iacuzzi, 18, of Vero Beach, and Roy Hunter, 21, of Fort Pierce.

Williams arrested Iacuzzi and Hunter when they returned to their parked car; Yaggie ran off but was arrested two hours later.

In the car were two cases of beer which Williams said had been taken from the Swanee Restaurant in Vero Beach earlier that night, along with $40 which also was recovered. The officer said the trio were being charged with breaking into the Gateway Restaurant this past weekend, with stealing tires and batteries from the Gifford Junk Yard, and with breaking into two drink machines at service stations.

At the Santa Lucia restaurant, the door had been kicked in last night but evidently no entrance made, and no charge is being made on that count.

Fined $35

Delay Costly For St. Lucie Boat Owner

FORT PIERCE — Failure to buy a $1.05 boat license cost Floyd Hinebaugh, of the Floridel Trailer Park here, and Pershing, Ind., a $35 fine in the St. Lucie County Court Tuesday.

Conservation agent Robert Pfister, who arrested Hinebaugh on Dec. 30, said that such boat cases were rare.

Agents usually give the boat owners a warning and allow them to buy the license.

However, Pfister's records showed that Hinebaugh had been warned exactly a year ago and instructed to buy a license.

The year's dealy cost him $35 when he pleaded guilty before Judge Flem C. Dame Tuesday.

Officials Take Oath

STUART — Marvin H. Rowell, newly elected Martin County commissioner and Charles Leighton, reelected for a second four-year term were given the oath of office by County Clerk Mrs. Dorothy Pierce at a special meeting held Tuesday.

Commissioner Rowell was named chairman and commissioner Seymour Gideon vice chairman for the next six months.

Gideon, on medical orders was absent from the meeting. He suffered a heart attack last month.

A special meeting will be held Monday at 10 a.m.

Move Launched To Buy Site

MELBOURNE — City and county officials have started negotiations for a Melbourne-owned site on which a courthouse branch office can be constructed.

Officials said construction on the $70,000 building would be started as soon as the county receives bond money to finance the project and has title to the site.

A similar courthouse branch office will be constructed in Cocoa.

2 De Gaulle Aides Quit Over Austerity

PARIS — (UPI) — Premier Charles de Gaulle disclosed Tuesday night that two Socialist members of his cabinet, including Party Chief Guy Mollet, have resigned in protest against his severe new austerity program. Shortly afterward, 1,000 workers staged a Paris street demonstration against De Gaulle austerity.

Police intervened to disperse gas and electricity workers who staged the first street demonstrations in France since De-Gaulle announced his "truth and severity" economic policy—which meant higher prices but no wage increases for most Frenchmen.

Just a few hours before, DeGaulle's office announced the resignations of Mollet, minister of state in the De Gaulle government, and Eugene Thomas, veteran Socialist minister of posts and telegraphs.

A brief communique said the Socialists turned in their resignations Dec. 27—the date the franc devaluation and austerity measures were announced — "because they were unable to give their assent to the budget adopted by the government."

Winner of Hurst Contest Surprised, Delighted with $500 Worth of Awnings

"It still seems like a dream," said Mrs. J. H. Mahaffey of 942 NW 40th St., Miami, in speaking of the five hundred dollars' worth of Hurst awnings she won recently.

"My husband, John, laughed at me when I entered my name in the drawing at the Home Show at Dinner Key Auditorium last November," she explained. "He said he didn't expect I'd ever hear from anybody except maybe a salesman who might call me up to offer some gimmick or other. He said he was sure these contests were always rigged.

"You can imagine our surprise, then, when Mr. Padgett of the Hurst Awning Company showed up at our house one day ready to measure our windows and to put up the awnings I had won! In a very few days our home was completely equipped with the most beautiful awnings anybody in our neighborhood has ever seen. The job came to a little more than the five hundred dollars worth of awnings I had won, and believe it or not, the Hurst people threw in the extra amount free! I just can't believe it all happened, it was so wonderful!"

Mrs. Mahaffey had an old awning across the front of her house for years, and had often thought of replacing it. But she explained that there are so many companies putting out awnings these days and all making different claims for the superiority of their particular product over all others she never could make up her mind which one to call. Then she won the Hurst awnings and the whole Mahaffey family now is sold on them.

"My husband, who works for the Miami Transit Company, has been telling all his friends what a great job the Hurst people do in making their awnings," Mrs. Mahaffey added. "And all my children and my neighbors are thrilled by the beautiful new look the awnings give our home.

"We especially like the fact that all the awnings fold down for hurricane protection, should we ever need it. In the meantime, they give wonderful protection from the sun and the rain, too. The first day we got them it started to rain and, as usual, I made a dash to close the windows.

"'Wait a minute, now,' my husband told me. 'Let's just see whether these awnings really keep the rain out the way the man said they would!'

"Sure enough, not a drop of rain came in. Not even a trickle, like our old awning used to give us. The deep sides on Hurst awnings really protect our home. I just can't express how secure we all feel with our new protection against sun, rain and hurricane.

"And, as my husband says, the fine workmanship that goes into Hurst awnings shows in the smooth, streamlined way they are put together. The under-surfaces and corners — where spider webs and even hornet nests do sometimes gather, in spite of a busy housewife's care — are all so smooth and shiny that it's a cinch to keep them clean.

"There are no sharp edges or ends of bolts hanging down, you see, to catch in your dust mop or cloth. I really appreciate that, as I work in the Edison Senior High cafeteria and don't always have as much time as I'd like to devote to house cleaning. I'm sure other women will understand the advantage of easy-to-clean awnings like mine.

"I know I must sound like a super salesman for the Hurst Company, with all the nice things I keep saying about them and their awnings. But I simply can't get over what wonderful people they are. They did exactly what they promised to do in the contest — deliver and install five hundred dollars' worth of awnings free.

"There were no gimmicks, no high pressure to buy something extra, no attempt to use my home for a demonstration, or anything of that sort. They just came and quietly and efficiently, put up the awnings and then went away again. But ever since, I've been telling everybody I know about the Hurst Company and recommending their awnings.

"It's the least I can do, to show my appreciation for our own wonderful new Hurst awnings, isn't it?"

Further information about Hurst awnings and free estimates may be obtained by calling TUxedo 7-8154.

WHAT A DIFFERENCE Hurst awnings made on the Mahaffey home. Top picture shows the home without awnings, below, after the Hurst awnings were installed.

To Act as Booster

Salk Urges Fourth Shot of Vaccine

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—(UPI)—Dr. Jonas E. Salk, discoverer of polio vaccine, Tuesday advocated a fourth, or "booster," shot of the serum for full protection against polio.

Speaking at a symposium at the University of Michigan, Salk said some persons failed to get full protection from the first three shots of vaccine because commercially-produced serum was not up to the potency of that produced in his laboratory.

Salk said a more potent vaccine was desirable and attainable but a fourth shot of the vaccine now being manufactured by commercial producers would complete immunization of persons who were not completely protected by three doses.

Counties Qualify For School Aid, Won't Get It All

Enrollment Up But Funds Short

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— Increased public school enrollment has made 55 Florida counties eligible for additional state aid money, but the financial pinch won't permit the full amounts to be paid.

School Superintendent Thomas D. Bailey said the counties were entitled to $6,431,580 in state recalculation funds to help meet costs of the bigger enrollment. However, because of earlier cutbacks in state spending, there is actually only $3,629,747 available for them, he said.

Thomas D. Bailey
. . . cites cutbacks

Statewide, the increase in pupils was 10.2 per cent over enrollment for the same period last year.

Twelve counties failed to expand enrollment by the five per cent necessary to qualify for additional recalculation money. But of these, only little Gilchrist County, in North Central Florida, had an actual decrease, Bailey reported.

Charlotte County on the lower west coast led in the increase with a whopping 37.32 per cent boost. Brevard County, booming from the activity at the Cape Canaveral missile launching base, increased its enrollment 27.49 per cent.

Bailey said minimum foundation funds were rolled back five per cent, along with those of other state functions financed from general revenue, when the cabinet realized in May that tax revenues would fall 83 million dollars short of legislative appropriations.

Under the program, the counties which qualify for recalculation money receive it in three disbursements, one-third each in January, February and March.

Bailey said he would ask the Budget Commission later this month to release the third due for January.

Among the enrollment increases reported by Bailey were Alachua County 9.42 per cent; Broward 13.30 per cent; Collier 15.74 per cent; Dade 8.63 per cent; Duval 8.08 per cent; Escambia 7.94 per cent; Hillsborough 11.25 per cent; Lake 8.91 per cent; Lee 16.29 per cent; Leon 11.59 per cent; Manatee 12.19 per cent; Marion 5.53 per cent; Monroe 7.84 per cent; Orange 13.95 per cent; Palm Beach 13.75 per cent; Pinellas 14.93 per cent; Polk 8.69 per cent; Putnam 7.90 per cent; St. Lucie 12.69 per cent; Sarasota 10.66 per cent, and Volusia 8.07 per cent.

Counties in addition to Gilchrist which failed to qualify for recalculation money are Baker, Calhoun, Columbia, Flagler, Franklin, Hamilton, Hamilton, Jefferson, Lafay-Jefferson, Lafayette, Marison, St. Johns and Suwanee.

Wins Epiphany Blessings

Football Player Retrieves Cross

TARPON SPRINGS —(UPI)— Sam (Pinky) Mack, a strong swimmer and University of Florida freshman football player, retrieved the cross from Springs Bayou Tuesday afternoon to win the blessings of his church in this Greek-American colony's 56th annual Epiphany ceremony.

Mack, 19, was one of more than 30 young Greek-Americans who dived into the chilly waters to retrieve the golden cross as hundreds of visitors watched. Thus, he received the church's blessing and, according to legend, will have good luck the rest of the year.

The cross was thrown into the water by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Polyeftktos of Pittsburgh, the chief celebrant, who directed the Epiphany Day program at St. Nicholas Greek Orthodox Church.

The rites commemorate the baptism of Christ in the River Jordan and have been held here almost ever since the colony was established by Greek sponge divers.

Boys and girls wearing Greek costumes and the church's Byzantine Choir, its members wearing black robes, led a procession from the church to the bayou for the cross-throwing.

Nick Mack, father of the winning diver, said he was "real tickled" that his son came up with the gold-covered, wooden cross.

"I tried for 15 years and was never able to do it," he said.

Greek and American flags decorated the city as between 1,000 and 2,000 visitors watched the ceremonies under cloudless skies. The day began with chill temperatures, but the mercury had climbed to the mid-60s by the middle of the day.

The annual affair ended Tuesday night with the Epiphany Ball at Pleasure Pier.

Will Aid Governor

Young Lawyer Picked To Draft Proposals

Collins announced Tuesday Peeples had joined his staff as legislative assistant Jan. 1 at a salary of $500 a month.

Collins said Peeples will help in planning the program to be presented to the Legislature in April, and would draft bills designed to carry out the administration recommendations.

Peeples is a graduate of the University of Florida law school and served as campus manager of the 1956 Collins for governor campaign.

The new legislative assistant has been associated with the Tallahassee law firm of Ausley, Ausley, and McMullen, of which Collins was a partner before being elected governor.

Sleep Tight! And She Did

JACKSONVILLE — (AP) — Eager Wood never knew what happened. The 2-year-old girl went to sleep in the back seat of the family car while her mother drove home from a shopping trip.

When D. E. Wood hopped in the car and drove to his night job, he didn't know his daughter was there. Mrs. Wood realized it after he was gone, notified police, who sent a car to meet Wood at work.

Eager was whisked home, still asleep.

Cold Snap Is Over, Crops OK

By The Associated Press

Temperatures fell below freezing in portions of north Florida Tuesday morning but the Weather Bureau promised warmer temperatures under sunny skies today.

A thin strip near the Georgia line and scattered points in the northern interior felt the shock of the frigid air. The mercury fell to 30 degrees at Jacksonville, 29 at Tallahassee and 28 at Pensacola.

The Weather Bureau said indications before dawn pointed to slight damage to crops.

Gentle north to northeast winds played over much of the state Monday night, blowing the chill into Florida, giving the Sunshine State a taste of the bitter cold in much of the eastern United States.

A shift in winds at Miami Beach shot up the mercury 13 degrees in 5 minutes this morning. When the wind changed from north to northeast, beach thermometers rose from 55 degrees to 68.

Small craft warnings were displayed on the eastern Gulf of Mexico and on the Atlantic coast from Jacksonville through the straits. Warning flags were lowered from Jacksonville north to Cape Hatteras, S. C.

The cold front pushed through the peninsula by Monday afternoon, sending temperatures most places into the 50s and 60s. North Florida shivered with late afternoon readings in the 40s.

Miami had the nation's high temperature of 72 degrees.

Court Challenges Citrus Tree Law

TALLAHASSEE —(UPI)— The State Supreme Court was asked Tuesday to invalidate Florida's 1957 law putting a $1,000 per acre limitation on the amount the state can pay growers for destruction of healthy trees in the controversial "pull and treat" method of eliminating spreading decline.

The court took the case under advisement after hearing oral arguments from attorneys on both sides. It gave no indication when it will rule.

The case came up on appeal from Polk Circuit Judge Gunter Stephenson's ruling that the $1,000 per acre limitation is invalid.

The limitation was challenged by Polk County Citrus Grower Walter A. Smith and his wife, Mildred, in a suit against the State Plant Board, which administers the "pull and treat" program.

Marshall Edwards, Bartow attorney hired by a committee of Citrus Mutual growers to defend the $1,000 limitation, argued that the Smiths had not exhausted all their remedies under the act.

He said the Smiths "short-circuited" the Plant Board and went into court with an attack on constitutionality of the act before it was ever determined whether healthy trees destroyed in Smith's grove were worth more than $1,000 an acre.

Treasury Ends Year In the Black

Ray Higgins, general auditor for the State Comptroller's Office, reported with some relief Tuesday the state treasury had a net balance of $3,809,896 on Dec. 31.

A short time back Higgins was sweating out the bills when the treasury hit close to the bottom with an $800,000 balance.

From now on out the treasury will be building up with receipts from automobile tag sales and heavier tax collections.

State Seeks To Prevent Furen Fill

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — The Cabinet Trustees of the Internal Improvement Fund took action Tuesday to prevent the Ratner interests from dredging and filling the so-called "Furen Fill" in Boca Ciega Bay.

J. Velma Keen of Tallahassee, attorney for Lee Ratner, told the Cabinet the fill must start before Jan. 14, or Ratner would lose his permit to dredge.

The submerged land, amounting to 500 acres, was originally sold to Al Furen of St. Petersburg to fill and develop. But later, the Cabinet changed the action and said the sale was not in the public interest.

The sale has been under litigation for several years and Keen said the Ratner interests have won at every turn. He offered to settle the case with the state but Attorney General Richard Ervin said he will take legal action to stop the fill.

Ervin said he will ask the appellate court at Lakeland for an order to halt the fill until all litigation in the case is settled.

He said he doubts the wisdom of Ratner going ahead until the cases are concluded. Gov. LeRoy Collins said the trustees will "resist to the fullest extent" any filling in the controversial area.

The Governor said if the filling were started today, it would be without the express or implied approval of the trustees.

Keen said he would have liked to hold up filling until settlement of the case, but he pointed out that every time the Ratner interests win one case, someone instigates another one.

Sophie's Waistlines Follow Your Figure

By BEVERLEY WILSON
Herald Fashion Editor

Designer Sophie, known for clothes of great elegance and great restraint, is not one to jump on just any fashion bandwagon. She virtually ignored the chemise and the trapeze in her collections last season.

But she looks with favor on this year's high-rising waistline.

Sometimes this corseleted effect is shaped into the dress itself as with a high tuck just under the bosom. Other times ultra-wide belts are used.

Naturally, Sophie is still true to her natural waistlines as well, along with lady-like full skirts, and vaporous panels that drift over evening dresses.

Her necks are often demurely high at front and daringly low in back. Apron fronts which — instead of swinging free — puff into the hem to soften many skirts.

Harem hems, some double in front and single in back, panier draperies and even full blown bustles also vary Sophie's evening silhouettes.

The designer's resort collection will be introduced here at the fashion show luncheon which Saks Fifth Avenue will stage for members and guests of the Surf Club Jan. 14.

Ike's Parties Hit High Level

WASHINGTON —(UPI)— The White House has put at least two strings on invitations to the four military academies to send a cadet or midshipman to each formal state party of this winter's social season.

In announcing that President and Mrs. Eisenhower felt it would be a nice gesture to have the academies represented at full-dress affairs, Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said it would be up to the superintendent at the Army, Navy, Air Force and Coast Guard Academies to pick the lucky boys.

But one of the starched and proper cadets selected for one of the large formal dinner gave away at least two requirements demanded by the White House.

Asked how he was selected, he said: "You had to be a Cadet Captain and at least five feet, eight inches tall."

IN WASHINGTON SOCIETY

10 Rules For Success

WASHINGTON, D.C.

DEAR HERALD READERS:

The greatest show on earth opens here today and all Capital society is geared for it.

The big top in Washington is not a canvas tent. It's the dome on the U.S. Capitol which is swinging wide its doors this week for the greatest influx of new legislators welcomed in years.

The 18 new senators and 82 new congressmen and their spouses started arriving last weekend to embark on a life beset with the pitfalls of parties, prominence and protocol.

To help them avoid both the pit and the falls, your correspondent took a poll among their experienced colleagues and the watchful press, and herewith are set forth "ten commandments" for the new politician in Washington and or his little woman.

* * *

1. Don't shake hands with the first man you meet in an embassy.

It will be the butler, not the ambassador.

2. Don't be too cool to anybody anywhere.

In Washington the fellow at the bottom today may be on do and I think congressional wives have the responsibility to know what's going on," says pretty Mrs. Homer Thornberry, wife of the Texas congressman.

6. "Don't be afraid of the press — they can be your friends," is the advice of Mrs. Estes Kefauver.

"Tell the truth without saying more than you have to," is Nancy's motto and her continued popularity with all writers is proof that it works.

* * *

7. Don't ignore Washington protocol.

This is the most punctual town in the world and the more important the man, the more punctual he is. Eight o'clock dinner here doesn't mean 8:15, or 8:30.

top tomorrow, and oddly enough you always meet the same people going down the ladder as you passed going up.

3. "Don't become unduly involved socially with persons outside of government whom the Senator or Congressman can benefit through his congressional influence."

This is the advice of Mrs. Paul Douglas, wife of the Senator from Illinois who once headed a committee on ethics in government.

What she means is, when you're "snowed" by invitations and thoughtfulness from strangers or brand new acquaintances, you can be sure it's a lobbyist or influence peddler who plans to use you . . .

* * *

4. Don't be homespun. Socially it's corny.

That includes dress, customs, or too much raving about home . . . Everybody here knows you are here because you broke your necks to get here, so things couldn't really be so much better at home.

5. Read the newspapers and take in hearings on Capitol Hill.

"It's really the most fascinating thing you can possibly

8. Don't ever talk politics with a chip on your shoulder.

Politics is this town's favorite topic for discussion, but in the realm of argument it's taboo. If the conversation of a nearby Democrat or Republican makes you mad, don't pick up a plate to throw, just stay home next time.

9. Don't be annoyed by your lack of rank in this rank-filled town.

Like youth, it is overcome by time. You can be the top dog at home, but the category of "Senator" is in 25th place in the list of Washington precedence and Congressmen are in 29th place, important as they are. And being new, you're at the bottom of either category.

10. Don't take all the partying you're in for, for granted.

If you follow these ten rules you may well become the toast of the town. But don't be overtoasted or you may get burned for sure!

Yours,

Betty Beale

Prospective End Of Double Class Term Good News

By EDITH E. VOSS
Herald Correspondent

MRS. VOSS

AROUND BREVARD COUNTY — Resolutions are all fine and good, if they're so intended. Sometimes they're necessarily "extended," so to speak, and actually materialize later. The longest-term resolution we know of, which now looks like it will become a reality, is that of school officials of Brevard County to provide adequate facilities for mushrooming communities.

Now, at the beginning of the year, Woodrow Darden, county superintendent of public instruction, has announced sufficient new schools and additions to present schools will be completed by next fall and eleminate double sessions for all schools in the county.

The ending of double sessions has, necessarily, been a long-term "resolution," because space demands has been approximately doubled in schools each year for the past five or six. In fact, Darden says, "It will be the first time since 1952 there has been enough classroom space. We have been looking forward to this for a long time."

Well — we've heard of all manner of resolutions being made, good bad and indifferent — but to our fuzzy pink ears this sounds like the best news for the majority we've heard in many a New Year.

Holiday Wedding Out-Of-Town

WE WERE DISAPPOINTED not to have a writeup of a particularly beautiful December wedding during the holiday season. We had almost decided there wouldn't be one, when we received the particulars of the out-of-town rites of Jamielee Copelan and George Schnabel from the parents of the bridegroom.

The red velvets, pink taffetas and pink poinsettias description sounds luscious. Jamielee is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lee Copelan of Atlanta. George is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Schnabel of Cocoa, and one of our rare "native sons." They were married at the Covenant Presbyterian Church in Atlanta during the holidays.

The bride was a lovely picture, undoubtedly, in her gown of blush taffeta and alencon lace and veil of blush illusion, attached to a crown of matching lace and sequins. Her cascade bouquet was of pink sweetheart roses, stephanotis and a white orchid.

She wore pearl earrings, a gift of the bridegroom, and twin gold bracelets which had been carried by the bridegroom's maternal grandmother and his sisters at their weddings. Matron of honor, Mrs. Joseph M. May Jr., and junior bridesmaid, Marguerite Copelan, wore dresses of red velvet fashioned with full skirts, princess style, low cut round neckline, and three-quarter sleeves.

Head dress of red net and velvet cascading bows and shoes matched the gowns. Each carried a spray of pink poinsettias. Twin flower girls, Kathy and Patty Copelan, wore dresses identical in style and color and carried nosegays and flower arrangements for the hair of pink carnations.

Junior bridesmaid and flower girls are nieces of the bride. The pink scheme was further carried out at the reception given by the parents of the bride at Ansley Golf Club following the ceremony. The combinations of the pink and red along with ample traditional white flowers and candelabra must have been one of the loveliest sights of the holiday season.

Concert Schedule Satisfying

THIS YEAR SOUNDS like quite a commemorative one from the concert standpoint. Ruth Slenczynska, heard here last month on her 25th anniversary concert tour, was the first in the anniversary classification.

Now, coming up on Jan. 18, will be the Rabinofs, violin and piano duo, who will be celebrating their 15th year of joint concertizing and beginning on their second 1,000 concerts. Benno Rabinof, the last in the great line of Leopold Auer pupils that included Heifetz, Elman, and Zimbalist, is already something of a legend in this generation.

Sylvia Rabinof, protege of Paderewski and Serkin, is well known as a composer as well as one of the foremost women pianists of the day. The Rabinofs are the only husband and wife team to have been simultaneously awarded the degree of doctor of music, an honor conferred on them by Lincoln Memorial University. They will be presented in the second of a series of four concerts on the Brevard Civic Music series.

The third commemorative type concert will be the Jan. 15 presentation of the Florida Symphony Orchestra at the Cocoa High School auditorium. As a "first," the symphony will include pop type music from Broadway shows. The other side of this picture is that it will mark the last season for Frank Miller as director of the symphony, which is a disappointment for the thousands who have enjoyed the tremendous impact the professional group has made under the baton of Dr. Miller in the past six years.

Forest Ball in a Fairyland

WE'VE RECEIVED glowing commentaries of the Fairyland Forest Ball, which young Charles, Melinda and Mary Ann Fulmer hosted at the Trade Winds Hotel in Indialantic during the holidays. One hundred guests attended the formal supper-dance and the decorations sound like something really right out of a Fairyland Forest.

A pink and white color scheme with silver accents was carried out throughout the large room. Two trees at the ballroom door, for instance, were centered with pink styrofoam reindeer, and silver sprayed trees decorated with pink angel hair and styrofoam snowflakes, touched with silver glitter, were used throughout the room. Each table had as its centerpiece a white stryofoam candleholder and pink candle, with pink carnations, silver tipped, at the base.

Silver reindeer hid coyly in the carnations on either side of the candle. The buffet table also featured silver candelabra decorated with pink carnations. Dance programs too carried a forest scene complete with reindeer. Feature dances were the balloon dance and, later in the evening, a Christmas tree dance when each couple picked up gifts from the tree.

The above certainly must have been the most apropos for the holiday season we'd say and certainly a memorable one for the many young people attending.

LIGHT AND AIRY appearance gives this dining table a new look. Bertha Schaefer designed the surf-board shape top and delicately molded legs using grained walnut. Table is 75 by 43 inches in size, extends to 124 inches to seat 16 people. By M. Singer & Sons, it was introduced in Chicago.

New Stereo Sound Systems Await FCC Approval

By MARGUERITE DAVIS

CHICAGO — (UPI) — Stereophonic sound systems for television and radio were displayed today at the annual January International Home Furnishings show.

None will be manufactured for sale until the Federal Communications Commission adopts standards, but sets incorporating the two-way sound for radio and TV are well past the drawing board state.

One manufacturer, Motorola, demonstrated a dual channel stereo sound from two separate speaker cabinets while a taped TV program was shown on the screen. Another, Philco, has developed a system to bring stereo sound into every home with an AM radio, by means of an adapter and "relatively inexpensive" stereo broadcasting equipment at the station.

But there is an abundance of new products available now, or within a few months:

—A stereo-high fidelity record player in a single cabinet, to replace the usual pair of speakers needed. "Stereodors" which are part of the cabinet sides open to reflect the sound off the hard surface of the door, with the listener determining the degree of sound separation wanted by the angle to which each door is opened. Portable record players also are equipped with the side doors. (Philco).

—A magazine - loading stereo tape recorder with a tape cartridge which drops in place, eliminating the need for threading or rewinding. The user can buy pre-recorded tapes, or record and play back, in stereo or regular sound, (RCA).

—A two-piece set designed for teen-age demand, with a 17-inch TV set and a record player equipped for both stereo and regular sound. (Westinghouse).

Appliance Makers Say: Fewer Model Changes

CHICAGO — (AP) — Annual model changes as a sales gimmick are a thing of the past in the home appliance industry, two manufacturers declared Tuesday at the International Home Furnishings Market.

Instead, Fred Maytag of the Maytag Co. and Robert E. Brooker of Whirlpool Corp. said, more emphasis will be placed on engineering features now available and upgrading service on the equipment.

"The consumer has not accepted the concept of artificial obsolescence in the appliance industry," Maytag declared.

He and Brooker agreed, however, that significant advances in appliances would be brought to the market quickly, but perhaps only at the top of the line at first.

They and Robert W. Galvin, president of the Motorola Corp., said that the return of consumer confidence in the general economy indicates a solid year for the appliance industry.

The last six months of 1958 shook off the lethargy of the recession doldrums into which the appliance industry had fallen, they said.

Brooker said some price increases can be expected in the 1959 appliance market, but they will be modest and will not affect the trend for larger volume.

Spring sales, he said, may not represent a rapid expansion of buying over a normal spring, but will represent a considerable spread over 1958.

The home washer field looked especially bright to Maytag. More than half the washers in use are wringer models, he said. "The replacement market looks particularly attractive."

Galvin said depressed sales in 1958 in the consumer electronic lines brought no panic and no major price cutting. In the field of TV, radio and record players, "the upgrading of the public's taste will bring more quality styling and emphasis on good sound," Galvin said.

Think of Dad-To-Be At a Stork Shower

Every one likes to share the happiness of mother-to-be.

A personal shower of gifts that she can use while in the hospital, including gowns, good books, bedroom slippers, a bottle of good perfume, talcum powder and even a perky lipstick could be presented her in a large pasteboard box, designed as an overnight case.

To add humor to this type of shower, why not give her some things for her husband while she is away from home?

Say a dish cloth and dish towel to make dishwashing easier; a bottle of window cleaner so that he can have her windows sparkling clean when she returns home. Even include a pair of comfortable slippers to walk the floor in while he is awaiting baby's delivery.

Liberals Name Halleck

Martin Gets the Boot As House GOP Leader

4 Votes End His Reign

White House Aides Blamed

WASHINGTON — (AP) — House Republicans ousted their veteran leader, Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts, Tuesday on the eve of a new congressional session.

A rebellion pointed toward giving the party high command a more aggressive, vigorous look shifted the leadership mantle to Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana.

Martin pointed a finger of blame at some White House aides, but not at President Eisenhower directly. He also said Vice President Richard Nixon's associates opposed him.

The changeover provided a dramatic, spectacular prelude for a similar showdown within Senate Republican ranks and for the opening of the heavily Democratic 86th Congress at noon today.

A thin, four-vote margin was the difference between success and failure in the revolt against the House GOP leadership — the first successful one in 28 years.

In spite of the usual professions of unity and amity after the balloting, the outcome may leave damaging scars on the depleted ranks of Republican congressmen.

MARTIN

Martin said that "I don't think the President himself did anything against me." But he said some White House aides conferred with Halleck about a month ago and they may have had a little bit to do with his ouster. White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said Eisenhower took no part in the fight. The President praised both Halleck and Martin.

Asked if Nixon was instrumental in his defeat, Martin

Innocent Victims, H. N. Moore and Collie

High In The Sky

This picture taken from a rocket which soared to an altitude of more than 86 miles was released by the Navy Tuesday. Actually a composite of five pictures, it shows a stretch of cloud formation which, the Navy said, covers approximately 1,000 miles, stretching from Maine to mid-Florida. The Navy described the picture as a forerunner of a series of high altitude photographs that will be used to study hurricanes and associated weather conditions.

Suicidal Motorist Kills Man

Two more Miamians died on Dade highways Tuesday, including a driver whose car was the target of a would-be suicide.

The man who attempted suicide survived the bloody smashup though his condition is called critical.

In the bizzare suicide attempt, police said Henry N. Moore, 50, of 7431 NW Seventh Ct., died instantly when his east-bound car collided at Tamiami Trail and 122nd Ave., with a west-bound auto driven by Attorney Paul A. Foisy, 33, of 2981 SW 12th St.

Florida Highway Patrol investigators said Foisy deliberately veered his speeding car — traveling about 90 miles an hour — into Moore's vehicle.

A pet collie in Moore's car was also critically injured, and may have to be destroyed, police said.

The other traffic death was Cornelius B. Willard, 35, of 6048 SW 19th St., who was hurled from his laundry truck in an intersection collision and pinned to the pavement.

Miami police said George S. Pietzcker, 73, of 7737 Atlantic Way, Miami Beach, failed to yield the right of way to Willard's truck at NE Third Ct. and 78th St.

No Clues in Crash

Pilot 'Abduction' Remains Mystery

More State News on 1C, 12A, 2B, 3C

By ARTHUR JOHNSEY
Herald Staff Writer

Border patrolmen sifted the strange kidnap story of a Miami student pilot Tuesday without finding a trace of two passengers the pilot claimed coerced him into taking off for Havana.

The ill-fated trip ended when the pilot and co-pilot crashed in a Beechcraft plane in shallow water Monday near Key Largo.

Jose Bosch, of 5025 SW 114th Ave., a Puerto Rican who has a student pilot's license, and T. J. Kennedy of 648 Mokena Drive, Miami Springs, were rescued by a Coast Guard helicopter Monday.

The passengers were reported to have hidden in a mangrove and escaped.

Lt. Cmdr. John Doherty of the Coast Guard said Bosch claimed he was held by the two men for a day or two, kept blindfolded, then ordered to find a co-pilot and fly the plane from Tamiami Airport to Havana.

Patrol investigators said Bosch and Kennedy, interviewed separately, related they took off from Tamiami Airport for Key West with the two mysterious men aboard.

When rescued, Bosch and Kennedy did not mention their passengers until the Coast Guard rescue helicopter had left the crash scene, according to the Coast Guard.

Kennedy said he got into the act when Bosch, whom he knew only slightly, invited him to go along as co-pilot and he agreed. He didn't suspect anything was wrong, investigators were told, until Bosch told him after the takeoff that "we can't go to Key West."

Border patrolmen, examining a possibility the passengers were revolutionaries who sought this means to return to Cuba, pointed out clearance can easily be obtained in most cases for legal departure.

She Used Talent Wisely

A Modern-Day Parable

. . . Janitress Nicolosa Donlucas

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— "This is a talent," the Methodist minister said, pressing a 50-cent piece into the gnarled hand of the tiny $90 a month janitress. "Use it wisely and it will increase."

And Nicolosa Donlucas listened to the Rev. Nicolas Davila relate Jesus' Parable of the Talents. As she stood, broom in hand, he explained how some persons can make one coin become many, while others — as told in Matthew — fail to make use of what they have.

That was last summer.

Some days later, a timid knock came on his door. It was Nicolosa. She held out $17.50 to him.

Haltingly, she explained. His half-dollar had paid for some cheese and tortillas. She had made enchiladas and sold them, then bought more cheese and tortillas and sold more enchiladas. Now she had $35! Half she was giving to the Methodist-operated community center where she works. Half would finance more enchiladas in her spare time.

"Is this not the meaning of the tale you told me?" she asked.

East Still Chilled by Icy Winds

NEW YORK — (AP) — A vicious Arctic gale hammered the Eastern seaboard for a second day Tuesday with wind gusts up to 70 m.p.h. Damage was widespread, as bitter cold intensified the misery of the storm.

The biting cold even penetrated the depths of New York's subway system, disrupting mechanical equipment and delaying rush hour travelers by the thousands. New York's low was 13.7 above zero.

At Stratford, Conn., the father of four children died in a duplex fire, and his wife and four children were hospitalized.

Sixteen students fled the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity house on the Williams College campus at Williamstown, Mass., during a pre-dawn fire. And at Long Branch, N. J., 11 persons escaped from a burning apartment house.

In New England, thousands of autos were stalled by the cold. Wild winds felled trees and utility poles and delayed scores of trains out of Boston.

Dulles Conquers Virus Infection

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was reported to be feeling better Tuesday. An illness, described as a virus infection, prevented him from making a planned trip to Canada Monday for conferences.

The State Department press officer, Lincoln White, said Dulles' temperature is normal but that "the secretary is remaining at home, resting and doing some work."

Congress Dissolved, Courts Suspended

New Cuban Regime to Rule By Decree for 18 Months

Cuba at a glance, 3A

HAVANA —(AP)— The revolutionary government dissolved Congress Tuesday and announced it will rule Cuba by decree for at least 18 months when new elections are planned.

The government suspended all criminal courts, regarded as a symbol of the fallen dictatorship of Fulgencio Batista, and was reported preparing a decree abolishing all political parties.

The provisional regime dismissed all provincial governors, mayors and councilmen. Apparently their functions will be taken over by new civilian appointees prepared in advance for the task.

Other decrees, informed sources said, would ban all candidates in the 1954 and 1958 elections from Cuba's political life, freeze the private bank accounts of all Batista officials, and stop the cashing of all outstanding checks against the Batista regime.

Revolutionary courts were reported being prepared to try Batista, now in exile in the Dominican Republic, and other officials who may be accused of crimes during his rule.

These and other laws were announced, or reported in preparation, as Provisional President Manuel Urrutia sat almost continuously in the Presidential Palace with his new cabinet.

The initial policies of the new government were being shaped as hoarse-voiced Fidel Castro, the rebel leader who shoved Urrutia to power, was still plodding through adoring throngs toward the capital from the east. It was doubtful he would reach Havana today as planned.

The losing of political rights by all candidates in the 1954 and 1958 elections would apply not only to Batista but also to Rivero Aguero, his successful candidate in last November's presidential elections and the second runner, former President Ramon Grau San Martin.

The rebels considered both the 1954 and 1958 Batista elections were fraudulent.

The dissolution of political parties would affect former President Carlos Prio Socarras, head of the Autentico Party, who returned to Cuba after the New Year's Day resignation of Batista. Although Prio made common cause with the rebels against Batista, he apparently is not trusted by Castro's 26th of July movement.

Prio has been living in exile in Miami since 1952 when he was overthrown by a Batista coup.

Additional appointments were made to the cabinet headed by Premier Jose Miro Cardona, president of the Havana Bar Association. These included Luis Orlando Rodrigues as interior minister, and Raul Cepero Bonilla as minister of the treasury. Earlier Bonilla had been slated for commerce minister and Raul Chibas for the treasury.

Felipe Pazos was named director of the National Bank in place of Joaquin Martinez Paez, who was linked to the Batista government.

Castro's Son, 9, Returning to Cuba

NEW YORK — (AP) — The nine-year-old son of Cuban Leader Fidel Castro has been living quietly in New York City, it was learned Tuesday night.

The boy, identified as Fidel Castro Jr., talked to newsmen on boarding a plane at Idlewild Airport to return to Cuba.

He said his fellow pupils in in the third grade at Public School 20 in Flushing, Queens, didn't know he was Castro's son, adding:

"They didn't ask me and I didn't tell them."

Glennon told reporters his wife was a sister-in-law of the boy's mother, Mrs. Mirta Diaz de Nunez, who is divorced from Castro.

Glennon said the former Mrs. Castro sent young Fidel to New York six weeks ago because she was afraid that followers of Fulgencio Batista, deposed Cuban dictator, might take reprisal action against the boy.

Glennon and his wife said that since the youngster used his true name, they were surprised his classmates and neighbors had not learned he was the son of the rebel leader.

The boy learned of his father's victory in Cuba when he saw a television program, Mrs. Glennon said.

"Fidel marched around the house," she added. "He first promoted himself to sergeant, then to lieutenant and finally to a general."

She said young Fidel had packed his toy guns in a big box and was carrying them back to Cuba with him.

Dad Totes Her Back to Prison

BOISE, Idaho — (AP) — Mary Ann Gardner headed home to El Monte, Calif., after escaping from the Idaho Penitentiary Dec. 28. Tuesday her father brought her back. She was serving a forgery term.

Al Gardner stayed only long enough to surrender his 21-year-old daughter to Warden L. E. Clapp. Then he, his wife and a grandmother started home.

Clapp said he suggested Gardner turn his daughter over to California officers when the father telephoned last weekend. "No, I'll take her back myself," he quoted Gardner.

Quit Fight for Child, Studio Brass Told Me

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Movie Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — (AP) — Mary Astor disclosed Tuesday that moviedom's top brass tried to persuade her to call off the 1936 child custody suit in which her sensational "purple ink" diary figured.

She refused, and the resulting scandal rocked Hollywood.

The disclosure was made in her autobiography, "My Story," a regretful look back to the wilder days of filmtown history. She is now 52 and a grandmother. Her account doesn't spare the lovely, wilful film star of the '30s. Her reflective view of herself after the trial:

"I do not think I could have borne it to face myself as I really was—sick, spoiled and selfish, prowling like some jungle animal seeking momentary satisfaction. Sexually I was out of control. I was drinking too much, and I was brought up short when I found myself late in the evening thinking someone was 'terribly attractive' and wondering the next morning, 'Why, why'!"

Syracuse U. Dorm Burns; 7 Air Force Students Die

13 Injured In 'River Of Fire'

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — (AP) — Seven Air Force students perished in their sleep Tuesday and 13 others were injured in a wild scramble to flee wind-whipped flames that made an inferno of a barracks dormitory at Syracuse University.

Twenty-five airmen escaped without injuries of consequence, mostly by jumping through windows of the one-story building.

Firemen, battling in near-zero weather at 6 a.m., kept the flames from spreading to the 14 other barracks of a university housing development atop a hill overlooking the city.

The dead included:

Airman Billy D. Marlow, 29, of Converse, Tex., who left a wife and two children; Airman Michael E. Gasparri, 19, of Yonkers; Airman Edward E. Duggan, 23, of Manning, S.C.; Airman Joseph E. Stoll Jr., 18, of Norwalk, Ohio; and Airman Remus A. Ridwell, 18, of Oneonta, Ala.

The names of the other dead were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

The 45 men, many of them in their teens, had just been assigned to the university for a nine-month course in Russian. Their headquarters is Wright-Patterson Air Force base, Dayton, Ohio, where they are attached to the Air Institute of Technology.

Fire officials said the fire apparently started from an oil-fed steam boiler in the center of the 22-room building, which was prefabricated of metal and composition board.

The escape was "like animals trying to get out of a cage," said Sgt. Peter Dowling, 25, of Kalamazoo, Mich.

Many of the injured were cut and bruised, as well as burned. None is considered in critical condition.

Donald Dowling, not related to Sgt. Dowling, said he was terrified when he opened the door of his room, so he slammed it and crashed a chair through a window to escape.

"The barracks went up like a matchbox," Peter Dowling said. "I tried to get to a fire extinguisher in the hall, but the fire and smoke were so great I couldn't stand it. Everybody was jumping out of windows."

Mother Says She'll Share Stolen Baby

NEW YORK — (AP) — The mother of a kidnaped infant girl pleaded for the safe return of the baby Tuesday and offered to share the child with the abductor.

The kidnaper is believed to be a frustrated mother.

"If she loves the baby that much and would return her to us I would even be willing to let her visit the baby periodically," said Mrs. Frances Chionchio, 26, from her hospital bed.

"I would be willing to appeal to the kidnaper on a woman-to-woman basis. If she would call the hospital, I would speak to her on the telephone."

Police still hold hope the baby, stolen from a hospital nursery Friday night, might still be alive despite a foreboding note found pinned to a diaper in a Coney Island subway station.

They learned that the diaper did not come from the hospital where the baby was born, indicating the note might not have been written by the kidnaper. On the other hand, the kidnaper could have obtained diapers elsewhere.

The unsigned note, found Monday in the women's room of the station, read:

"Please return to St. Peter's Hospital. Didn't want to hurt anyone. Everything is so hard. Tired. Sick. The ocean is so inviting. Maybe now I will find peace. I tried to keep her warm. Dear God forgive me."

St. Peter's is the hospital miles away in downtown Brooklyn where the baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chionchio was kidnaped only 2½ hours after birth.

U.S. Warned

LONDON — (UPI) — Red China, charging that two U.S. Navy planes violated its air space, has issued its 46th "serious warning" against "military provocation" to the U.S.

'Confession' Attacked

Bulganin Branded Traitor and Liar

MOSCOW — (UPI) — A speech to Communist Party leaders made public Tuesday denounced former Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin as a "traitor and double dealer" who did not tell the truth even in his confession of error.

The latest public attack on the goateed army marshal who preceded Nikita S. Khrushchev as premier was contained in a stenographic report of the Communist Party Central Committee meeting last month at which Bulganin admitted he was a member of the disgraced "anti-party group."

According to the report, L. P. Kornitz, president of the state committee on cereals and a high Soviet official, blasted Bulganin's admissions as being given "insincerely and untruthfully."

"Actually, this is nothing surprising," Kornitz said.

"He is a double-dealer and a traitor and does not want to tell the truth even up to the end."

The Communist Party newspaper Pravda joined in the denunciation of Bulganin and the other anti-party clique members — former Premier Georgi Malenkov, former Deputy Premier Lazar Kaganovich and ex-Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov and Dmitri T. Shepilov.

Both Pravda and Kornitz attacked the ousted officials for their opposition to Khrushchev's program of agricultural development of virgin lands in Siberia.

Pravda said their "foolish assertions" that the scheme would lose money have been disproved by the income received from the program.

"Facts and figures," Kornitz said, "show how harmful and criminal were the actions of the anti-party factional group . . . who opposed the measures of the party on the sharp upsurge of agriculture."

His remarks were not carried in a resolution adopted by the Central Committee at the end of its five-day meeting Dec. 19.

On Dec. 18, Bulganin, who had been demoted gradually from head of the state bank to a minor economic post, appeared before the committee and admitted opposing party policy. He begged to be allowed to remain as a party member.

The other "anti-party" officials had been ousted in July, 1957, from their government posts.

Statehood Hikes Tax In Alaska

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Statehood brought bad news to some Alaskans Tuesday: The heretofore tax-free cost-of-living allowance paid federal employes in the 49th state now is taxable.

Federal employes in Alaska receive a 25 per cent allowance above their basic wage scale to offset higher living costs. It previously had been exempt from federal income tax.

In a ruling made public Tuesday, Harold T. Swartz, assistant Internal Revenue commissioner, said Alaska's admission to statehood makes a change necessary.

"Individuals there will no longer meet the statutory requirement that they be stationed outside the continental U.S. and their cost-of-living allowance will thereupon become subject to federal income tax," Swartz wrote R. D. Stevenson, Alaska's tax commissioner.

Floridian On Jaycees' 'Top 10' List

This year's winners will be presented the silver "Jayson," symbolic of their selection. U.S. Jaycee President Robert V. Cox will make the presentations at a banquet at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Jan. 17.

Those picked were Singer Pat Boone, 24, Lt. Shepherd M. Jenks, 31, navigator of the Nautilus; Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, 35, Harvard University political scientist; Donald A. Glaser, 32, professor of physics at the University of Michigan; James T. Grace Jr., M.D. 35, Buffalo, N. Y.; Warren H. Phillips, 32, managing editor of The Wall Street Journal; Loren Edward Schnack, 32, county and probate judge of Adams County, Ill.

Also chosen was Dr. Richard T. Smith, 34, head professor of pediatrics and chief of pediatric services at the J. Hillis Miller Health Center at the University of Florida. He was cited for his "revolutionary" discoveries in the field of natural immunity and immunological tolerance in the newborn period of life.

The other two doctors picked are Dr. Gus Turbeville, 35, president of Northland College, Washland, Wis.; Hugh Edward Wilson III, M. D., 34, University of Texas Southwestern Medical School.

'Outlaw Airline Strikes'

Holland Drafts Bill for Ban

By DAVID J. KRASLOW
By Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. Spessard Holland of Florida said Tuesday he will ask Congress to outlaw airline strikes.

Holland said a bill he is drafting would require that operations continue while mediators work on disputes. Labor and management would be bound by findings of the arbitration board.

Holland said he plans to introduce the bill Friday.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, Eastern Air Lines' board chairman, urged such a law as EAL's 38-day strike ended last week.

"There is an immense public interest and investment in the commercial airline industry," Holland said.

"Public funds pay for airports, flight control equipment and mail subsidies. The government hands out airline routes and certifies crew members."

Unions and the airlines have been opposed to compulsory arbitration. Both realize that it could be a two-way street and that under compulsory arbitration they might be forced to swallow settlements they don't want.

Holland apparently had this in mind when he said:

He is chairman of the powerful Senate subcommittee which will handle appropriations for the new Federal Aviation Agency.

The FAA has replaced the Civil Aeronautics Authority and has taken over some of the duties of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Sens. Mike Monroney (D., Okla.) and George Smathers of Florida have indicated they may push for similar legislation. Monroney is chairman and Smathers a member of the Senate aviation subcommittee.

Both also are key members of the parent interstate and foreign commerce committee.

replied: "All I know is that all his people were against me—actively against me."

A 74-70 vote in a secret Republican caucus brought to an end Martin's 20-year-rule over House Republicans, as floor leader and a two-term speaker.

The first ballot was too close to produce a majority for either the 74-year-old Martin or the 58-year-old Halleck. It was 73-72 for Halleck, with one vote spoiled.

Halleck was the Republican House leader in the 80th and 83rd Congresses, when the GOP was in control and Martin was speaker.

A forceful, hard-hitting Hoosier orator, Halleck has championed the cause of the Eisenhower administration. So has Martin. Both are regarded as basically conservative.

ex-husdand, Dr. Franklyn Thorpe, for full custody of their daughter Marilyn, four. He had won custody with an uncontested divorce. His weapon: Miss Astor's diary with allegedly purple passages concerning several noted men.

The actress writes of being called to Samuel Goldwyn's office and being confronted by top studio bosses. Spokesman Irving Thalberg told her they felt she was making a grave mistake, that "if the information they had received was true, the trial and the diary would create a vicious scandal, give the industry a bad name, and I would probably lose the case and the child, too."

She refused to drop the suit and commented: "I looked upon it as all too boring and a little pompous; besides, Walter Huston and some champagne were waiting for me in my bungalow."

She later discovered why the bigwigs were so upset: A person who figured in the diary had forged a version and shown it to the producers, hoping they would forestall the scandal.

She writes: "The forgery was lurid; it contained a 'box score' of practically every male big name in the business and it was loaded with pornographic details."

Miss Astor said the forgery was leaked to the press. She cried futilely to her attorney: "There wasn't any 'box score' and I never called the damned thing 'Dear Diary.'" The Los Angeles Examiner printed a few pages of the authentic diary, she said, concerning her friendship for Playwright George Kaufman, which was "romantic and sentimental, certainly not pornographic."

The diary was never read in court because it had been mutilated and was inadmissible as evidence. Superior Judge (later governor) Goodwin Knight ordered it impounded, and in 1952 it was destroyed by court order.

Why did Miss Astor keep a diary?

She explains: "I wanted to talk about my own activities and my opinions of other people and the things they did. I wanted the assurance of individuality and reality and substance that the dairy gave me. The diary was a consolation and a reassurance."

The actress came out of the scandal with her career unscatched. Goldwyn, for whom she was making "Dodsworth," refused to fire her under a morality clause. His comment: "A woman fighting for her child? This is good!" She had won custody of Marilyn for nine months of the year.

National Summary

The fair, cold weather in the south that give 29 lows from Jacksonville to Apalachicola, Fla. and a 25 at Mobile, Ala. maintained sunny weather west to the Mississippi. From Texas moisture laden winds over the top of the cold air that sent a 31 reading to Laredo on the Rio Grande is streaming clouds to Lake Michigan and rain across southern Texas to Houston and Austin. The threat of this pattern is reflected in aircraft reports of ice in the clouds of southern Oklahoma.

Another very cold night was in store for the East but by Wednesday the Atlantic States will begin to feel the rising temperature trend which has already taken hold over the Plains and Midwest.

Some snow is likely across colder northern border areas from the Plains to northern Maine but winds will diminish in the northeast.

Rain should spread from Texas eastward through the Gulf states and moisture feeding northward may form fog and drizzle through Missouri to Iowa. Foggy, rainy weather will move into Oklahoma and icy conditions may result from freezing temperatures in northern parts of the state.

Marta III is Now Moored At a Key West Pier

Brass, Batista Yacht Await Asylum Rule

By HARRY CAICEDO
Key West Bureau Chief

KEY WEST—What will be the fate of Fulgencio Batista's luxurious yacht, Martha III?

The sleek, 90-foot pleasure craft has been tied up at a government pier here since Jan. 1, when she arrived bearing seven high-ranking Cuban naval officers, seeking political asylum.

Martha's fate appears to be linked — for the time being, anyway—to the fate of those seven men.

As of Tuesday, the U.S. Immigration Service still had "under consideration" what to do with them.

In a dockside conversation (Federal authorities are allowing no one off or on the yacht), Rear Adm. Arturo Carbonell Sell told The Herald the vessel's future is really up to its owner, the deposed president of Cuba.

He emphasized the Martha is the private, personal property of the ousted Cuban ruler and his wife, for whom the craft is named.

Air conditioned throughout and crammed with up-to-date navigation and electronic equipment, the yacht's value is estimated at more than $500,000.

Batista's wishes for his pleasure craft, hasn't been determined yet. Adm. Carbonell said he had not been in touch with his former superior since the big dispersal New Year's Day.

The admiral wouldn't say positively, but he indicated he and his companions would sail the Martha to some other U.S. port, possibly Daytona Beach, if allowed to stay in this country.

Daytona Beach is the site of an extensive Batista-owned estate. Batista and some members of his family are still in the Dominican Republic where they fled before dawn on Jan. 1.

Adm. Carbonell, Rr. Adm. Jose Rodriguez Hernandez and two other Cuban officers reported their own flight from Havana had been hasty.

They said they had no more than a half-hour's notice to flee after learning of Batista's own escape. "I even came in my evening clothes," said one of them pointing to his black trousers.

No one would say, however, how they were able to have the presidential yacht for their hurried departure from Havana.

They also politely declined to comment on merits of the Castro-led revolution, or the future of their country. But Adm. Carbonell ventured to comment:

He joined the others in expressing concern for their families, left behind in Havana. "We have had no news from them since we left," they said.

Not literally in the same boat, but alongside in a converted PT boat, are 26 other Cuban political exiles, including Roland Mansferrer, one of Batista's staunchest supporters, and two of his brothers. The two vessels arrived together.

And, like the Martha and her passengers, they await the decision [illegible] will determine which course they will take.

Collier Tax Rolls Increase Gets Nod

By TOM MORGAN
Naples Bureau Chief

EVERGLADES — A proposal to raise Collier County tax assessment valuations from 25 to 75 per cent of full cash value was received with cautious approval by the County Commission Tuesday.

The county school board was less guarded in its support, since it saw a means of relief from the confines of its present millage limits.

The proposal came from Dan McLeod, county tax assessor, backed by A. P. Ayers, tax collector, and Samuel Golding, deputy assessor.

They proposed the increase in tax values be balanced by a decrease in the tax millage charged for general fund purposes.

Collier County assessments are now about a fourth or 25 per cent, of the market value of property. The proposed change would follow assessments now used by the city of Naples.

Naples has used 75 per cent of market value for its tax roll valuation for several years.

In its 35-year history, Collier County has had tax valuations as low as 10 per cent of the cash value. "I know the governor has been pressing for full cash value, but that's a very radical change," McLeod said.

Winford Janes, new commission chairman, supported McLeod and noted that under the present 25 per cent assessment a house, worth $20,000, is not taxed, if it has homestead exemption.

Commission members agreed the change in valuation would result in a broader tax base, bringing in many property owners not now paying taxes, and might result in lower taxes for the more valuable property.

The school board also seemed to favor the proposal, but was not as interested in lowering millage, since it is already collecting 20 mills, the legal maximum, and must obtain needed extra funds from the county.

Texans Hit Trail

KEY WEST — A trio of teenage Texans, out "to see the country" on their own, were picked up here by police Tuesday — without baggage and penniless.

The youths, including one 14-year-old, apparently hitch-hiked from their homes in Fort Worth. The two other boys, both 17, were identified as Harold Robinson and Lynn Busby.

Their parents were expected here today to return the wandering youths to Texas.

Barracks Fire Sends Cadets To Georgia For the Winter

By RICK TUTTLE
Hollywood Bureau Chief

HOLLYWOOD—Riverside Military Academy, whose students have spent the winter here for nearly 30 years, was planning Tuesday to return to its summer quarters at Gainesville, Ga.

The north wing of the main barracks was swept by fire Monday. Firemen from four cities fought the blaze for two hours before bringing it under control.

"We have 12 buses lined up now. We need 15," he said. "Some of our vans began loading Tuesday afternoon."

None of the 750 cadets were in the barracks when the fire started. No one was injured. Damage was estimated at $150,000.

Moot Now, Says City Of Actions

Herald Bureau

KEY WEST — The city Tuesday asked Circuit Court here to dismiss a trio of lawsuits, pending against it in connection with a proposed capital improvement program.

In his motion, City Attorney Hilary Albury said the suits should be dismissed on grounds "that the issues presented therein have become moot."

The three suits, substantially the same, were filed Nov. 13 by Louis Signorelli, Ygnacio Carbonell and Alonzo Cothron.

They asked the court to enjoin the city [illegible] from acting on a [illegible] utility tax and $2,750,000 bond issue because, it was alleged, bids had been called illegally.

Circuit Judge Aquilino Lopez issued a temporary injunction restraining the city from opening bids received on the original bid call.

Since then the city has thrown out the lone bid it received and arranged to have building plans and specifications drawn in anticipation of a new call for bids.

A hearing on the motion to dismiss the Signorelli-Carbonell-Cothron lawsuits has been set for 2 p.m. Monday before Judge Lopez.

Welfare Taking Licking

Herald Bureau

EVERGLADES — County welfare funds are "taking a licking," the county commission was told Tuesday by C. C. Cobb, welfare director.

Cobb cited the case of a welfare patient in a Miami Beach hospital, suffering from the rare disease, lupes erythrematosis dissemenata, which causes thickening of the skin.

The patient has already cost $1,500 in hospital bills and will require $35 worth of medicine weekly for an indefinite time.

The director said "we're ahead of the game, even with this calamity" when welfare expenses are compared with last year. Cobb was hired to police welfare needs and reduce costs.

Ferry Crew Wants Rest

KEY WEST — Bone-tired crew members and officials of the West India Fruit & Steamship Co., operators of the SS City of Havana, hoped that, after Monday's crossing, the boat could lay over in Havana until Thursday.

Normally the passenger-automobile ferry makes the 90 mile run between Key West and Havana on a thrice-weekly schedule. But it has been almost in continuous operation, under State Department charter, since New Year's Day, to take stranded U.S. tourists from Havana.

Capt. Alf Thorson publicly expressed his thanks to the Red Cross, Salvation Army, Key West Chamber of Commerce, Customs and Immigration officials, and others who contributed their services here to handle the heavy flow of travelers.

Chickering Top School Official

EVERGLADES — Lee R. Chickering of Naples was named chairman of the Collier County school board at its reorganization meeting here Tuesday. He succeeds C. L. Strandberg, who resigned because he moved from the county.

Chickering was nominated by Mrs. Elva Griffif of Marco, who has been a member of the board for 10 years. Mrs. Griffif, suggested by Chickering as chairman, declined the post. She was named vice chairman.

Foes of Utility Tax Set Renewed Fight

Schools Speed Up Planned

Herald Bureau

EVERGLADES — After hearing a report enrollment will be well ahead of classroom capacity soon, the Collier County School Board moved ahead in new school planning and construction at its Tuesday meeting.

It approved sale of 1.49 million of the 2.9 million dollar school bond issue, recently approved by freeholders. The bond sale will be held on Feb. 9.

Dr. Paul T. Williams, supervising principal of the Naples schools, told the board enrollment there will be 351 more than the capacity of the schools when the peak of the winter season is reached.

He urged completion "at any cost" of the new Shadowlawn school in East Naples by Sept. 1. He also urged addition of four classrooms at the Lake Park school to prevent additional double sessions there.

The supervising principal declared a [illegible] high school should be constructed and in operation in Naples by Jan. 20, 1960, the start of the second half of the 1959-60 term.

"If it's seats in a classroom you are talking about, this will take care of it," Dr. Williams said. "But if it's the educational program you are talking about, I would have a lot more to say."

Lost Man Sought In Wilds

Herald Bureau

EVERGLADES—The search for James Williams, 22, of Lakeland, continued Tuesday night. He has been missing from a hunting lodge in the Everglades since Sunday morning.

A Coast Guard helicopter, with Sheriff Doug Hendry aboard, led a part of the search, with the aid of Civil Air Patrol and private planes. The hunt covered the wild country north of Monroe Station.

Deputy sheriffs and game rangers pushed into the Glades on foot after they were forced to abandon swamp buggies because of dangerous marshes. More planes are expected to take part in the search today.

A second man, who had been lost in the area south of Monroe Station, was reported to have made his way to safety Tuesday and left for his home. Officers said they did not learn the man's identity.

Davidson Steps Out As Chief

By TOM MORGAN
Naples Bureau Chief

EVERGLADES — Winford Janes of Copeland Tuesday succeeded J. M. Davidson of Everglades as chairman of the Collier County Commission. It [illegible] for both.

Janes had been vice chairman, and Davidson headed the board for 10 years of his 16 years of service. It is the start of the 11th year on the board for Janes.

Harold S. Smith of Naples, resumed the post of county board attorney he held before being called to military serve in the Korean war.

A solution for the drainage problems in Twin Lakes subdivision north of Naples, will be sought in an afternoon meeting there today. County officials and sub-division owners will attend.

The property is owned by the Neopolitan Land Co., whose stockholders, the secretary of state reports, are Herman L. Anderson of Miami; Paul D. Cooper and Sidney Warskin, both of Coral Gables.

County aid was south by E. B. Thomasson Jr. for replacing a bridge on an abandoned county road, leading to Half Way Creek, east of Everglades. Thomasson said the property, known as the Stortter and Menafee Homesties, is being developed by James E. Clay.

Investors in part of it, under the name of Plantation Estates, were said to include Miami officials of Eastern Air lines, Pan American Airways, Aircraft Radio Marine, and Miami Airboat Co. They plan fishing lodges there, but no homes.

Details of specifications are to be worked out by the county and the engineer of the tract.

Petition Ruling Bitterly Flayed

By HARRY CAICEDO
Key West Bureau Chief

KEY WEST — A legal battle was promised Tuesday by the Monroe County Taxpayers Association in defense of its repeal-the-utility-tax petition, thrown out by the City Commission Monday.

"The association will probably file a suit in Circuit Court before the end of the week, asking a declaratory decree on the validity of the petition and its signatures," Melvin E. Levitt, association president, said.

Levitt branded as "ridiculous" the municipal board findings which "deemed legal in every respect" only 467 of a total of 3,669 signatures on the petition.

He added the taxpayers group would also intervene in validation proceedings of a $2,750,000 municipal bond issue. Hearing on the validation is scheduled in Circuit Court here Jan. 19.

Utility tax proceeds would back the bonds, a public improvement issue.

The petition, circulated by the MCTA, asked the City Commission to repeal the 10 per cent utility tax it approved Nov. 17.

The petition was presented to City Clerk Victor Lowe on Dec. 15 and checked in his office in the presence of MCTA representatives.

The findings, reported by Lowe, in effect kills the petition as far as the city is concerned, since by its count, the petitioners do not have signatures of 35 per cent of the qualified voters, as required by law.

"Even if they claim that 1,513 names on the petition are not of registered voters, that still leaves 2,156 signatures, well over the 1,924 required," Levitt declared.

He said the association considers precinct numbers and dates as "strictly informational" and not essential for a signature to be valid.

City Attorney Hilary Albury, however, advised that departures from the form outlined in the city charter for preparing petitions, constituted violations.

Several hundred signatures where thrown out as invalid for failing to follow required form, which included having each signer personally affix his precinct and date after his name.

County Seat Move Bids Have 450

Herald Bureau

EVERGLADES — The petition seeking removal of the Collier County seat from Everglades to Naples, now has 450 signatures, about a third of the required number, it was reported to the County Commission here Tuesday.

Goodlette quoted Rogers as saying the Jaycees would need two more weeks to obtain the 1,500 signatures required for the petitions, which ask a referendum be held on the proposed change.

The commissioners said they hoped there would be no delay, since the board must soon act on a proposed $175,000 addition to the county jail here.

Credit Union Rolls Opened

KEY WEST — Military personnel stationed here may now join the Federal Employes Credit Union, it was announced.

Under a policy modification, in line with recommendations if the Secretary of the Navy, servicemen, "regardless of rank, grade or position" may join the credit union.

Previously, by-laws of the local credit union limited membreship to Civil Service employes.

St. Petersburg Acts

City Reopens Spa In Integration Fuss

ST. PETERSBURG—(AP)—The City Council voted Tuesday to reopen the SPA Beach and Pool but gave the city manager authority to close them again "If any emergency arises."

The council closed the municipal recreation area last September when Negroes armed with a favorable U. S. Supreme Court ruling, tried to integrate it.

Presumably, the "emergency" clause in Tuesday's motion refers to further attempts by Negroes to use the SPA facilities.

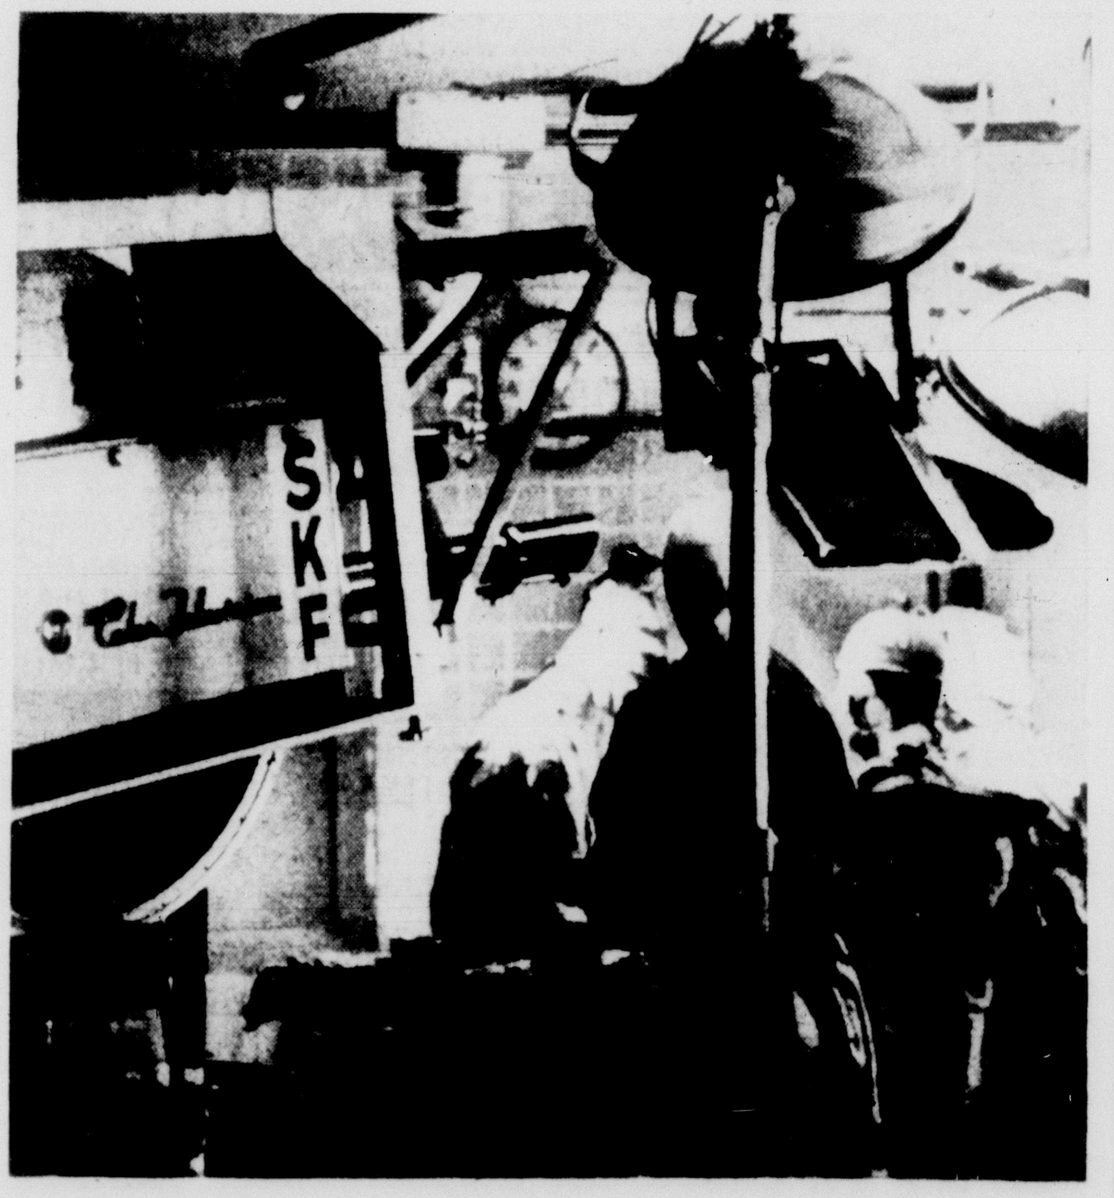
The vote was 4-3 in favor of a motion by Councilman Ray C. Chase. It called for a temporary reopening of the SPA until settlement of a current controversy over a council plan to construct a civic auditorium and convention center on the site.

City Recreation Director Jack Puryear announced he would open the SPA for "business as usual" today.

In his motion, Chase contended that St. Petersburg residents and thousands of winter visitors are being deprived of a convenient bathing facility because of the shut down of the SPA.

"Pending the start of work on the auditorium," he said, "the SPA should be reopened. It should be opened on the same basis as before, with the understanding that Acting City Manager V. L. Fletcher has the authority to close it again if any emergency arises.

The Council did not say how it would get around a U.S. Supreme Court ruling which gives Negroes a right to use the beach and pool. Some councilmen said privately that the SPA would be padlocked again if Negroes swam there.



Surgery on TV

2 De Gaulle Aides Quit Over Austerity

PARIS — (UPI) — Premier Charles de Gaulle disclosed Tuesday night that two Socialist members of his cabinet, including Party Chief Guy Mollet, have resigned in protest against his severe new austerity program. Shortly afterward, 1,000 workers staged a Paris street demonstration against De Gaulle austerity.

Police intervened to disperse gas and electricity workers who staged the first street demonstrations in France since De Gaulle announced his "truth and severity" economic policy — which meant higher prices but no wage increases for most Frenchmen.

Just a few hours before, De Gaulle's office announced the resignations of Mollet, minister of state in the De Gaulle government, and Eugene Thomas, veteran Socialist minister of posts and telegraphs.

A brief communique said the Socialists turned in their resignations Dec. 27, the date the franc devaluation and austerity measures were announced — "because they were unable to give their assent to the budget adopted by the government."

Winner of Hurst Contest Surprised, Delighted with $500 Worth of Awnings

"It still seems like a dream," said Mrs. J. H. Mahaffey of 942 NW 40th St., Miami, in speaking of the five hundred dollars' worth of Hurst awnings she won recently.

"My husband, John, laughed at me when I entered my name in the drawing at the Home Show at Dinner Key Auditorium last November," she explained. "He said he didn't expect I'd ever hear from anybody except maybe a salesman who might call me up to offer some gimmick or other. He said he was sure these contests were always rigged.

"You can imagine our surprise, then, when Mr. Padgett of the Hurst Awning Company showed up at our house one day ready to measure our windows and to put up the awnings I had won! In a very few days our home was completely equipped with the most beautiful awnings anybody in our neighborhood has ever seen. The job came to a little more than the five hundred dollars worth of awnings I had won, and believe it or not, the Hurst people threw in the extra amount free! I just can't believe it all happened, it was so wonderful!"

Mrs. Mahaffey had an old awning across the front of her house for years, and had often thought of replacing it. But she explained that there are so many companies putting out awnings these days and all making different claims for the superiority of their particular product over all others she never could make up her mind which one to call. Then she won the Hurst awnings and the whole Mahaffey family now is sold on them.

"My husband, who works for the Miami Transit Company, has been telling all his friends what a great job the Hurst people do in making their awnings," Mrs. Mahaffey added. "And all my children and my neighbors are thrilled by the beautiful new look the awnings give our home.

"We especially like the fact that all the awnings fold down for hurricane protection, should we ever need it. In the meantime, they give wonderful protection from the sun and the rain, too. The first day we got them it started to rain and, as usual, I made a dash to close the windows.

"'Wait a minute, now,' my husband told me. 'Let's just see whether these awnings really keep the rain out the way the man said they would!'

"Sure enough, not a drop of rain came in. Not even a trickle, like our old awning used to give us. The deep sides on Hurst awnings really protect our home. I just can't express how secure we all feel with our new protection against sun, rain and hurricane.

"And, as my husband says, the fine workmanship that goes into Hurst awnings shows in the smooth, streamlined way they are put together. The under-surfaces and corners — where spider webs and even hornet nests do sometimes gather, in spite of a busy housewife's care — are all so smooth and shiny that it's a cinch to keep them clean.

"There are no sharp edges or ends of bolts hanging down, you see, to catch in your dust mop or cloth. I really appreciate that, as I work in the Edison Senior High cafeteria and don't always have as much time as I'd like to devote to house cleaning. I'm sure other women will understand the advantage of easy-to-clean awnings like mine.

"I know I must sound like a super salesman for the Hurst Company, with all the nice things I keep saying about them and their awnings. But I simply can't get over what wonderful people they are. They did exactly what they promised to do in the contest — deliver and install five hundred dollars' worth of awnings free.

"There were no gimmicks, no high pressure to buy something extra, no attempt to use my home for a demonstration, or anything of that sort. They just came and quietly and efficiently, put up the awnings and then went away again. But ever since, I've been telling everybody I know about the Hurst Company and recommending their awnings.

"It's the least I can do, to show my appreciation for our own wonderful new Hurst awnings, isn't it?"

Hardly anyone could disagree with her on that.

Further information about Hurst awnings and free estimates may be obtained by calling TUxedo 7-8154.

WHAT A DIFFERENCE Hurst awnings made on the Mahaffey home. Top picture shows the home without awnings, below, after the Hurst awnings were installed.

Martin Gets the Boot As House GOP Leader

4 Votes End His Reign

White House Aides Blamed

WASHINGTON — (AP) — House Republicans ousted their veteran leader, Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts, Tuesday on the eve of a new congressional session.

A rebellion pointed toward giving the party high command a more aggressive, vigorous look shifted the leadership mantle to Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana.

Martin pointed a finger of blame at some White House aides, but not at President Eisenhower directly. He also said Vice President Richard Nixon's associates opposed him.

The changeover provided a dramatic, spectacular prelude for a similar showdown within Senate Republican ranks and for the opening of the heavily Democratic 86th Congress at noon today.

A thin, four-vote margin was the difference between volt against the House GOP success and failure in the releadership — the first successful one in 28 years.

In spite of the usual professions of unity and amity after the balloting, the outcome may leave damaging scars on the depleted ranks of Republican congressmen.

MARTIN

Martin said that "I don't think the President himself did anything against me." But he said some White House aides conferred with Halleck about a month ago and they may have had a little bit to do with his ouster. White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said Eisenhower took no part in the fight. The President praised both Halleck and Martin.

Asked if Nixon was instrumental in his defeat, Martin

High In The Sky

This picture taken from a rocket which soared to an altitude of more than 86 miles was released by the Navy Tuesday. Actually a composite of five pictures, it shows a stretch of cloud formation which, the Navy said, covers approximately 1,000 miles, stretching from Maine to mid-Florida. The Navy described the picture as a forerunner of a series of high altitude photographs that will be used to study hurricanes and associated weather conditions.

Suicidal Motorist Kills Man

Two more Miamians died on Dade highways Tuesday, including a driver whose car was the target of a would-be suicide.

The man who attempted suicide survived the bloody smashup though his condition is called critical.

In the bizzare suicide attempt, police said Henry N. Moore, 50, of 7431 NW Seventh Ct., died instantly when his east-bound car collided at Tamiami Trail and 122nd Ave., with a west-bound auto driven by Attorney Paul A. Foisy, 33, of 2981 SW 12th St.

Florida Highway Patrol investigators said Foisy deliberately veered his speeding car — traveling about 90 miles an hour — into Moore's vehicle.

A pet collie in Moore's car was also critically injured, and may have to be destroyed, police said.

The other traffic death was Cornelius B. Willard, 35, of 6048 SW 19th St., who was hurled from his laundry truck in an intersection collision and pinned to the pavement.

Miami police said George S. Pietzcker, 73, of 7737 Atlantic Way, Miami Beach, failed to yield the right of way to Willard's truck at NE Third Ct. and 78th St.

Fire Probe Continues

Riverside Cadets Going to Georgia

More Borward News, Page 1C, 12A

By RICK TUTTLE
Herald Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD — The general alarm fire which did $150,000 damage to the main barracks at Riverside Military Academy Monday will force the school to return to its summer campus at Gainesville, Ga.

Transportation for the academy's 750 cadets was arranged Tuesday afternoon after an investigation of the damaged north wing indicated it could not be restored for even temporary use this winter.

Meanwhile, Fire Department inspectors combed the third-floor cadet sleeping quarters in search of the cause of the blaze.

"The fire originated within the third-floor wall of Room 372," Chief H. L. Cook said. "The fire could have smoldered for 45 minutes — working its way toward the roof — before it was discovered."

Chief Cook said evidence of faulty wiring was not present, but he did not rule out the possibility.

He said there was no indication of arson.

The investigation, led by Deputy State Fire Marshal A. M. Willis of Miami, will continue today.

Fire fighters from four cities battled the fire for two hours Monday afternoon before controlling it. Construction of the 35-year-old building hampered firemen, while a brisk north wind helped it spread southward over the major portion of the structure.

No one was injured. Cadets were on the drill field when the fire was first noticed.

General Sandy Beaver, 76-year-old president of the academy, said the school would be phased out by Thursday. Moving vans were loading equipment Tuesday, although the cadets went to classes as usual.

The cadets are bedding down in the undamaged gymnasium and other dormitories on campus.

2 Brothers Die Within an Hour

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — Two brothers died in Lankenau Hospital within an hour of each other.

Herman H. Perlmann, 58-year-old Chester furniture dealer who lived in suburban Overbrook Hills, died first. He had been a patient since Sunday.

Morris C. Perlmann, 54, an attorney, suffered a heart attack while visiting his brother. He was being treated when Herman died.

A Modern-Day Parable

. . . Janitress Nicolosa Donlucas

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— "This is a talent," the Methodist minister said, pressing a 50-cent piece into the gnarled hand of the tiny $90 a month janitress. "Use it wisely and it will increase."

And Nicolosa Donlucas listened to the Rev. Nicolas Davila relate Jesus' Parable of the Talents. As she stood, broom in hand, he explained how some persons can make one coin become many, while others — as told in Matthew — fail to make use of what they have.

That was last summer.

Some days later, a timid knock came on his door. It was Nicolosa. She held out $17.50 to him.

Haltingly, she explained. His half-dollar had paid for some cheese and tortillas. She had made enchiladas and sold them, then bought more cheese and tortillas and sold more enchiladas. Now she had $35! Half she was giving to the Methodist-operated community center where she works. Half would finance more enchiladas in her spare time.

"Is this not the meaning of the tale you told me?" she asked.

East Still Chilled by Icy Winds

NEW YORK — (AP) — A vicious Arctic gale hammered the Eastern seaboard for a second day Tuesday with wind gusts up to 70 m.p.h. Damage was widespread, as bitter cold intensified the misery of the storm.

The biting cold even penetrated the depths of New York's subway system, disrupting mechanical equipment and delaying rush hour travelers by the thousands. New York's low was 13.7 above zero.

At Stratford, Conn., the father of four children died in a duplex fire, and his wife and four children were hospitalized.

Sixteen students fled the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity house on the Williams College campus at Williamstown, Mass., during a pre-dawn fire. And at Long Branch, N. J., 11 persons escaped from a burning apartment house.

In New England, thousands of autos were stalled by the cold. Wild winds felled trees and utility poles and delayed scores of trains out of Boston.

Dulles Conquers Virus Infection

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was reported to be feeling better Tuesday. An illness, described as a virus infection, prevented him from making a planned trip to Canada Monday for conferences.

The State Department press officer, Lincoln White, said Dulles' temperature is normal but that "the secretary is remaining at home, resting and doing some work."

Armed, Boasts Iraq; by Reds?

DAMASCUS, Syria — (AP) — The deputy chief of staff of the Iraqi army said Tuesday Iraq has received "up-to-date modern arms from friends." He did not name the friends.

Brig. Shaker Mahmud Shukri was speaking over Baghdad radio on Iraqi Army Day.

Reports of arms shipments to Iraq from Communist countries since the revolution which overthrew the monarchy last July have been frequent, but never confirmed.

Congress Dissolved, Courts Suspended

New Cuban Regime to Rule By Decree for 18 Months

Cuba at a glance, 3A

HAVANA —(AP)— The revolutionary government dissolved Congress Tuesday and announced it will rule Cuba by decree for at least 18 months when new elections are planned.

The government suspended all criminal courts, regarded as a symbol of the fallen dictatorship of Fulgencio Batista, and was reported preparing a decree abolishing all political parties.

The provisional regime dismissed all provincial governors, mayors and councilmen. Apparently their functions will be taken over by new civilian appointees prepared in advance for the task.

Other decrees, informed sources said, would ban all candidates in the 1954 and 1958 elections from Cuba's political life, freeze the private bank accounts of all Batista officials, and stop the cashing of all outstanding checks against the Batista regime.

Revolutionary courts were reported being prepared to try Batista, now in exile in the Dominican Republic, and other officials who may be accused of crimes during his rule.

These and other laws were announced, or reported in preparation, as Provisional President Manuel Urrutia sat almost continuously in the Presidential Palace with his new cabinet.

The initial policies of the new government were being shaped as hoarse-voiced Fidel Castro, the rebel leader who shoved Urrutia to power, was still plodding through adoring throngs toward the capital from the east. It was doubtful he would reach Havana today as planned.

The losing of political rights by all candidates in the 1954 and 1958 elections would apply not only to Batista but also to Rivero Aguero, his successful candidate in last November's presidential elections and the second runner, former President Ramon Grau San Martin.

The rebels considered both the 1954 and 1958 Batista elections were fraudulent.

The dissolution of political parties would affect former President Carlos Prio Socarras, head of the Autentico Party, who returned to Cuba after the New Year's Day resignation of Batista. Although Prio made common cause with the rebels against Batista, he apparently is not trusted by Castro's 26th of July movement.

Prio has been living in exile in Miami since 1952 when he was overthrown by a Batista coup.

Additional appointments were made to the cabinet headed by Premier Jose Miro Cardona, president of the Havana Bar Association. These included Luis Orlando Rodrigues as interior minister, and Raul Cepero Bonilla as minister of the treasury. Earlier Bonilla had been slated for commerce minister and Raul Chibas for the treasury.

Felipe Pazos was named director of the National Bank in place of Joaquin Martinez Paez, who was linked to the Batista government.

Castro's Son, 9, Returning to Cuba

NEW YORK — (AP) — The nine-year-old son of Cuban Leader Fidel Castro has been living quietly in New York City, it was learned Tuesday night.

The boy, identified as Fidel Castro Jr., talked to newsmen on boarding a plane at Idlewild Airport to return to Cuba.

He said his fellow pupils in in the third grade at Public School 20 in Flushing, Queens, didn't know he was Castro's son, adding:

"They didn't ask me and I didn't tell them."

Daniel Glennon, a U.N. employe, was with the boy at the airport.

Glennon told reporters his wife was a sister-in-law of the boy's mother, Mrs. Mirta Diaz de Nunez, who is divorced from Castro.

Glennon said the former Mrs. Castro sent young Fidel to New York six weeks ago because she was afraid that followers of Fulgencio Batista, deposed Cuban dictator, might take reprisal action against the boy.

Glennon and his wife said that since the youngster used his true name, they were surprised his classmates and neighbors had not learned he was the son of the rebel leader.

The boy learned of his father's victory in Cuba when he saw a television program, Mrs. Glennon said.

"Fidel marched around the house," she added. "He first promoted himself to sergeant, then to lieutenant and finally to a general."

She said young Fidel had packed his toy guns in a big box and was carrying them back to Cuba with him.

Dad Totes Her Back to Prison

BOISE, Idaho — (AP) — Mary Ann Gardner headed home to El Monte, Calif., after escaping from the Idaho Penitentiary Dec. 28. Tuesday her father brought her back. She was serving a forgery term.

Al Gardner stayed only long enough to surrender his 21-year-old daughter to Warden L. E. Clapp. Then he, his wife and a grandmother started home.

Clapp said he suggested Gardner turn his daughter over to California officers when the father telephoned last weekend. "No, I'll take her back myself," he quoted Gardner.

Mary Astor Discloses—

Quit Fight for Child, Studio Brass Told Me

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Movie Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — (AP) — Mary Astor disclosed Tuesday that moviedom's top brass tried to persuade her to call off the 1936 child custody suit in which her sensational "purple ink" diary figured.

She refused, and the resulting scandal rocked Hollywood.

The disclosure was made in her autobiography, "My Story," a regretful look back to the wilder days of filmtown history. She is now 52 and a grandmother. Her account doesn't spare the lovely, wilful film star of the '30s. Her reflective view of herself after the trial:

"I do not think I could have borne it to face myself as I really was—sick, spoiled and selfish, prowling like some jungle animal seeking momentary satisfaction. Sexually I was out of control. I was drinking too much, and I was brought up short when I found myself late in the evening thinking someone was 'terribly attractive' and wondering the next morning, 'Why, why'!"

The actress created lurid headlines when she sued her

Syracuse U. Dorm Burns; 7 Air Force Students Die

13 Injured In 'River Of Fire'

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — (AP) — Seven Air Force students perished in their sleep Tuesday and 13 others were injured in a wild scramble to flee wind-whipped flames that made an inferno of a barracks dormitory at Syracuse University.

Twenty-five airmen escaped without injuries of consequence, mostly by jumping through windows of the one-story building.

Firemen, battling in near-zero weather at 6 a.m., kept the flames from spreading to the 14 other barracks of a university housing development atop a hill overlooking the city.

The dead included:

Airman Billy D. Marlow, 29, of Converse, Tex., who left a wife and two children; Airman Michael E. Gasparri, 19, of Yonkers; Airman Edward E. Duggan, 23, of Manning, S.C.; Airman Joseph E. Stoll Jr., 18, of Norwalk, Ohio; and Airman Remus A. Ridwell, 18, of Oneonta, Ala.

The names of the other dead were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

The 45 men, many of them in their teens, had just been assigned to the university for a nine-month course in Russian. Their headquarters is Wright-Patterson Air Force base, Dayton, Ohio, where they are attached to the Air Institute of Technology.

Fire officials said the fire apparently started from an oil-fed steam boiler in the center of the 22-room building, which was prefabricated of metal and composition board.

The escape was "like animals trying to get out of a cage," said Sgt. Peter Dowling, 25, of Kalamazoo, Mich.

Many of the injured were cut and bruised, as well as burned. None is considered in critical condition.

Donald Dowling, not related to Sgt. Dowling, said he was terrified when he opened the door of his room, so he slammed it and crashed a chair through a window to escape.

"The barracks went up like a matchbox," Peter Dowling said. "I tried to get to a fire extinguisher in the hall, but the fire and smoke were so great I couldn't stand it. Everybody was jumping out of windows."

Rhee to Run Again? He's 84

SEOUL — (AP) — A government spokesman said that President Syngman Rhee will run for a fourth term next year.

Rhee will be 84 next March and has been South Korea's only president since the republic was founded in 1948. The presidential election is expected about May, 1960, by which time Rhee will be 85.

Mother Says She'll Share Stolen Baby

NEW YORK — (AP) — The mother of a kidnaped infant girl pleaded for the safe return of the baby Tuesday and offered to share the child with the abductor.

The kidnaper is believed to be a frustrated mother.

"If she loves the baby that much and would return her to us I would even be willing to let her visit the baby periodically," said Mrs. Frances Chionchio, 26, from her hospital bed.

"I would be willing to appeal to the kidnaper on a woman-to-woman basis. If she would call the hospital, I would speak to her on the telephone."

Police still hold hope the baby, stolen from a hospital nursery Friday night, might still be alive despite a foreboding note found pinned to a diaper in a Coney Island subway station.

They learned that the diaper did not come from the hospital where the baby was born, indicating the note might not have been written by the kidnaper. On the other hand, the kidnaper could have obtained diapers elsewhere.

The unsigned note, found Monday in the women's room of the station, read:

"Please return to St. Peter's Hospital. Didn't want to hurt anyone. Everything is so hard. Tired. Sick. The ocean is so inviting. Maybe now I will find peace. I tried to keep her warm. Dear God forgive me."

St. Peter's is the hospital miles away in downtown Brooklyn where the baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chionchio was kidnaped only 2½ hours after birth.

U.S. Warned

'Confession' Attacked

Bulganin Branded Traitor and Liar

MOSCOW — (UPI) — A speech to Communist Party leaders made public Tuesday denounced former Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin as a "traitor and double dealer" who did not tell the truth even in his confession of error.

The latest public attack on the goateed army marshal who preceded Nikita S. Khrushchev as premier was contained in a stenographic report of the Communist Party Central Committee meeting last month at which Bulganin admitted he was a member of the disgraced "anti-party group."

According to the report, L. P. Kornitz, president of the state committee on cereals and a high Soviet official, blasted Bulganin's admissions as being given "insincerely and untruthfully."

"Actually, this is nothing surprising," Kornitz said.

"He is a double-dealer and a traitor and does not want to tell the truth even up to the end."

The Communist Party newspaper Pravda joined in the denunciation of Bulganin and the other anti-party clique members — former Premier Georgi Malenkov, former Deputy Premier Lazar Kaganovich and ex-Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov and Dmitri T. Shepilov.

Both Pravda and Kornitz attacked the ousted officials for their opposition to Khrushchev's program of agricultural development of virgin lands in Siberia.

Pravda said their "foolish assertions" that the scheme would lose money have been disproved by the income received from the program.

"Facts and figures," Kornitz said, "show how harmful and criminal were the actions of the anti-party factional group . . . who opposed the measures of the party on the sharp upsurge of agriculture."

His remarks were not carried in a resolution adopted by the Central Committee at the end of its five-day meeting Dec. 19.

On Dec. 18, Bulganin, who had been demoted gradually from head of the state bank to a minor economic post, appeared before the committee and admitted opposing party policy. He begged to be allowed to remain as a party member.

The other "anti-party" officials had been ousted in July, 1957, from their government posts.

Statehood Hikes Tax In Alaska

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Statehood brought bad news to some Alaskans Tuesday: The heretofore tax-free cost-of-living allowance paid federal employes in the 49th state now is taxable.

Federal employes in Alaska receive a 25 per cent allowance above their basic wage scale to offset higher living costs. It previously had been exempt from federal income tax.

In a ruling made public Tuesday, Harold T. Swartz, assistant Internal Revenue commissioner, said Alaska's admission to statehood makes a change necessary.

"Individuals there will no longer meet the statutory requirement that they be stationed outside the continental U.S. and their cost-of-living allowance will thereupon become subject to federal income tax," Swartz wrote R. D. Stevenson, Alaska's tax commissioner.

'Outlaw Airline Strikes'

Holland Drafts Bill for Ban

By DAVID J. KRASLOW
By Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. Spessard Holland of Florida said Tuesday he will ask Congress to outlaw airline strikes.

Holland said a bill he is drafting would require that operations continue while mediators work on disputes. Labor and management would be bound by findings of the arbitration board.

Holland said he plans to introduce the bill Friday.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, Eastern Air Lines' board chairman, urged such a law as EAL's 38-day strike ended last week.

"There is an immense public interest and investment in the commercial airline industry," Holland said.

"Public funds pay for airports, flight control equipment and mail subsidies. The government hands out airline routes and certifies crew members."

Unions and the airlines have been opposed to compulsory arbitration. Both realize that it could be a two-way street and that under compulsory arbitration they might be forced to swallow settlements they don't want.

Holland apparently had this in mind when he said:

He is chairman of the powerful Senate subcommittee which will handle appropriations for the new Federal Aviation Agency.

The FAA has replaced the Civil Aeronautics Authority and has taken over some of the duties of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Sens. Mike Monroney (D., Okla.) and George Smathers of Florida have indicated they may push for similar legislation. Monroney is chairman and Smathers a member of the Senate aviation subcommittee.

Both also are key members of the parent interstate and foreign commerce committee.

replied: "All I know is that all his people were against me—actively against me."

A 74-70 vote in a secret Republican caucus brought to an end Martin's 20-year-rule over House Republicans, as floor leader and a two-term speaker.

That was on a second, suspense-laden ballot at a party conference in the House chamber.

The first ballot was too close to produce a majority for either the 74-year-old Martin or the 58-year-old Halleck. It was 73-72 for Halleck, with one vote spoiled.

Only a handful of the 153 Republican eligibles failed to turn out and vote.

Halleck was the Republican House leader in the 80th and 83rd Congresses, when the GOP was in control and Martin was speaker.

A forceful, hard-hitting Hoosier orator, Halleck has championed the cause of the Eisenhower administration. So has Martin. Both are regarded as basically conservative.

ex-husband, Dr. Franklyn Thorpe, for full custody of their daughter Marilyn, four. He had won custody with an uncontested divorce. His weapon: Miss Astor's diary with allegedly purple passages concerning several noted men.

The actress writes of being called to Samuel Goldwyn's office and being confronted by top studio bosses. Spokesman Irving Thalberg told her they felt she was making a grave mistake, that "if the information they had received was true, the trial and the diary would create a vicious scandal, give the industry a bad name, and I would probably lose the case and the child, too."

She refused to drop the suit and commented: "I looked upon it as all too boring and a little pompous; besides, Walter Huston and some champagne were waiting for me in my bungalow."

She later discovered why the bigwigs were so upset: A person who figured in the diary had forged a version and shown it to the producers, hoping they would forestall the scandal.

She writes: "The forgery was lurid; it contained a 'box score' of practically every male big name in the business and it was loaded with pornographic details."

Miss Astor said the forgery was leaked to the press. She cried futilely to her attorney: "There wasn't any 'box score' and I never called the damned thing 'Dear Diary.'" The Los Angeles Examiner printed a few pages of the authentic diary, she said, concerning her friendship for Playwright George Kaufman, which was "romantic and sentimental, certainly not pornographic."

The diary was never read in court because it had been mutilated and was inadmissible as evidence. Superior Judge (later governor) Goodwin Knight ordered it impounded, and in 1952 it was destroyed by court order.

Why did Miss Astor keep a diary?

She explains: "I wanted to talk about my own activities and my opinions of other people and the things they did. I wanted the assurance of individuality and reality and substance that the dairy gave me. The diary was a consolation and a reassurance."

The actress came out of the scandal with her career unscatched. Goldwyn, for whom she was making "Dodsworth," refused to fire her under a morality clause. His comment: "A woman fighting for her child? This is good!" She had won custody of Marilyn for nine months of the year.

National Summary

The fair, cold weather in the south that give 29 lows from Jacksonville to Apalachicola, Fla., and a 25 at Mobile, Ala., maintained sunny weather west to the Mississippi. From Texas moisture laden winds over the top of the cold air that sent a 31 reading to Laredo on the Rio Grande is streaming clouds to Lake Michigan and rain across southern Texas to Houston and Austin. The threat of this pattern is reflected in aircraft reports of ice in the clouds of southern Oklahoma.

Another very cold night was in store for the East but by Wednesday the Atlantic States will begin to feel the rising temperature trend which has already taken hold over the Plains and Midwest.

Some snow is likely across colder northern border areas from the Plains to northern Maine but winds will diminish in the northeast.

Rain should spread from Texas eastward through the Gulf states, and moisture feeding northward may form fog and drizzle through Missouri to Iowa. Foggy, rainy weather will move into Oklahoma and icy conditions may result from freezing temperatures in northern parts of the state.

City Board Says No to Foreign Cars

By PAT MANGAN
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — City commissioners voted not to buy foreign cars for city use because they said it would be unfair to American manufacturers.

The vote in the Tuesday session was 3-1.

"American cars have gotten away from providing basic transportation and are more ritzy than what we need," City Manager William J. Veeder said.

Mayor John V. Russell was the only vote Veeder got in agreement, however.

Veeder said that not only have American manufacturers failed to provide more economical cars, but they also have discontinued discounts to governmental units, which means that the city could save 21 per cent by buying foreign cars.

Commissioners were acting on a recommendation to buy three English Fords, two Volkswagens and a Studebaker Lark.

Commissioner Robert Childers, the first to object, said, "It seems to me that in the purchase of foreign autos we are paying twice.

"We send money to Europe to put the foreign car manufacturers into business. Our manufacturers are taxed for that. When we buy the foreign cars I think we are paying a double dose. I think we have a responsibility to use our own makes."

"From where I sit, it's strictly economical," Veeder said.

The city manager quoted statistics compiled in Richmond, Va., where Volkswagens are used, showing that city found the the operating costs on American standard cars are 77 per cent higher than they are on Volkswagens.

Veeder also said depreciation is less on foreign cars and they get more gas mileage.

Meanwhile, Veeder was worrying whether the autos due for replacement will hold out. The best trade-in offer on any of the six was $250. The lowest was $75.

Social Security's Just to Help Out

HOW DOES the government expect anyone to live on today's Social Security benefits? The question is frequently heard here, but the answer is simple: It doesn't.

This facet of the matter has seldom been explored. For that reason, the explanation of benefit payments from Paul Byrley, manager of the local office of the Social Security Administration, may open some eyes:

"Congress did not intend retirement, disability or survivors' benefits to replace private savings," he said. "Instead, Social Security was to supplement the family protection offered by insurance companies and similar investments. After all, Americans have always prided themselves on their individualism, and still like to have a hand in their own destinies."

Perhaps that should be emphasized more frequently. It may put the subject in a different light for a lot of people.

"Social Security can help, but you must do the rest," Byrley said. "Your Social Security benefits can form the cornerstone for your family's security. In some cases it might mean the difference between mere subsistence and comfort. In the case of those who have been able to provide adequately for their retirement, the payments may be the means by which many of the plans dreamed about during those long days behind the desk or machine can be fulfilled."

How many people who are spending up to the hilt now might begin to save a little if they understood that the government doesn't intend them to live on their Social Security? . . .

ANY PHOTOGRAPHERS, amateur or professional, who haven't seen the "Anatomy of Nature" exhibit at the Fort Lauderdale Art Center ought to catch it before it closes Jan. 17 (and the paintings of Frederic Sprague and Jamino Roy may interest them, too.)

The photos are fascinating. Among them are things as monstrous as the head of a beetle magnified many times, as delicate as dewdrops on a spider web or frost on a windowpane (this one magnified 45 times) and as unusual as a multiple exposure of the movement of the bones of the human elbow . . .

Old Yule Cards Going Abroad

QUITE A NUMBER of people have called for information on where to send old Christmas cards, so apparently many are being shipped from this county. On the other hand, Mrs. Florence Mackie, 623 NE Fourth St., Hallandale, who has mailed two boxes to Europe, will gladly send more if others will bring their cards to her. She's also getting some clothing ready to be shipped to Japan.

Mrs. Jessie Ghersin of Hollywood has asked for the name of a children's hospital that would like to have cards. Our list doesn't show any hospitals, but it does include the Dessie Scott Children's Home in Pine Ridge, Ky., and the Bethany Children's Home in Bethany, Ky. Can anyone suggest a hospital? Mrs. Ghersin's address is 1014 Hollywood Blvd.

ID Card Ordinance Bolstered

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE—City officials strengthened laws requiring identification cards for salesmen Tuesday as the result of a suit filed against the chief of police.

It is now illegal for door-to-door solicitors to work before their ID cards are issued.

The suit filed Dec. 23 by Harry Goodman of Globe Reader Service asked that Chief J. Lester Holt be enjoined from enforcing an ordinance requiring fingerprinting and the issuance of ID cards against the salesmen.

Goodman contended that the ordinance does not spell out requirements that the cards be issued before soliciting begins. He was right. It didn't, but it does now.

Goodman's suit was dismissed with the condition that his salesmen not be required to get ID cards before going to work.

The revised ordinance will require that solicitors wait for their cards while their fingerprints are sent to the FBI. An identification card will not be issued to anyone who has been convicted of moral turpitude.

Assistant City Attorney Robert J. O'Toole said it usually takes two weeks to make an FBI check, but that the new ordinance is written "toward faster administration."

Attorney's Post Goes To Cabot

By PETER LAINE
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Democrats seized Port Everglades Tuesday, ending two years of solid Republican rule.

Only Commissioner W. P. Hartman survived to represent the GOP as Fred Stevens and Robert McConnaughey replaced George Sawallis and Nelson DeBan.

Ed Crowells, elected chairman Tuesday, and Commissioner Igor Dart recently switched to the Democratic fold.

The new board promptly started to clean house.

It named Attorney Ted Cabot to take over from Shelby Dale as port attorney, and put Executive Director R. T. Spangler back in the manager's job vacated by E. W. Bassett.

Thrown out were the positions of insurance counselor, resident attorney, comptroller and executive director.

Cabot will be paid $8,400 a year plus $2,100 for secretarial expenses. Dale made $4,800. Mrs. Dorothy Smith, former resident attorney, got $3,600.

Norman Norse, former comptroller, was made chief accountant and office manager at an unchanged salary of $500 a month.

Gerald Richardson, former insurance counselor, had several more barbed exchanges with Crowells, and one with McConnaughey.

A bill from Richardson for some $4,000 will not be paid while the Grand Jury is probing port insurance matters, Crowells said.

The board deferred study of a new insurance program, but agreed to advertise immediately for sprinkler leakage protection in two new warehouses.

It declined to discuss Contractor Frank Rule's request for payment of some $40,000 outstanding on two change-of-work order projects. These are also under Grand Jury investigation.

Rule's attorney, Carl Hiaasen, requested immediate settlement. Dale previously advised the board to hold up payment.

Tuesday's agenda revealed that Quentin Long, assistant state attorney, has asked the port to hold up any payments to Rule.

Several jury members attended the meeting as spectators.

Cabot was asked to report on a revision of the port charter which he said is badly needed.

The board declined to approve the minutes of the last two meetings pending study, agreed to continue the existing taxicab arrangement, and told Spangler to fix a meeting with Strachan Shipping Co. representatives.

The previous board approved, then postponed, the company's application for a stevedoring and agency permit.

David Aucamp was named port operations manager at a salary of $575 a month. Administrative Assistant Jack Ferris was authorized to act as manager in Spangler's absence.

Judge Finds 'Probable Cause'

Cunningham Faces Trial On Breaking and Entering

By ERWIN POTTS
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — A Circuit Court judge Tuesday ruled that a previous preliminary hearing was "inadequate," but found probable cause to take the case of Darwin Lee Cunningham to trial.

Judge Otis Farrington held Tuesday's hearing under a writ of habeas corpus filed by Cunningham's attorney, Steadman Stahl Jr.

Judge Farrington termed the previous hearing "insufficient" because Judge Louis Weissing refused to hear defense witnesses and because there was no showing that Cuningham was advised of his constitutional rights before making an oral admission.

At the beginning of the hearing, Judge Farrington announced that the county would be allowed to present its case more fully.

Attorney Stahl objected to this, and later had a statement inserted into the record calling the hearing "improper" under a writ of habeas corpus.

Cunningham has been charged with breaking and entering with intent to commit larceny.

At Tuesday's hearing Stahl attempted to show that an oral admission made by Cunning was not voluntary.

The defense contended that Cunningham was roughed up by arresting deputies, denied the opportunity to call a lawyer, and not accorded a magistrate to appraise him of his constitutional rights.

However Judge Farrington overruled Stahl's motion that the admission not be heard, after the county presented evidence rebutting the defense's contentions.

Cunningham is tentatively scheduled for trial this morning.

Courthouse Expansion

$3.6 Million OKd For County Project

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE — The County Commission Tuesday voted to proceed with a bond issue of up to $3,600,000 to expand the courthouse to more than double its present size.

It adopted two resolutions providing for issuance of the bonds. Just how much the commission will spend on the expansion has yet to be determined.

No final plans for the courthouse have been adopted. Preliminary sketches call for another five floors on the new addition plus a wing extending westward on SE Sixth St. and another wing extending north on SE Third Ave.

Some bond money also will be spent for additional parking.

Commissioners indicated they hope to keep millage to pay bond interest and principal well under one mill. For next year, they expect to levy six-tenths of a mill for the courthouse bonds.

As the tax roll becomes larger, the bond millage will grow smaller, they said.

In other matters, the commission:

DEFERRED until Friday action on a request from White Top Cab Co. for a franchise at the new Broward International Airport terminal.

TOOK UNDER advisement a request from Lee Wagener, airport manager, for a change in his job classification that would entitle him to a pay increase from his present salary of $650 a month to $750. Wagener cited his increased responsibilities with growing traffic at the field.

DEFERRED a decision on hiring former County Commissioner Tony Salvino as road superintendent.

Mental Clinic Gets Gift Of $50,000

By MARGARET WALKER
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — A gift of $50,000 to the Broward Mental Hygiene Clinic for a new building has been announced by Dr. Henry J. Bessette, director.

The gift will enable the clinic to provide an adequate mental health program in Broward County, said Dr. Bessette, who pointed out that space is the most urgent need of the clinic.

Tentative plans are to set up a training program within the clinic, with an increased staff of social workers, psychology internes and, in the future, psychiatrists.

"So far we have begun preliminary talks with the University of Miami to set this up as a training clinic," said Dr. Bessette.

The director also aims at a research program, which would eventually qualify the clinic to receive federal funds from the National Institute of Health. With sufficient room, the research program could be started, said Dr. Bessette. "The gift we have just received will put us a long way toward this goal," he said.

So far, a location has not been selected for the new building.

City Puts 'Gag' on Employes

Herald Bureau

WILTON MANORS — The City Council Tuesday night passed an election eve ordinance prohibiting city employes from campaigning or expressing a preference for municipal candidates.

The gag was imposed over the bitter objections of Harold Price, council member seeking reelection in the Tuesday vote.

"It deprives city employes of their constitutional right to express an opinion," Price declared.

The ordinance was rejected by the council a year ago. It was not on the announced agenda for Tuesday's meeting.

The board introduced the measure a few minutes before adjournament and give it final passage by three emergency readings.

"I have never heard of anyone being stopped from talking to friends or neighbors about his election choice," Price said.

2 De Gaulle Aides Quit Over Austerity

PARIS — (UPI) — Premier Charles de Gaulle disclosed Tuesday night that two Socialist members of his cabinet, including Party Chief Guy Mollet, have resigned in protest against his severe new austerity program. Shortly afterward, 1,000 workers staged a Paris street demonstration against De Gaulle austerity.

Police intervened to disperse gas and electricity workers who staged the first street demonstrations in France since De Gaulle announced his "truth and severity" economic policy—which meant higher prices but no wage increases for most Frenchmen.

Just a few hours before, De Gaulle's office announced the resignations of Mollet, minister of state in the De Gaulle government, and Eugene Thomas, veteran Socialist minister of posts and telegraphs.

A brief communique said the Socialists turned in their resignations Dec. 27—the date the franc devaluation and austerity measures were announced — "because they were unable to give their assent to the budget adopted by the government."

Winner of Hurst Contest Surprised, Delighted with $500 Worth of Awnings

"It still seems like a dream," said Mrs. J. H. Mahaffey of 942 NW 40th St., Miami, in speaking of the five hundred dollars' worth of Hurst awnings she won recently.

"My husband, John, laughed at me when I entered my name in the drawing at the Home Show at Dinner Key Auditorium last November," she explained. "He said he didn't expect I'd ever hear from anybody except maybe a salesman who might call me up to offer some gimmick or other. He said he was sure these contests were always rigged.

"You can imagine our surprise, then, when Mr. Padgett of the Hurst Awning Company showed up at our house one day ready to measure our windows and to put up the awnings I had won! In a very few days our home was completely equipped with the most beautiful awnings anybody in our neighborhood has ever seen. The job came to a little more than the five hundred dollars worth of awnings I had won, and believe it or not, the Hurst people threw in the extra amount free! I just can't believe it all happened, it was so wonderful!"

Mrs. Mahaffey had an old awning across the front of her house for years, and had often thought of replacing it. But she explained that there are so many companies putting out awnings these days and all making different claims for the superiority of their particular product over all others she never could make up her mind which one to call. Then she won the Hurst awnings and the whole Mahaffey family now is sold on them.

"My husband, who works for the Miami Transit Company, has been telling all his friends what a great job the Hurst people do in making their awnings," Mrs. Mahaffey added. "And all my children and my neighbors are thrilled by the beautiful new look the awnings give our home.

"We especially like the fact that all the awnings fold down for hurricane protection, should we ever need it. In the meantime, they give wonderful protection from the sun and the rain, too. The first day we got them it started to rain and, as usual, I made a dash to close the windows.

"'Wait a minute, now,' my husband told me. 'Let's just see whether these awnings really keep the rain out the way the man said they would!'

"Sure enough, not a drop of rain came in. Not even a trickle, like our old awning used to give us. The deep sides on Hurst awnings really protect our home. I just can't express how secure we all feel with our new protection against sun, rain and hurricane.

"And, as my husband says, the fine workmanship that goes into Hurst awnings shows in the smooth, streamlined way they are put together. The under-surfaces and corners — where spider webs and even hornet nests do sometimes gather, in spite of a busy housewife's care — are all so smooth and shiny that it's a cinch to keep them clean.

"There are no sharp edges or ends of bolts hanging down, you see, to catch in your dust mop or cloth. I really appreciate that, as I work in the Edison Senior High cafeteria and don't always have as much time as I'd like to devote to house cleaning. I'm sure other women will understand the advantage of easy-to-clean awnings like mine.

"I know I must sound like a super salesman for the Hurst Company, with all the nice things I keep saying about them and their awnings. But I simply can't get over what wonderful people they are. They did exactly what they promised to do in the contest — deliver and install five hundred dollars' worth of awnings free.

"There were no gimmicks, no high pressure to buy something extra, no attempt to use my home for a demonstration, or anything of that sort. They just came and quietly and efficiently, put up the awnings and then went away again. But ever since, I've been telling everybody I know about the Hurst Company and recommending their awnings.

"It's the least I can do, to show my appreciation for our own wonderful new Hurst awnings, isn't it?"

Hardly anyone could disagree with her on that.

Further information about Hurst awnings and free estimates may be obtained by calling TUxedo 7-8154.

WHAT A DIFFERENCE Hurst awnings made on the Mahaffey home. Top picture shows the home without awnings, below, after the Hurst awnings were installed.

To Act as Booster

Salk Urges Fourth Shot of Vaccine

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—(UPI)—Dr. Jonas E. Salk, discoverer of polio vaccine, Tuesday advocated a fourth, or "booster," shot of the serum for full protection against polio.

Speaking at a symposium at the University of Michigan, Salk said some persons failed to get full protection from the first three shots of vaccine because commercially-produced serum was not up to the potency of that produced in his laboratory.

Salk said a more potent vaccine was desirable and attainable but a fourth shot of the vaccine now being manufactured by commercial producers would complete immunization of persons who were not completely protected by three doses.

Judge Rules Out 'Confession' of Mary Welborn

By ART ROBINSON
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — The state's case against Mary Welborn crumbled Tuesday when her confession to the slaying of Engineer Robert Lee was not admitted into evidence.

Judge Louis Weissing ruled that the confession was not given voluntarily.

The state continued with its case although courtroom observers felt that without the confession the case could not stand up.

The girl testified that she was driven to the confession by insistent questioning.

"I wanted to get the whole thing over with and get them off by back," she said.

She denied she killed Lee and charged that her signed and recorded confession was dictated by Deputy Sheriff Montie Smith and Carl Christy, county investigator.

During the four days prior to her confession, she charged, she was denied the use of a telephone so that she could call a "defender" (an attorney) as other prisoners had advised her to do.

She stuck to her story under cross-examination and insisted she was telling the truth. She explained discrepancies in her testimony by declaring she "got mixed up, but I didn't lie."

Her attorney, Ellis Rubin of Miami, brought out charges she was isolated in a special cell from other prisoners, denied visitors and the right to be taken before a judge where she could be formally charged and advised of her rights.

No charge was placed against her until she had been held four days at Broward County Jail and finally confessed, he sought to show.

Emerson Allsworth, former county solicitor, and Raymond A. Doumar, who are handling the prosecution, tried to show that the girl confessed voluntarily. They produced witnesses who told of her "relief at getting it off her chest" and pointing out the murder scene on U. S. 27.

All witnesses testified with the jury out of the courtroom where she is on trial on a second degree murder charge in the slaying Christmas Day 1957.

Lee was returning to Miami from a Christmas visit to the family of his fiancee in Belle Glade. In her disputed confession, Mary said he picked her up as she hitchhiked and that she killed him in a struggle over a .22 caliber hunting rifle in his car.

Her testimony came during a daylong parade of witnesses who testified about the confession with the jury absent. The defense was seeking to keep the confession from being admitted as evidence.

The prosecution's case hinges on the confession. Both prosecution and defense called jail matrons who testified as to whether the girl confessed voluntarily, as the prosecution contends.

Clayton Nance, public defender, testified that he went to see her three days after her arrest to find out if she needed an attorney and had to argue his way in.

A tree ran into him.

Tree Surgeons Bert Holt and Jay Kelly said Goodwin ran into the tree, but Goodwin had two witnesses who back him up.

They Can Stay

Mr. and Mrs. Ramon Coffman can keep their Florida room.

FORT LAUDERDALE commissioners decided Tuesday that the Coffmans won't be asked to tear the room apart even though it does extend three feet into Clematis Pl.

The Coffmans discovered they were watching television in the city's right of way when they attempted to get mortgage money to make some home improvements.

"The error," said Commissioner Robert Childers, "is ours. The city issued a building permit."

Too Ill to Talk

MIAMI Attorney O. B. White, "fired" Monday by the Seminole Tribal Council because of charges he made last week in connection with a lease of Indian lands, could not be reached Tuesday for comment.

His office said he was too ill to receive phone calls at his residence.

White had blasted the Indian agency in Dania and the Bureau of Indian Affairs in Washington. He claimed the national and local offices were engineering a "dirty deal" for the Indians in the proposed lease of 68-acres of valuable State Road 7 property.

Laundry Location Approved

WILTON MANORS — The Zoning Board of Adjustment voted Monday night to allow a self-service laundry at 2553 Wilton Dr., although it had to modify the original appeal to do so.

The modification followed a vote to deny the appeal, filed by Pyro, Inc. The modification restrictions included parking spaces for each four laundry machines; no entrance on Eighth Ter.; operating hours of 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. and outside lighting not a nuisance to neighbors.

Paris Singer, attorney representing Henry Riebling, who once went to court, to halt the laundromat, said Tuesday "I still feel the board's acton is illegal — they went beyond their powers."

The decision followed an hour and a half of argument between Singer and William Leonard, attorney who represents Pyro, the firm seeking the laundromat.

Most of the 50 persons opposed a variance. Their objections were based on effect of the laundry on adjacent residential property.

After the first motion for granting the variance failed, board member William Turner suggested "We start right from the beginning with this thing — let it go back to council."

In another touchy appeal, the board turned down a request by Mayor Frank Starling and his partner, Lamar Braddy, to construct an auto repair garage at 541 NE 22nd St.

Raze Academy Barracks, City Told

See Story, P. 1

Herald Bureau

HOLLYWOOD — City Manager Joseph W. Watson Tuesday recommended that the main barracks at Riverside Military Academy be condemned.

Watson based his recommendation on a report Tuesday from Chief Building Inspector George Whitfield, who examined the 35-year-old wood and stucco structure.

"Since Monday's fire and the tons of water used in fighting it destroyed about 33 per cent of the building, it should be condemned," Watson said.

General Sandy Beaver, president of the academy, said the building was valued at $700,000. He said he thought the school carried $500,000 insurance.

"The replacement value would be over a million dollars," he said.

The building went up in 1924 as the Hollywood Hills Inn but the military school took over in 1931.

Report on Airport Due Next Week

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE — A report on financing improvements to Fort Lauderdale's airport will be submitted to city commissioners next Tuesday, City Manager William J. Veeder said.

Harold A. Wilde, Miami, the city's airport consultant, has recommended a program of improvements to the field that would cost $5,000,000 at the outset. He suggested $110,000 be allocated for the first stage of the program.

It includes $42,000 for a maintenance and servicing hanger, $28,000 for a 10-unit "T" hangar, $25,000 for extension of water mains and $15,000 for grading, paving, drainage and other improvements.

In other business commissioners decided:

TO OPEN UP BIDDING on the parking meters for the Beach-Las Olas parking lot, though only one company makes the type of meter needed;

ASK THE STATE Road Department for a traffic light at N. Federal Hwy. and Holy Cross Hospital, though traffic engineer Herman Batts said he doesn't believe they'll get it;

CONDEMNED four buildings in the northwest section after learning two others scheduled for condemnation have been destroyed by the owners;

AGREED to lease land at Sunrise Junior High School for 20 years from the School Board to build a swimming pool on the 150 by 152-foot parcel.

Lauderdale Delays OK On Board

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE — City commissioners decided Tuesday to study a proposal for a Broward County Regional Planning Board before offering it their endorsement.

The plan, prepared by the Broward County League of Municipalities, was outlined to commissioners by City Manager William J. Veeder who asked them to "get in on this subject with both feet."

The planning agency will be discussed by the League of Municipalities at a meeting Jan. 15 at Deefrield Beach City Hall.

As outlined by Veeder, the planning agency would have taxing powers limited to 15-100ths of a mill to support its work.

It would be a 12-man agency with one representative each named by Fort Lauderdale, Hollywood, Pompano Beach, five by the County Commission, one by the Port Authority and one by the School Board.

The other two would be selected by the senior circuit judge from among nominees submitted by the municipalities of 1,000 or more people.

Debate Rages Over Deerfield Yacht Basin

By CLARENCE ZAITZ
North Broward Bureau

DEERFIELD BEACH — A zoning change that would allow filling in about one-fourth of the privately owned Deerfield Beach Yacht Basin was bitterly contested at a special zoning board meeting Monday.

But the board temporarily sidestepped a decision on the fired-up controversy, when Chairman David S. Pruitt advised the 80 persons present that "we have all the facts, and we'll study them before we make a decision." He would not say how long it would take.

Myron Prosser, president of Coye Enterprises, Inc., petitioned to rezone some property from residential — 2 to business — 1 to allow construction of some "nice stores" around two sides of the basin he owns.

The plan would require filling in about 24,600 square feet of the yacht basin. The plan is for a 60-foot extension into the water, along the 233-foot length of the west side, and along 240 feet of the north side of the inlet.

Both Prosser and his attorney declared they had a legal right to "fill in the bay tomorrow, if we want," but were challenged on that point by Chamber of Commerce President William Grimditch and Cove Developer Robert Sullivan.

Much of the argument raged over the power of deed restrictions and whether they pertained to the water area.

The large delegation on hand was almost unanimous in its disapproval. They objected because they didn't feel there was need for additional commercial property, because there would not be enough parking, because construction would obstruct their view of the yacht basin and because they wanted boat docks.

Pompano Balks at 'Hard Sell'

By CLARENCE ZAITZ
North Broward Bureau

POMPANO BEACH — The city's proposal to hire a public relations firm to "sell" a sewer bond referendum to the public "looks like a high pressure act," to Paul V. Sundberg, secretary of the Pompano Beach Taxpayers Association.

"Why can't we get the same information from City Hall. The officials get paid for that," Sundberg challenged. He pointed out he was speaking as an individual; that the association hasn't taken a stand on the matter yet.

"This is a project of such magnitude," Sundberg declared, "we don't want the decision to be made solely by the board of directors of our association — we want all the membership to vote on it."

Several weeks ago the City Commission authorized James Hughes, city manager, to negotiate for the hiring of a public relations firm to handle the "educational" campaign for a sanitary sewer program.

A referendum is expected sometime this spring.

Sundberg said the association was strictly opposed to spending any city funds on the sewer program before the referendum.

Graham Shows Up At Akron

Herald Bureau

HOLLYWOOD — The 30-year-old Hollywood businessman who turned up last week in a Havana jail has slipped past Dade County authorities who want him on charges of issuing worthless checks, The Herald learned Tuesday.

Jonathan J. Graham, who police said is wanted in both Miami and Chicago for bad check passing, arrived last Sunday in Akron, Ohio, his former home.

Graham was released from the Havana prison last Thursday with criminal and political prisoners when Fidel Castro's rebels took control of the government.

He claims now he does not know why he was imprisoned in Havana last May, said an Akron-Beacon Journal reporter.

Since his arrival in Akron, Graham has told of being tortured in the prison, Staff Writer Bruce McIntyre said.

Graham apparently landed at Miami International Airport Sunday but Dade authorities did not know he had re-entered Florida until Tuesday.

Chief Deputy Constable E. E. Sistrunk of Miami said Graham was still wanted there on charges of passing $306 in bad checks last April.

School Chief Quits Firm

FORT LAUDERDALE — School Superintendent Raymond Maxwell announced Tuesday that he's turning his public accounting business over to his two senior employes, H. L. Rodgers and Roy E. Price.

Maxwell, who will remain with the firm as a staff consultant, said school duties necessitated the move.

Rodgers and Price have formed a partnership and will head the business Maxwell established in 1951.

High School Contract Due Next Month

POMPANO BEACH—A contract for a new senior high school here probably will be awarded next month, it was announced Tuesday.

School Planner Charles Lowery said the plant, for which $1,214,784 has been budgeted, should be completed by Christmas.

Lowery said the junior high will be moved to the present high school site.

Construction got underway this week on a new elementary school, immediately north of the high school site. It's to be completed by September.

Liberals Name Halleck

Martin Gets the Boot As House GOP Leader

4 Votes End His Reign

White House Aides Blamed

WASHINGTON — (AP) — House Republicans ousted their veteran leader, Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts, Tuesday on the eve of a new congressional session.

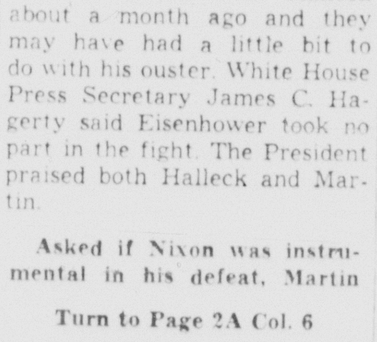
A rebellion pointed toward giving the party high command a more aggressive, vigorous look shifted the leadership mantle to Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana.

Martin pointed a finger of blame at some White House aides, but not at President Eisenhower directly. He also said Vice President Richard Nixon's associates opposed him.

The changeover provided a dramatic, spectacular prelude for a similar showdown within Senate Republican ranks and for the opening of the heavily Democratic 86th Congress at noon today.

A thin, four-vote margin was the difference between success and failure in the revolt against the House GOP leadership — the first successful one in 28 years.

In spite of the usual professions of unity and amity after the balloting, the outcome may leave damaging scars on the depleted ranks of Republican congressmen.



HALLECK MARTIN

Martin said that "I don't think the President himself did anything against me." But he said some White House aides conferred with Halleck about a month ago and they may have had a little bit to do with his ouster. White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said Eisenhower took no part in the fight. The President praised both Halleck and Martin.

Asked if Nixon was instrumental in his defeat, Martin

High In The Sky

This picture taken from a rocket which soared to an altitude of more than 86 miles was released by the Navy Tuesday. Actually a composite of five pictures, it shows a stretch of cloud formation which, the Navy said, covers approximately 1,000 miles, stretching from Maine to mid-Florida. The Navy described the picture as a forerunner of a series of high altitude photographs that will be used to study hurricanes and associated weather conditions.

Suicidal Motorist Kills Man

Two more Miamians died on Dade highways Tuesday, including a driver whose car was the target of a would-be suicide.

The man who attempted suicide survived the bloody smashup though his condition is called critical.

In the bizzare suicide attempt, police said Henry N. Moore, 50, of 7431 NW Seventh Ct., died instantly when his east-bound car collided at Tamiami Trail and 122nd Ave., with a west-bound auto driven by Attorney Paul A. Foisy, 33, of 2981 SW 12th St.

Florida Highway Patrol investigators said Foisy deliberately veered his speeding car — traveling about 90 miles an hour — into Moore's vehicle.

A pet collie in Moore's car was also critically injured, and may have to be destroyed, police said.

The other traffic death was Cornelius B. Willard, 35, of 6048 SW 19th St., who was hurled from his laundry truck in an intersection collision and pinned to the pavement.

Miami police said George S. Pietzcker, 73, of 7737 Atlantic Way, Miami Beach, failed to yield the right of way to Willard's truck at NE Third Ct. and 78th St.

Nephew Says He'll Go to Daytona

Batista Planning Regime in Exile?

More Palm Beach News, 1C, 12A

By ROSE ALLEGATO
WPB Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — Juan Batista, 20-year-old nephew of Cuba's deposed dictator, said Tuesday his uncle will set up a government-in-exile in Daytona Beach.

Juan, who fled Cuba New Year's morning with his father, Francisco, to seek political asylum in West Palm Beach, said Fulgencio Batista will come to his Daytona Beach home from the Dominican Republic in "two months."

"It is indefinite. Not even his son or daughter know yet," said Juan, who speaks English with a degree of fluency. However, he estimated it would be "two months or three."

Juan said he and his father will join Cuba's ousted dictator in Daytona Beach. Meanwhile, they will live in a private residence in West Palm Beach. At present they are at a downtown hotel.

They said the luxurious Biltmore Hotel in Palm Beach, where they first sought refuge, was too costly.

Francisco Batista, who was governor of the Province of Havana; his son, Juan; a woman he described as the "mother of my son" and 41 others, including the wife of President-elect Rivero Aguero, left revolt-torn Havana in a C46 military plane for West Palm Beach early New Year's day.

"I had been to a party the night of Dec. 31," the short, pudgy Cuban youth said. "I get home 3 a.m. and go to bed. I was sleeping. At 6 a.m. a servant called me to come downstairs," he said.

"I did not know what to think. I get downstairs and the servant grabs my hand and say, 'Come, we go.' The car was already there."

The Batistas hope to return to Cuba some day, young Juan said.

Meanwhile, the youth had nothing but high praise for America, which he called a "country of peace."

Doff Sweaters

It'll be warmer everywhere in Florida today, the weatherman said Tuesday — with Miami's mercury in the mid-70s.

North Florida farmers escape the cold wave with little or no crop damage, the state Frost Warning Service reported.

Skies will be sunny, with no rain, the weatherman said.

East Still Chilled by Icy Winds

NEW YORK — (AP) — A vicious Arctic gale hammered the Eastern seaboard for a second day Tuesday with wind gusts up to 70 m.p.h. Damage was widespread, as bitter cold intensified the misery of the storm.

The biting cold even penetrated the depths of New York's subway system, disrupting mechanical equipment and delaying rush hour travelers by the thousands. New York's low was 13.7 above zero.

At Stratford, Conn., the father of four children died in a duplex fire, and his wife and four children were hospitalized.

Sixteen students fled the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity house on the Williams College campus at Williamstown, Mass., during a pre-dawn fire. And at Long Branch, N. J., 11 persons escaped from a burning apartment house.

In New England, thousands of autos were stalled by the cold. Wild winds felled trees and utility poles and delayed scores of trains out of Boston.

Congress Dissolved, Courts Suspended

New Cuban Regime to Rule By Decree for 18 Months

Cuba at a glance, 3A

HAVANA — (AP) — The revolutionary government dissolved Congress Tuesday and announced it will rule Cuba by decree for at least 18 months when new elections are planned.

The government suspended all criminal courts, regarded as a symbol of the fallen dictatorship of Fulgencio Batista, and was reported preparing a decree abolishing all political parties.

The provisional regime dismissed all provincial governors, mayors and councilmen. Apparently their functions will be taken over by new civilian appointees prepared in advance for the task.

Other decrees, informed sources said, would ban all candidates in the 1954 and 1958 elections from Cuba's political life, freeze the private bank accounts of all Batista officials, and stop the cashing of all outstanding checks against the Batista regime.

Revolutionary courts were reported being prepared to try Batista, now in exile in the Dominican Republic, and other officials who may be accused of crimes during his rule.

These and other laws were announced, or reported in preparation, as Provisional President Manuel Urrutia sat almost continuously in the Presidential Palace with his new cabinet.

The initial policies of the new government were being shaped as hoarse-voiced Fidel Castro, the rebel leader who shoved Urrutia to power, was still plodding through adoring throngs toward the capital from the east. It was doubtful he would reach Havana today as planned.

The losing of political rights by all candidates in the 1954 and 1958 elections would apply not only to Batista but also to Rivero Aguero, his successful candidate in last November's presidential elections and the second runner, former President Ramon Grau San Martin.

The rebels considered both the 1954 and 1958 Batista elections were fraudulent.

The dissolution of political parties would affect former President Carlos Prio Socarras, head of the Autentico Party, who returned to Cuba after the New Year's Day resignation of Batista. Although Prio made common cause with the rebels against Batista, he apparently is not trusted by Castro's 26th of July movement.

Prio has been living in exile in Miami since 1952 when he was overthrown by a Batista coup.

Additional appointments were made to the cabinet headed by Premier Jose Miro Cardona, president of the Havana Bar Association. These included Luis Orlando Rodrigues as interior minister, and Raul Cepero Bonilla as minister of the treasury. Earlier Bonilla had been slated for commerce minister and Raul Chibas for the treasury.

Felipe Pazos was named director of the National Bank in place of Joaquin Martinez Paez, who was linked to the Batista government.

Castro's Son, 9, Returning to Cuba

NEW YORK — (AP) — The nine-year-old son of Cuban Leader Fidel Castro has been living quietly in New York City, it was learned Tuesday night.

The boy, identified as Fidel Castro Jr., talked to newsmen on boarding a plane at Idlewild Airport to return to Cuba.

He said his fellow pupils in in the third grade at Public School 20 in Flushing, Queens, didn't know he was Castro's son, adding:

"They didn't ask me and I didn't tell them."

Glennon told reporters his wife was a sister-in-law of the boy's mother, Mrs. Mirta Diaz de Nunez, who is divorced from Castro.

Glennon said the former Mrs. Castro sent young Fidel to New York six weeks ago because she was afraid that followers of Fulgencio Batista, deposed Cuban dictator, might take reprisal action against the boy.

Glennon and his wife said that since the youngster used his true name, they were surprised his classmates and neighbors had not learned he was the son of the rebel leader.

The boy learned of his father's victory in Cuba when he saw a television program, Mrs. Glennon said.

"Fidel marched around the house," she added. "He first promoted himself to sergeant, then to lieutenant and finally to a general."

She said young Fidel had packed his toy guns in a big box and was carrying them back to Cuba with him.

Italian Premier To See Nasser

CAIRO, Egypt — (AP) — Premier Amintore Fanfani of Italy arrived Tuesday for a two-day friendship visit and talks with President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

He was met at the airport by the United Arab Republic's vice president, Field Marshal Abdel Hakim Amer. He drove with Amer to Kubben Palace for his first talk with Nasser.

A Modern-Day Parable

. . . Janitress Nicolosa Donlucas

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — "This is a talent," the Methodist minister said, pressing a 50-cent piece into the gnarled hand of the tiny $90 a month janitress. "Use it wisely and it will increase."

And Nicolosa Donlucas listened to the Rev. Nicolas Davila relate Jesus' Parable of the Talents. As she stood, broom in hand, he explained how some persons can make one coin become many, while others — as told in Matthew — fail to make use of what they have.

That was last summer.

Some days later, a timid knock came on his door. It was Nicolosa. She held out $17.50 to him.

Haltingly, she explained. His half-dollar had paid for some cheese and tortillas. She had made enchiladas and sold them, then bought more cheese and tortillas and sold more enchiladas. Now she had $35! Half she was giving to the Methodist-operated community center where she works. Half would finance more enchiladas in her spare time.

"Is this not the meaning of the tale you told me?" she asked.

Dulles Conquers Virus Infection

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was reported to be feeling better Tuesday. An illness, described as a virus infection, prevented him from making a planned trip to Canada Monday for conferences.

The State Department press officer, Lincoln White, said Dulles' temperature is normal but that "the secretary is remaining at home, resting and doing some work."

Armed, Boasts Iraq; by Reds?

DAMASCUS, Syria — (AP) — The deputy chief of staff of the Iraqi army said Tuesday Iraq has received "up-to-date modern arms from friends." He did not name the friends.

Brig. Shaker Mahmud Shukri was speaking over Baghdad radio on Iraqi Army Day.

Reports of arms shipments to Iraq from Communist countries since the revolution which overthrew the monarchy last July have been frequent, but never confirmed.

Dad Totes Her Back to Prison

BOISE, Idaho — (AP) — Mary Ann Gardner headed home to El Monte, Calif., after escaping from the Idaho Penitentiary Dec. 28. Tuesday her father brought her back. She was serving a forgery term.

Al Gardner stayed only long enough to surrender his 21-year-old daughter to Warden L. E. Clapp. Then he, his wife and a grandmother started home.

Clapp said he suggested Gardner turn his daughter over to California officers when the father telephoned last weekend. "No, I'll take her back myself," he quoted Gardner.

Mary Astor Discloses—

Quit Fight for Child, Studio Brass Told Me

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Movie Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — (AP) — Mary Astor disclosed Tuesday that moviedom's top brass tried to persuade her to call off the 1936 child custody suit in which her sensational "purple ink" diary figured.

She refused, and the resulting scandal rocked Hollywood.

The disclosure was made in her autobiography, "My Story," a regretful look back to the wilder days of filmtown history. She is now 52 and a grandmother. Her account doesn't spare the lovely, wilful film star of the '30s. Her reflective view of herself after the trial:

"I do not think I could have borne it to face myself as I really was—sick, spoiled and selfish, prowling like some jungle animal seeking momentary satisfaction. Sexually I was out of control. I was drinking too much, and I was brought up short when I found myself late in the evening thinking someone was 'terribly attractive' and wondering the next morning, 'Why, why'!"

Syracuse U. Dorm Burns; 7 Air Force Students Die

13 Injured In 'River Of Fire'

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — (AP) — Seven Air Force students perished in their sleep Tuesday and 13 others were injured in a wild scramble to flee wind-whipped flames that made an inferno of a barracks dormitory at Syracuse University.

Twenty-five airmen escaped without injuries of consequence, mostly by jumping through windows of the one-story building.

Firemen, battling in near-zero weather at 6 a.m., kept the flames from spreading to the 14 other barracks of a university housing development atop a hill overlooking the city.

The dead included:

Airman Billy D. Marlow, 29, of Converse, Tex., who left a wife and two children; Airman Michael E. Gasparri, 19, of Yonkers; Airman Edward E. Duggan, 23, of Manning, S.C.; Airman Joseph E. Stoll Jr., 18, of Norwalk, Ohio; and Airman Remus A. Ridwell, 18, of Oneonta, Ala.

The names of the other dead were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

The 45 men, many of them in their teens, had just been assigned to the university for a nine-month course in Russian. Their headquarters is Wright-Patterson Air Force base, Dayton, Ohio, where they are attached to the Air Institute of Technology.

Fire officials said the fire apparently started from an oil-fed steam boiler in the center of the 22-room building, which was prefabricated of metal and composition board.

The escape was "like animals trying to get out of a cage," said Sgt. Peter Dowling, 25, of Kalamazoo, Mich.

Many of the injured were cut and bruised, as well as burned. None is considered in critical condition.

Donald Dowling, not related to Sgt. Dowling, said he was terrified when he opened the door of his room, so he slammed it and crashed a chair through a window to escape.

"The barracks went up like a matchbox," Peter Dowling said. "I tried to get to a fire extinguisher in the hall, but the fire and smoke were so great I couldn't stand it. Everybody was jumping out of windows."

Rhee to Run Again? He's 84

SEOUL — (AP) — A government spokesman said that President Syngman Rhee will run for a fourth term next year.

Rhee will be 84 next March and has been South Korea's only president since the republic was founded in 1948. The presidential election is expected about May, 1960, by which time Rhee will be 85.

Mother Says She'll Share Stolen Baby

NEW YORK — (AP) — The mother of a kidnaped infant girl pleaded for the safe return of the baby Tuesday and offered to share the child with the abductor.

The kidnaper is believed to be a frustrated mother.

"If she loves the baby that much and would return her to us I would even be willing to let her visit the baby periodically," said Mrs. Frances Chionchio, 26, from her hospital bed.

"I would be willing to appeal to the kidnaper on a woman-to-woman basis. If she would call the hospital, I would speak to her on the telephone."

Police still hold hope the baby, stolen from a hospital nursery Friday night, might still be alive despite a foreboding note found pinned to a diaper in a Coney Island subway station.

They learned that the diaper did not come from the hospital where the baby was born, indicating the note might not have been written by the kidnaper. On the other hand, the kidnaper could have obtained diapers elsewhere.

The unsigned note, found Monday in the women's room of the station, read:

"Please return to St. Peter's Hospital. Didn't want to hurt anyone. Everything is so hard. Tired. Sick. The ocean is so inviting. Maybe now I will find peace. I tried to keep her warm. Dear God forgive me."

St. Peter's is the hospital miles away in downtown Brooklyn where the baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chionchio was kidnaped only 2½ hours after birth.

U.S. Warned

LONDON — (UPI) — Red China, charging that two U.S. Navy planes violated its air space, has issued its 46th "serious warning" against "military provocation" to the U.S.

'Confession' Attacked

Bulganin Branded Traitor and Liar

MOSCOW — (UPI) — A speech to Communist Party leaders made public Tuesday denounced former Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin as a "traitor and double dealer" who did not tell the truth even in his confession of error.

The latest public attack on the goateed army marshal who preceded Nikita S. Khrushchev as premier was contained in a stenographic report of the Communist Party Central Committee meeting last month at which Bulganin admitted he was a member of the disgraced "anti-party group."

According to the report, L. P. Kornitz, president of the state committee on cereals and a high Soviet official, blasted Bulganin's admissions as being given "insincerely and untruthfully."

"Actually, this is nothing surprising," Kornitz said.

"He is a double-dealer and a traitor and does not want to tell the truth even up to the end."

The Communist Party newspaper Pravda joined in the denunciation of Bulganin and the other anti-party clique members — former Premier Georgi Malenkov, former Deputy Premier Lazar Kaganovich and ex-Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov and Dmitri T. Shepilov.

Both Pravda and Kornitz attacked the ousted officials for their opposition to Khrushchev's program of agricultural development of virgin lands in Siberia.

Pravda said their "foolish assertions" that the scheme would lose money have been disproved by the income received from the program.

"Facts and figures," Kornitz said, "show how harmful and criminal were the actions of the anti-party factional group . . . who opposed the measures of the party on the sharp upsurge of agriculture."

His remarks were not carried in a resolution adopted by the Central Committee at the end of its five-day meeting Dec. 19.

On Dec. 18, Bulganin, who had been demoted gradually from head of the state bank to a minor economic post, appeared before the committee and admitted opposing party policy. He begged to be allowed to remain as a party member.

The other "anti-party" officials had been ousted in July, 1957, from their government posts.

Statehood Hikes Tax In Alaska

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Statehood brought bad news to some Alaskans Tuesday: The heretofore tax-free cost-of-living allowance paid federal employes in the 49th state now is taxable.

Federal employes in Alaska receive a 25 per cent allowance above their basic wage scale to offset higher living costs. It previously had been exempt from federal income tax.

In a ruling made public Tuesday, Harold T. Swartz, assistant Internal Revenue commissioner, said Alaska's admission to statehood makes a change necessary.

"Individuals there will no longer meet the statutory requirement that they be stationed outside the continental U.S. and their cost-of-living allowance will thereupon become subject to federal income tax," Swartz wrote R. D. Stevenson, Alaska's tax commissioner.

Floridian On Jaycees' 'Top 10' List

This year's winners will be presented the silver "Jayson," symbolic of their selection. U.S. Jaycee President Robert V. Cox will make the presentations at a banquet at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Jan. 17.

Those picked were Singer Pat Boone, 24, Lt. Shepherd M. Jenks, 31, navigator of the Nautilus; Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, 35, Harvard University political scientist; Donald A. Glaser, 32, professor of physics at the University of Michigan; James T. Grace Jr., M.D. 35, Buffalo, N. Y.; Warren H. Phillips, 32, managing editor of The Wall Street Journal; Loren Edward Schnack, 32, county and probate judge of Adams County, Ill.

SMITH

Also chosen was Dr. Richard T. Smith, 34, head professor of pediatrics and chief of pediatric services at the J. Hillis Miller Health Center at the University of Florida. He was cited for his "revolutionary" discoveries in the field of natural immunity and immunological tolerance in the new-born period of life.

The other two doctors picked are Dr. Gus Turbeville, 35, president of Northland College, Washland, Wis.; Hugh Edward Wilson III, M. D., 34, University of Texas' Southwestern Medical School.

'Outlaw Airline Strikes'

Holland Drafts Bill for Ban

By DAVID J. KRASLOW
By Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. Spessard Holland of Florida said Tuesday he will ask Congress to outlaw airline strikes.

Holland said a bill he is drafting would require that operations continue while mediators work on disputes. Labor and management would be bound by findings of the arbitration board.

Holland said he plans to introduce the bill Friday.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, Eastern Air Lines' board chairman, urged such a law as EAL's 38-day strike ended last week.

"There is an immense public interest and investment in the commercial airline industry," Holland said.

"Public funds pay for airports, flight control equipment and mail subsidies. The government hands out airline routes and certifies crew members."

Unions and the airlines have been opposed to compulsory arbitration. Both realize that it could be a two-way street and that under compulsory arbitration they might be forced to swallow settlements they don't want.

Holland apparently had this in mind when he said:

He is chairman of the powerful Senate subcommittee which will handle appropriations for the new Federal Aviation Agency.

The FAA has replaced the Civil Aeronautics Authority and has taken over some of the duties of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Sens. Mike Monroney (D., Okla.) and George Smathers of Florida have indicated they may push for similar legislation. Monroney is chairman and Smathers a member of the Senate aviation subcommittee.

Both also are key members of the parent interstate and foreign commerce committee.

Joe Martin Ousted as GOP Leader

replied: "All I know is that all his people were against me—actively against me."

A 74-70 vote in a secret Republican caucus brought to an end Martin's 20-year-rule over House Republicans, as floor leader and a two-term speaker.

That was on a second, suspense-laden ballot at a party conference in the House chamber.

The first ballot was too close to produce a majority for either the 74-year-old Martin or the 58-year-old Halleck. It was 73-72 for Halleck, with one vote spoiled.

Only a handful of the 153 Republican eligibles failed to turn out and vote.

Halleck was the Republican House leader in the 80th and 83rd Congresses, when the GOP was in control and Martin was speaker.

A forceful, hard-hitting Hoosier orator, Halleck has championed the cause of the Eisenhower administration. So has Martin. Both are regarded as basically conservative.

Mary Astor's Triumph Makes Exciting Story

MARY ASTOR

Lucile Langhanke was born over a saloon in Quincy, Ill., became a famous movie actress, was involved in a sensational child custody case, later conquered alcoholism and made a comeback as a TV actress. Who is she?

She is Mary Astor, whose allegedly-spicy diary figured in the 1936 custody trial and which was later ordered destroyed by the court—unread.

What kind of a woman was and is this beautiful, vivacious woman? Mary Astor herself tells her story with courage and candor in the recently-published autobiography, "My Story." You won't want to miss her exciting story in the Sunday edition of ex-husdand, Dr. Franklyn Thorpe, for full custody of their daughter Marilyn, four. He had won custody with an uncontested divorce. His weapon: Miss Astor's diary with allegedly purple passages concerning several noted men.

Mary Astor Bares Studio Pressure

The actress writes of being called to Samuel Goldwyn's office and being confronted by top studio bosses. Spokesman Irving Thalberg told her they felt she was making a grave mistake, that "if the information they had received was true, the trial and the diary would create a vicious scandal, give the industry a bad name, and I would probably lose the case and the child, too."

She refused to drop the suit and commented: "I looked upon it as all too boring and a little pompous; besides, Walter Huston and some champagne were waiting for me in my bungalow."

She later discovered why the bigwigs were so upset: A person who figured in the diary had forged a version and shown it to the producers, hoping they would forestall the scandal.

She writes: "The forgery was lurid; it contained a 'box score' of practically every male big name in the business and it was loaded with pornographic details."

Miss Astor said the forgery was leaked to the press. She cried futilely to her attorney: "There wasn't any 'box score' and I never called the damned thing 'Dear Diary.'" The Los Angeles Examiner printed a few pages of the authentic diary, she said, concerning her friendship for Playwright George Kaufman, which was "romantic and sentimental, certainly not pornographic."

The diary was never read in court because it had been mutilated and was inadmissible as evidence. Superior Judge (later governor) Goodwin Knight ordered it impounded, and in 1952 it was destroyed by court order.

Why did Miss Astor keep a diary?

She explains: "I wanted to talk about my own activities and my opinions of other people and the things they did. I wanted the assurance of individuality and reality and substance that the dairy gave me. The diary was a consolation and a reassurance."

The actress came out of the scandal with her career unscatched. Goldwyn, for whom she was making "Dodsworth," refused to fire her under a morality clause. His comment: "A woman fighting for her child? This is good!" She had won custody of Marilyn for nine months of the year.

National Summary

The fair, cold weather in the south that give 29 lows from Jacksonville to Apalachicola, Fla. and a 25 at Mobile, Ala. maintained sunny weather west to the Mississippi. From Texas moisture laden winds over the top of the cold air that sent a 31 reading to Laredo on the Rio Grande is streaming clouds to Lake Michigan and rain across southern Texas to Houston and Austin. The threat of this pattern is reflected in aircraft reports of ice in the clouds of southern Oklahoma.

Another very cold night was in store for the East but by Wednesday the Atlantic States will begin to feel the rising temperature trend which has already taken hold over the Plains and Midwest.

Some snow is likely across colder northern border areas from the Plains to northern Maine but winds will diminish in the northeast.

Rain should spread from Texas eastward through the Gulf states and moisture feeding northward may form fog and drizzle through Missouri to Iowa. Foggy, rainy weather will move into Oklahoma and icy conditions may result from freezing temperatures in northern parts of the state.

The fate of seven high ranking Cuban naval officers and the Marta III, the sleek, 90-foot luxury yacht of Fulgencio Batista, ousted Cuban president, await a ruling from U.S. officials. The yacht is moored at a government pier at Key West. The naval officers, including two admirals, fled on short notice aboard the craft on Jan. 1. The yacht is the "private and personal property of Batista and his wife" for whom the craft is named, one of the admirals declared.

Kettler, Horner Top Board

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — The Palm Beach County School Board started off its New Year Tuesday by naming Ralph Kettler chairman and Jack Horner vice chairman.

Marshall Criser was reappointed School Board attorney for another two years.

A veteran of 12 years on the board, Kettler was named to succeed Henry Earwood, Belle Glade, who said he could not continue in the executive post because of his added duties as president of the Florida School Board Association.

The Herald in its Jan. 4 edition forecast Kettler's selection as Board chairman.

Kettler, Thurmond W. Knight and Harold A. Turner started new four-year terms at Tuesday's meeting. Turner, in his first term on the Board, takes over the seat held by Mrs. Elizabeth S. Hand, who did not seek re-election.

In other business, the Board voted to meet on Wednesdays instead of Fridays. The change becomes effective in February.

Kettler announced the School Board would not appoint an official architect until budget time. He said the Board was contemplating a change in the system of parceling out architectural work.

Kettler also expressed his appreciation for the "honor" bestowed on him.

Kettler and Earwood were named as delegates to the National School Board Association convention in San Francisco in late January.

John Dunkle Sworn In as Court Clerk

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — John B. Dunkle, a mortgage broker and son of a former mayor here, Tuesday became the county's first new Criminal Court clerk in a quarter of a century.

Dunkle, who at 30 will also be the youngest elected official in the courthouse, defeated J. Louie Carter, who held the office for 24 years.

Carter, who is contesting Dunkle's election, stayed away from the swearing in ceremonies for his successful opponent.

The new clerk was sworn in before a capacity crowd in Criminal Court by Judge E. G. Newell, who pledged the cooperation of the jurists in that division and the county solicitor's office.

John S. Lawson, squadron educational officer, said the course will run for 10 consecutive weeks, with class sessions each Thursday from 8 to 10 p.m.

The squadron urges the public to take advantage of the free courses to increase safety on the waterways.

City Hall Runs Smoothly, Mayor Claims

'Followed Wish of Voters,' Says Mahoney After Purge

By BILL BECK
Delray Bureau Chief

BOYNTON BEACH—Mayor James J. Mahoney claimed Tuesday he was "only following the wishes of the voters" when he purged City Hall.

"We had a mandate," said the mayor of one day. "The last two elections showed clearly that the people wanted a change. We gave them that they wanted."

Mahoney's "change" was as swift as it was surprising.

Within minutes after J. B. Baughman and Walter Madsen were sworn in as commissioners Monday, Mahoney was named mayor. He immediately announced that "all appointive offices are vacated."

A few officials were re-appointed, but the majority—including all of the major department heads—were chopped without so much as a thank you.

Talking with supporters and office holders Tuesday, Mahoney commented, "All of our new appointees are fully qualified and will do a very good job.

"As to City Hall, it's running smoothly. We don't expect any breakdown."

Neither Mahoney nor Ronald Fruda, the new city attorney, showed any concern over the possibility that any of the discharged city officials who were under civil service would seek to regain their jobs through court action.

"The charter makes it clear," Fruda said, "that the Commission has the power to appoint salaried officials. The whole question is ridiculous. The Commission couldn't govern if it couldn't hire and fire department heads."

Ousted Police Chief A. C. Carver said he was forced to agree with Fruda's contention.

Robert Griffith, city attorney for 10 years up until Monday, said he had not looked into the legal aspects of the civil service question.

However, Griffith said, "It was a gross injustice to fire all of these people without even the courtesy of notifying them in advance."

The new police chief, Raymond Senkpiel, had some shaky moments at the start of his first day on the job.

The 51-year-old chief, a veteran of 17 years as a patrolman on the Rochester, N.Y., Police Force, said he had heard rumors that five of his eight men had resigned.

Late in the day he announced that all eight had showed up for work and that the City Commission had authorized him to hire an additional man.

Meanwhile, Mahoney made it plain he would waste no time in hiring a city manager. "We hope to get rolling on that question very, very quickly," the new mayor said.

He hinted it might be possible to switch over to a city manager form of government within a matter of a month or two "provided we can get the right man."

These are the new officials:

Mayor James J. Mahoney, Vice Mayor J. B. Baughman, Commissioner Walter Madsen, Commissioner Martin Durkin, Commissioner Harvey Over Jr., City Attorney Ronald Fruda, City Judge Joseph W. Humphrey, Police Chief Raymond Senkpiel, Fire Chief John Tuite, City Clerk Teresa Padgett and Deputy City Clerk Olive Cierpik.

City Treasurer and Comptroller Olive Cierpik, Assistant City Treasurer Teresa Padgett, Tax Collector Teresa Padgett, Assistant Tax Collector Catherine Hockmuth, Tax Assessor Catherine Hockmuth, Purchasing Agent Catherine Hockmuth, Council Stenographer Dorothy Jones and Superintendent of Public Works D. H. Gutenberg.

Will Charges Hold Against Holzapfel?

By ED PFISTER
WPB Bureau Chief

WEST PALM BEACH — Authorities were debating here Tuesday whether forgery charges against Floyd A. Holzapfel will stand up in court.

He is scheduled to be arraigned on the charge before Justice of the Peace Robert H. Eaves next Monday.

Holzapfel, former security police chief at a Miami Beach hotel — who has been in and out of the courts here on assault and conspiracy counts — surrendered to the Sheriff's Department Monday.

He had been sought for more than a month for investigation in the murder of Lew Gene Harvey, 21-year-old suspected bootlegger from Macclenney.

But when Holzapfel gave himself up, authorities were unable to hold him for even 24 hours in connection with the murder case because they had no warrant on that count.

Instead, they pressed the forgery charge, which was based on a year-old case which never reached the courts because the persons involved refused to sign an affidavit or prosecute.

Holzapfel immediately posted a $5,000 surety bond and walked out of the county jail.

One official who has been most interested in the case said Tuesday an affidavit to support the warrant has since been made by a deputy sheriff.

He conceded it might be "thrown out of court" as insufficient, either by J. P. Eaves or Criminal Court, where any prosecution would have to be made if Eaves binds Holzapfel over to that court.

Sewerage 'Boycott' Threatened

Herald Bureau

LAKE WORTH — Angry citizens are threatening to "boycott" a proposed 2.5 million dollar "prepayment" sewage disposal system.

The threat, if it materializes, might toss another monkey wrench into the city's efforts to get the disposal system under way.

The new development was disclosed by Mrs. W. Harrison Taylor, who headed an organization which petitioned the City Commission too late for a referendum on the sewage plan.

She said Tuesday she was "amazed at the number of persons who are still aroused and opposed" to the disposal proposal.

"The people are saying they will refuse to make the prepayments to the city if it goes ahead with the plan," she said.

"Even though the bonds for the system have been validated, the officials of Lake Worth should know how the people still feel about it," Mrs. Taylor said.

Circuit Judge Culver Smith a week ago issued an order validating the bonds after the City Commission tossed out the referendum petition filed by Mrs. Taylor's group on the ground it had not been filed within the time limit for such action.

The disposal plan provides that residents in sewered areas make prepayments for 30 months before disposal service begins.

Outgoing Chairman Is Lauded

By PETE WEITZEL
WPB Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH—The County Commission meeting Tuesday was the scene of kind words and coronets, and a nifty bit of sidestepping by outgoing Chairman Roy E. Michael Jr.

The meeting was a statutory session at which Lake Lytal took over the chairmanship and Paul Rardin the vice chairmanship.

Michael's jig came after County Tax Assessor James M. Owens Jr. praised him and the board for their cooperation in making the "100 per cent" revaluation program possible.

"A great deal was accomplished by the county in 1958," Owens said, "a part of which was not very popular.

"For years, we had a token assessment. Under Michael's administration, there was a complete changeover. The good results will be like a monument. It will be a beacon for the balance of the state to follow," Owens said.

The veteran assessor then added, "This county has the worst growing pains I've ever seen. It needs good administration." He expressed his confidence that the Commission would continue to do a fine job.

"I would hesitate to accept the credit, for myself or for the Board, for the job you have done," Michael said to Owens.

"In carrying out it's constitutional duty, the Board has been faced with unusual problems. We have had a greater share of criticism this year than in the past, but we tried to handle these problems with the greatest dispatch," he said.

Lytal was nominated for the chairmanship by Commissioner Kenneth Foster, who praised him as "dedicated to public service." The new chairman accepted the post for the fourth time in his 16 years as a county commissioner.

The Commission also formally appointed all county personnel and reset its meetings at the second and fourth Mondays of each month. Zoning Board meetings were set for the first Monday of each month.

Candidates Nominated

PALM BEACH — In accordance with long established custom, this resort town nominated candidates for mayor and two council seats by acclamation at a Town Hall meeting Tuesday night.

Named to succeed themselves were Mayor Claude D. Reese and Councilmen Edgar Latham and John Cushman. There were no opposition candidates for the nominations.

The new town manager, B. Arnold, recently maintenance manager with the Central and South Florida Flood Control District, was introduced to the capacity crowd which attended.

The regular municipal election Feb. 3 will be a formality.

Countywide Inspection

School Fire Check Urged

By ROSE ALLEGATO
WPB Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — A sweeping state fire inspection of Palm Beach County public schools is in the offing.

County Superintendent Howell Watkins and Fire Chief J. H. Witherspoon recommended Tuesday that the state fire marshall be invited to conduct a complete study of the Palm Beach County public school system.

The School Board unaminously accepted the recommendation with the comment, "The entire nation is very fire conscious" since the Chicago school fire.

Watkins

Witherspoon

Watkins said the last fire inspection study by the state was conducted "four to five years ago. We complied with most of the recommendations," Watkins said. "Some were difficult." He said the school system would benefit by the sweeping study.

The School Board Tuesday meanwhile approved plans for rebuilding Boca Raton Elementary School, which was heavily damaged by fire last year.

The reconstruction program will include three classrooms, a cafeteria, and administrative offices. The entire new wing of the school will be retained as well as one classroom in the old wing, where the fire struck.

Watkins also reported Tuesday that the Palm Beach County school bus fleet was one-tenth of a point from "perfect" in its safety efficiency rating.

Only one county in the state—Osceola—has a 100 per cent rating. However, it has only 10 buses. Palm Beach's fleet consists of 80 buses.

PB May Get Park Near 20-Mile Bend

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH—Palm Beach County may get a new public park.

County commissioners said Tuesday they will ask the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District to release a portion of its land near Twenty-Mile Bend on State Rd. 80 for park purposes.

Commissioner Kenneth Foster said the site has been approved by the Florida Development Commission as a park area and that state funds are available for the improvement.

The area under consideration runs from the pumping station on SR 80 near the bend to Conservation Area No. 1 of the FCD.

State Supreme Court Hears Pros, Cons on West Palm's Marina

$7 Million Case Under Advisement

By JOHN T. BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE—The Florida Supreme Court Tuesday heard a proposed West Palm Beach marina and sports center lauded as a progressive development and criticized as a "give away of public property" to private business interests.

BEALL

The City of West Palm Beach had appealed a decision of Circuit Judge Joseph White, who refused to validate a 7.5 million dollar bond issue for the project. The Supreme Court took the case under advisement.

City Attorney Egbert Beall and C. Robert Burns told the court that the marina-civic center on the lakefront a half-mile from downtown West Palm Beach would increase tourism in the community, boost boating business on the Inland Waterway and provide board recreational programs.

The center would be leased and operated by a private corporation.

Beall said the project would enable the city to clean up what he called a retarded area and utilize adjacent land areas "too small to be used for parks."

Beall said the city would pledge utility tax revenue to help retire the bonds if rentals from property leased to private interests were inadequate or were defaulted.

Burns contended the bond issue should be validated because the proposed project is similar to developments in Panama City and Fort Lauderdale approved by the court and, "what is fair for Panama City is fair for West Palm Beach."

State Attorney Phil O'Connell said the court should consider that even if it approves the bond issue, the validity of subsequent leases to private interests would have to be approved by the courts.

O'Connell said there was no necessity for a 160-unit "boatel" to accommodate yachtsmen and their crews because there are adequate hotel and motel facilities near the proposed marina.

Attorney B. F. Paty argued that the project could not be approved on the same basis as the Panama City marina civic center because, "There the city is operating the facilities."

Under terms of the proposal, the city could use the auditorium free for three days out of each year during the 30-year lease period.

Paty said it would be a flagrant violation of law in "using public funds to serve private purposes and the biggest give away I've ever seen."

Presumably one reason behind the plan to lease the municipally sponsored facilities to private interests would be to enforce racial segregation but the issue was not raised before the court.

Other communities in Florida have leased golf course to private clubs and corporations to avoid integration.

Road Board Asks Bids

2 De Gaulle Aides Quit Over Austerity

PARIS — (UPI) — Premier Charles de Gaulle disclosed Tuesday night that two Socialist members of his cabinet, including Party Chief Guy Mollet, have resigned in protest against his severe new austerity program. Shortly afterward, 1,000 workers staged a Paris street demonstration against De Gaulle austerity.

Police intervened to disperse gas and electricity workers who staged the first street demonstrations in France since DeGaulle announced his "truth and severity" economic policy—which meant higher prices but no wage increases for most Frenchmen.

Just a few hours before, DeGaulle's office announced the resignations of Mollet, minister of state in the De Gaulle government, and Eugene Thomas, veteran Socialist minister of posts and telegraphs.

A brief communique said the Socialists turned in their resignations Dec. 27—the date the franc devaluation and austerity measures were announced — "because they were unable to give their assent to the budget adopted by the government."

Winner of Hurst Contest Surprised, Delighted with $500 Worth of Awnings

"It still seems like a dream," said Mrs. J. H. Mahaffey of 942 NW 40th St., Miami, in speaking of the five hundred dollars' worth of Hurst awnings she won recently.

"My husband, John, laughed at me when I entered my name in the drawing at the Home Show at Dinner Key Auditorium last November," she explained. "He said he didn't expect I'd ever hear from anybody except maybe a salesman who might call me up to offer some gimmick or other. He said he was sure these contests were always rigged.

"You can imagine our surprise, then, when Mr. Padgett of the Hurst Awning Company showed up at our house one day ready to measure our windows and to put up the awnings I had won! In a very few days our home was completely equipped with the most beautiful awnings anybody in our neighborhood has ever seen. The job came to a little more than the five hundred dollars worth of awnings I had won, and believe it or not, the Hurst people threw in the extra amount free! I just can't believe it all happened, it was so wonderful!"

Mrs. Mahaffey had an old awning across the front of her house for years, and had often thought of replacing it. But she explained that there are so many companies putting out awnings these days and all making different claims for the superiority of their particular product over all others she never could make up her mind which one to call. Then she won the Hurst awnings and the whole Mahaffey family now is sold on them.

"My husband, who works for the Miami Transit Company, has been telling all his friends what a great job the Hurst people do in making their awnings," Mrs. Mahaffey added. "And all my children and my neighbors are thrilled by the beautiful new look the awnings give our home.

"We especially like the fact that all the awnings fold down for hurricane protection, should we ever need it. In the meantime, they give wonderful protection from the sun and the rain, too. The first day we got them it started to rain and, as usual, I made a dash to close the windows.

"'Wait a minute, now,' my husband told me. 'Let's just see whether these awnings really keep the rain out the way the man said they would!'

"Sure enough, not a drop of rain came in. Not even a trickle, like our old awning used to give us. The deep sides on Hurst awnings really protect our home. I just can't express how secure we all feel with our new protection against sun, rain and hurricane.

"And, as my husband says, the fine workmanship that goes into Hurst awnings shows in the smooth, streamlined way they are put together. The under-surfaces and corners — where spider webs and even hornet nests do sometimes gather, in spite of a busy housewife's care — are all so smooth and shiny that it's a cinch to keep them clean.

"There are no sharp edges or ends of bolts hanging down, you see, to catch in your dust mop or cloth. I really appreciate that, as I work in the Edison Senior High cafeteria and don't always have as much time as I'd like to devote to house cleaning. I'm sure other women will understand the advantage of easy-to-clean awnings like mine.

"I know I must sound like a super salesman for the Hurst Company, with all the nice things I keep saying about them and their awnings. But I simply can't get over what wonderful people they are. They did exactly what they promised to do in the contest — deliver and install five hundred dollars' worth of awnings free.

"There were no gimmicks, no high pressure to buy something extra, no attempt to use my home for a demonstration, or anything of that sort. They just came and quietly and efficiently, put up the awnings and then went away again. But ever since, I've been telling everybody I know about the Hurst Company and recommending their awnings.

"It's the least I can do, to show my appreciation for our own wonderful new Hurst awnings, isn't it?"

Further information about Hurst awnings and free estimates may be obtained by calling TUxedo 7-8154.
